The Canadian Philatelist
From the Editor’s Desk

by Steve Thorning

WE’RE ADJUSTING OUR SCHEDULE
In his column this issue, President Bill Robinson mentions that the Directors are looking at various ways to strengthen the RPSC and improve its services to the membership.
As the basic means of contact with the membership, The Canadian Philatelist obviously figures largely in the considerations.

There have been major changes in the production of the journal over the past three years.
In the near future we want to make sure that the new technology is being employed as ef-effectively as possible. Quality, flexibility and cost are all major considerations.

As everyone concerned becomes more comfortable with the new production methods, the time needed to produce the journal will be reduced. This will make it easier to adhere to a rigid production schedule.

Currently, our publication date falls in the middle of the period noted on the cover. Recent issues have been late in meeting this date.
As well, the journal is sometimes in transit for lengthy periods. The latter seems to be a parcular problem for members in eastern Canada and overseas. The result is that most members have been receiving their journals after the cover date.

We are monitoring the delivery times of the post office, but we can also improve the situation at our end. We are moving the production schedule up a month. Consequently, the next issue, March-April, will be published on March 1, and the vast majority of members should receive it between March 8 and 15. Subsequent issues will be published on the first day of the period noted on the cover. Everyone associated with the journal will be striving to adhere to this schedule without variation.

WHAT’S COMING IN 1995?
Last year I announced my hope to publish a World War II Fiftieth Anniversary issue in for May-June 1995. I already have some excellent articles on hand for this project, and leads on a couple more. It is not too late to make a submission for this theme issue. The War theme is defined very broadly: anything to do with mail systems, both military and civilian, during World War II and its immediate aftermath. I hope to receive sufficient articles so that I can use the overflow in other issues later in the year.

Directly and indirectly, World War II touched everyone who reads this journal. For many it was the defining period in their lives. It is obvious that the philately of the war years will be of major interest to our readers.

As in past years, I intend to make the September-October issue an all-Canadian one. I already have some major articles on hand for it, but a continuing problem for me as editor is finding articles on the classic stamp issues of Canada.

If you collect nineteenth-century BNA, why not write an article on part of your collection?
An article does not necessarily mean a lot of extra work. Many of our best articles are based closely on collections and exhibits. Our readers are not all specialists. A good article does not need to present a startling new discovery.
It is more important to explain an area of phi-ately to other collectors who are not familiar with your specialty, particularly novice col-collectors.

One of the pleasures of the editor’s job is working with new authors. When will I hear from you about an article?

THE CANADA HOLOGRAM PANES WITH MISSING HOLOGRAMS

ONE MISSING:
I offer $2,000.00 U.S. each for any quantity available. Submit photocopies of what you have.

TWO MISSING AND 10 MISSING:
Send in photocopies for my offers.

What else is available in Missing Holograms?
If what you have in the missing errors is not for sale do send in photocopies of such, preferably in colour. I am publishing a booklet on this error and in it will be every missing error pane possible. Any data concerning what you have will be welcome, as is permission to use your name as the owner. No charge for this booklet to participants. It will be quite a booklet. You see, it is possible to identify every error pane. No two are exactly the same! This will mean a great deal to the value of your error pane if it is in this booklet. Want also panes with Misplaced Holograms, the Black Hole variety, the Meteor Shower, the Meteor Crater, and Miscuts: High Orbit and Low Orbit.

SPECIAL HOLOGRAM OFFER
I retail the Meteor Crater variety at $50.00 a pane. You can have one mint pane and I’ll use a matching same variety on the registered cover containing the mint pane both $50.00. The one on the cover will be well protected. Only one set to a customer.

Also Offered:
A specialized Hologram pane collection. It will have most of the varieties listed above (except for the Missing errors). Price is $500.00. One item will be quite a surprise. Cash with order, or else ask to see the lot on approval. All buyers of either above Hologram lots will receive information about one more magnificent error, so far unlisted, which inadvertently came from one source: The Philatelic Agency in Antigonish, Nova Scotia. Will buy all possible at $500.00 a pair, or $5,000.00 for entire pane. Any subscribers to this Canada new issue service might have it.

Nearly all known Hologram varieties are already listed in the handsome Darnell Canada specialized catalog. I have this in the easy to use spiral binding. Price is $16.00. The 1995 edition of the splendid Unitrade Canada Specialized will have all listed. Believe price will be $20.00 for the spiral binding.

REFLECTIONS ON IRWIN

Sir:

I wish to record my sincere thanks to Ross W. Irwin for the exceedingly interesting article, A Quarter Century of New Postal History (Sept.-Oct. 1994). It was written in a readable fashion. More important, it fully exhibited the many hours of research that he must have put into this study. I learned a great deal about recent progress by our postal service, particularly in the processing of the mail.

I regret I must take umbrage with his first paragraph. Mr. Irwin has proved that he is well skilled in the art of Postal History, but he should remember that there are more stamp collectors in our society than postal historians.

Yes, we decry the new postal cancellation methods. The ordinary stamp collector is still interested in a circle date stamp. More so in Europe. There, a stamp without a circle date stamp is considered a destroyed stamp, suitable only for consignment to the waste bin. Fortunately, there are still a few small towns where the mail is processed the 'old' way. You have to search, but you can still find the occasional CDS.

Mr. Irwin, in his article, notes the MLOC PR processes 32,500 pieces of mail in the hour. Excellent. But how much time is lost in transporting the mail from outlying areas into the city where this machine is in operation?

Please, Mr. Irwin, continue with your wonderful research and keep us informed. But please do not forget the simple stamp collector who will no doubt remain just a member when your relentless search will accord to yourself a Fellow in our society.

FLAGS ON CANADIAN STAMPS

Sir,

I certainly welcome Ray Smith's comments on my Flags on Canadian Stamps piece. I knew that there would be several stamps with flags that I missed, and it is important to identify them because future study will be done. What I cannot get over is how I missed the obvious United States flag on Scott No. 1054.

For the interest of readers, Columbo's Canadian References (1976) says Fort Whoop-up is:

a fort (originally called Fort Hamilton) built by traders from Montana in 1869 in the Cypress Hills area of the Canadian Prairies. It derives its name from the lawless behaviour of the American traders who sold whiskey to the Indians and in 1873 killed 80 Assiniboine accused of stealing horses. This was one of the factors that led to the formation of the North West Mounted Police in 1874, after which Fort Whoop-up was no longer used and eventually became a ranch house.

This answers Mr. Smith's question as to the authenticity of the U.S. flag on No. 1054.

AMERICANS DON'T LIKE THE GST, EITHER

Sir:

This letter is prompted by the article about the anti-GST campaign pages 334-5 of the Sept-Oct. issue. I am familiar with Mr. Steen and his campaign and have purchased some of the anti-GST labels sold by the Yellowhead Stamp and Coin Collectors Society. It was not discussed in the Canadian Philatelist, but it is also important to remember that the GST also directly affects collectors outside Canada who are members of the RPSC or the British North America Philatelic Society. Because of the difficulties caused by the GST, we are effectively excluded from participating in the sales circuits run by these societies, just as Canadians are unable to participate in the APS sales circuit. This may not garner much sympathy from Canadian collectors who seem to be taxed every time they look at their collections, but the sales circuits were one of the reasons I joined these societies. I hope that the de facto restriction of philatelic trade caused by the ignorant and insensitive application of the GST to international philatelic exchanges soon will be eliminated.

SAVE THE CANADIAN POSTAL ARCHIVES

(Editor's note: Our Past President, Mr. Michael Madesker, recently wrote to Hon. Michel Dupuy,
Dear Mr. Dupuy,

I wish, as a former three-term President of the Royal Philatelic Society of Canada/Société royale de philatélie du Canada, to protest what amounts to a dispersal of the Canadian Postal Archives.

Canadian philatelists are already seriously handicapped by the separation of the Archives and the Museum. We are turning more and more to foreign sources of information needed for even simple study. Research is greatly restricted, which contributes to the decline of our hobby in Canada.

In addition to being an educational tool, philately is a unifying medium. Canadians, in all walks of life and from all parts of our Country, find common language and purpose in stamp collecting. The Canadian Postal Archives are an anchor and foundation for many philatelic activities. To destroy this institution at this time will not serve Canada's citizen's well.

The United States, Netherlands, Israel and other countries are rebuilding and establishing new facilities for their postal archives and museum at the same time when Canada contemplates to destroy its own.

Please give every possible consideration to renew, and even increase, the facilities of the Canadian Postal Archives. The preservation of our heritage is of great importance to our future.

Sincerely yours,

Michael Madesker
Downsview, Ont.

ASHTON-POTTER RETURNS AS STAMP SUPPLIER

Canada Post has signed long-term contracts for the production of Canadian stamps with two security printers. The surprise is the return of Ashton-Potter, the Toronto firm that declared bankruptcy more than a year ago.

The MDC Corporation of Toronto, which acquired the Ashton-Potter assets, has remained in the business, supplying stamps for the U.S. Post Office from its American plant. On the basis of its new contract with Canada Post, the firm is investing heavily in an updated facility in Toronto, with $3,000,000 in new equipment.

Security printing has become a heavily competitive, globalized industry over the past decade. To take advantage of this competitive climate, Canada Post for the past few years had been negotiating contracts on an annual basis. The new contracts, which divide Canada Post’s stamp printing between Canadian Bank Note and Ashton-Potter, run for three years, with two one-year options. With the longer terms, the printers feel more confident in making capital investments in specialized equipment. The longer terms also end the need for complicated negotiations each year.

Altogether, 19 firms submitted bids and proposals for printing Canada’s stamps. Ten of these were domestic suppliers, or firms with partnerships in Canada. The Canadian printing industry had lobbied for the work to be contracted within Canada, but Canada Post also looked at quality, price, delivery times, and technology.

The current one-year contract with Leigh-Mardon Pty Ltd. of Australia expires at the end of 1994. This firm produced about half Canada’s stamps in 1994. Although there were some quality problems initially with Leigh-Mardon, Canada Post was very pleased with the work done by this firm. It is believed that Leigh-Mardon was one of the unsuccessful bidders for the new contracts.

Jim Phillips of Canada Post stated that, while some of the details of the contracts are still being negotiated, it is expected that Ashton-Potter will produce booklets and peelable stamps. The printing technologies used by each firm will be a factor in who gets to print future new issues.
STAMPS FOR PALESTINE AUTHORITY

The newly created Palestine Authority, which will administer the Gaza Strip and Jericho, will issue its own stamps. The fact that philately was included in the PLO-Israel accord is due to the initiative of Nabil Shaath, chief negotiator for the PLO, who is a stamp collector. He insisted on the inclusion of stamps in the accord because they are symbols of self-determination, if not statehood. The accord specifies that the stamps must read Palestine Authority and not Palestine. So far, no details have been announced concerning the functioning of postal services and the handling of mail by the new Palestine Authority.

NEW STAMP GAME

GeoSafari is a teaching tool that is sold in many toy stores. It is used in homes and classrooms to spark interest by youngsters in history, geography, and sciences. With a new set of game cards, Exploring Stamps, it may also help young people get their feet wet in philately.

The game cards were developed by the American Philatelic Society, in conjunction with Educational Insights, the game’s manu- facturer. Twenty different cards are featured, including famous persons, animals, countries, and stamp basics.

The GeoSafari machine asks questions which can be answered from the game cards. Players are awarded points for correct answers. The APS is selling the machine at $99.95 and the game cards at $14.95, with discounts for APS members and volume purchases. For more information, write to the APS Educational Department, Box 8000, State College, PA 16803.

VICPEX '94 SHOW THE BEST EVER

VICPEX '94, the fall stamp show held in Victoria, B.C. on October 1 and 2, ranked as the most successful yet presented. Hosted by the Vancouver Island and Greater Victoria Philatelic Societies, the Junior Stamp Club, and the Sidney Stamp Club, VICPEX is fast building a reputation as a major local show.

On display in new 15-page frames was a wide diversity of Canadian, British Commonwealth and foreign philatelic material.

As a new idea, VICPEX '94 presented non-competitive frames of material of special interest to viewers who have no knowledge of philately. The Victoria Stamp Show Committee and the Sidney Stamp Club each prepared exhibits that showed a wide range of stamp collecting interests. These fascinating, non-technical exhibits not only appealed to non-collectors but they also captured the attention of experienced philatelists.

The junior exhibits were carefully prepared and well presented. Mithrel Parker's Bicycles on Stamps showed particularly strong imagination and originality. Show organizers expect great things from the juniors in years to come.

The following awards were presented:

Gold: Bob Heasman, France The Legacy of Its Postal Past (also Clarke Horning Trophy); Don Shorting, Postal Usage of Canada's 1898 Map Stamp (also Eric Hamber Trophy and Most Popular Exhibit); Charles Arnold, The Stamps and Postal History of Prince Edward Island (also Centennial Trophy and W. Sach Trophy); Don Shorting, Domestic Postcards of Germany, 1921-1923 (also Lester Small Trophy).

Vermel: Vincent Leonardson, Runners and Blades; Lindsay Kiessling, Cats; Luis Martin, Uruguay by Waterlow; Paul Parizeau, London Cen- sels from Maltese Cross to Early Machine Duplex (also Gerald E. Wellburn Trophy); Vernon Richards, The First Three Airmail Issues of Liberia (also Frank Dyment Trophy).

Silver: Don Shorting, Canada's 2-cent Registered Letter Stamp; Jim Brown, FAM 2; Dean Goar, Civilian Censorship of Mail from KUT (WWII); Bill Bartlett, Scadta Offices in Ecuador; Robin Clarke, Censor Markings of Hong Kong; Jim Brown, Aircraft Overprints With and Without Surcharges.

Silver Bronze: Marjorie Sheldrake, B.C. Postmarks; Larry Margelish, Canada Landscapes; Elmer Kennedy, Republic of Nauru; Tony Kunicky, Journey of a Metchosin Pioneer (also Reg Naime Trophy).

Bronze: Heather Koehens, Aerogrammes; Bob Sharpe, Apollo II Moon Landing.

Juniors: Mithrel Parker, Bicycles on Stamps (Gold, Junior Trophy); Tim Holm, Space The Final Frontier (Silver Bronze); Leah Bowman, World of Birds (Silver Bronze).

The Canadian Philatelist
The last count of the number of varieties in collections of Canadian Precancells was published in 1991. A new count has been prepared, with the help of Messrs. Walburn and Izzett, and a number of other collectors. The last count contained 30% more names than this one. This is surprising, because more precancel collectors are known to be active today than in 1991. The scarcity of many precancel varieties, even some of the more common types, is evident from the want lists received by dealers such as H.G. Walburn. A pricing update of the Precancel Catalogue is now in progress to reflect this trend. Mr. Walburn has undertaken to complete this task. The survey results are summarized at right. Only four collectors report more than 3,000 types.

CELL PHONES FOR ISRAELI POSTMEN

Both postmen and mail recipients are annoyed when the recipient of a parcel or registered letter is not home, and a card must be left with instructions to call at the post office. The Israeli post office has a method to improve service in such circumstances. When a customer is not home, the postman leaves his cellular phone number. When they arrive home, customers call the postman. The delivery is then arranged. According to The Jerusalem Post, this is only one method being developed by the Israeli Post Office to improve service and expand into profitable growth areas. Among other innovations are an aggressive pursuit of the express mail and package delivery markets. Presently, the post office has less than 15% of this business. There are plans to install an electronic system that will advise box holders when mail has arrived.

As part of an internal shake-up, a number of new senior managers have been brought in from the private sector.
POSTMASTER ON WALL MURAL
A popular attraction with travellers in western Canada is the collection of murals painted on the walls of buildings in Stoney Plain, Alberta. These depict some of the early history of the area. One of these murals is painted on the post office. It depicts, in the format of a postage stamp, the first post office in the town and a portrait of John L. McDonald, the first postmaster, who served from 1892 until 1901. What a dramatic way to celebrate a town's postal history!

BULK PRESTAMPED STATIONARY
Reader's Digest magazine is pioneering the use of a new bulk mail imprint. Designated Bulk Prestamped Stationery by Canada Post, the new imprint features a colour reproduction of peelable flag definitive, and a simulated cancel that looks very much like an IPS machine cancel. According to Canada Post, Reader's Digest used the imprint on a bulk mailing of 800,000 pieces this fall, and was so pleased with the results that it plans another mailing of 1,000,000.

The design of the imprint for Bulk Prestamped Stationery is negotiated between the customer and Canada Post. For security reasons, the envelopes are printed before they are cut and folded. There is a yellow security strip around the right edge. The Reader's Digest envelopes were printed in eight colours.

In an interview, Jim Phillips of Canada Post stated that the envelopes give the customer the convenience of other bulk mailing methods, with a much better image for their mail. In large quantities, the envelopes are cost competitive with other mailing methods. As the stamp image has no value indicated, the designs of older stamps could be used for particular customers and purposes. Special simulated cancels are also possible.

The new envelopes are handled like Admail, and qualify for all incentive rates.

The Automotive Opinion Survey used similar envelopes earlier in 1994, but Reader's Digest is the first Canada Post customer to embrace the new envelopes so enthusiastically. Other users are expected to follow in 1995.

How about having the 1898 Map Stamp reproduced on the envelopes of your Christmas cards next year? Canada Post will talk to you about it, but Jim Phillips cautions that it will only be worthwhile if you send out 50,000 cards or more.

Since these envelopes are attractive and colourful, especially when compared to earlier bulk mail items, some philatelists will want to form collections of them. Now is the time to start. The price is right all you have to do is sort through the waste paper basket.

JACK INCE WON HAFNIA GRAND PRIX

Years of writing and research have resulted in much satisfaction and honour for the co-authors of an important work, The Postal Services of the British Nigeria Region. The 556-page volume has been received enthusiastically by both philatelists and historians. At the HAFNIA '94 Philatelic Literature Exhibition, held in Copenhagen last January, the book earned 97 out of a possible 100 points, sufficient to win a large gold medal and the Grand Prix Award of the show.

Mr. Ince and his wife recently moved from England to Canada to be nearer their daughters. They reside in the village of Stirling, Ontario, near Belleville.

by William G. Robinson

Recently I received an interesting and rather sad letter from a member in Ontario who said that he had joined the Society ten years ago mainly to dispose of duplicate stamps through the circuit. He had now accomplished his objective, and could see no other reason to maintain his membership. He could find little in this magazine which he could not find in the Canada Post news releases, or in stamp articles in the daily newspapers. He could not fill circuit books with stamps of the value required today.

I don’t know what magazine he has been reading, but it doesn’t sound like our Canadian Philatelist. I know that our editor prints news releases for those who don’t receive them, but he also strives to publish articles on all types of philatelic subjects. The content depends largely on the articles submitted by the members. Have you written and submitted something recently? Someone has to write these interesting articles we all enjoy.

We have explained the reasons for increasing the minimum value of each book in the circuit. We are not a rich society and cannot afford to subsidize the activities of the sales circuit. It must stand on its own financially hence the recent changes in regulations. We are sorry that such changes have caused hardships to some members but with the increases in postage rates we can simply not afford to spend as much as on postage as a book is worth merely to send it to a few clients.

Another member has written regarding the increasing numbers of members who are allowing their memberships to drop. Many of these including some Chapters subsequently renew, but many do not. A considerable number of those leaving are newer members who have joined in the past few years. Why are they leaving, and what did they expect when they joined? Whatever it was had apparently not been delivered. We need a much stronger liaison between the parent Society and the local Chapters. We need a membership drive to persuade members of the local Chapters of the benefits of personal membership in the RPSC. This will require the work and dedication of the contact person at each Chapter. These contact persons must be members of the RPSC but we are finding this isn’t so in some cases. The same requirements exists for local sales circuit representatives. Let’s see how many new members we can recruit and retain in the near future. Use the application forms on the mailing jacket of your magazine.

The late delivery of the Canadian Philatelist has been frequently cited. There have been problems during the learning period of a new editor, and the breaking in of a new desk-top publishing program. Our printer has also recently obtained new state-of-the-art equipment, with consequent further delays. We hope that these problems are now mostly ironed out. The Directors are constantly considering improvements to the journal and I hope to have further remarks about them soon.

What have you done to improve the Society recently? We can’t all let George do it. Let me have your thoughts.

Fellows of the Society

Herbert Buckland
1883 - 1973

In 1964 Herbert Buckland, membership number 4661, was elected a Fellow of our Society.

Herbert Buckland was born in England in 1883, coming to Canada in 1910. He fought in the Boer War before emigrating to Canada, and went back overseas in the early part of World War I, where he was stationed at Kent, England. He arrived back in Canada in 1920, settling in Toronto.

Mr. Buckland joined our Society in 1923 when the Society was known as the Canadian Philatelic Society, with headquarters in Winnipeg. He was a Charter member when the Society was incorporated in 1926, and from that time on Mr. Buckland was a very devoted member. He gave the Society many years of service. From 1924 to 1935 he served as a Director and Librarian. From 1937 to 1947 he served as Secretary of the Society and it was during this period that he saw the membership increase from 200 to over 1,000. He served a second term as Director from 1939 until 1947.

In 1951 he moved from Toronto to Port Perry, Ontario, and again took on the post of Librarian for the Society, a position he held until 1960. In January 1960 his home was destroyed by fire. He lost his extensive stamp collections, as well as the library of the Society.

He started collecting stamps and postmarks as an eleven-year-old boy, and was an active philatelist all his life. Prior to the fire which destroyed his house he collected the stamps of Great Britain and Norway. After the fire he began to replace the thirty albums which were destroyed in the blaze.

In 1956 Herbert Buckland was named an Honorary Life Member of the Canadian Philatelic Society of Great Britain, and in 1957 he was elected a Fellow of that society. On his last trip to England, in 1969, he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society, London.

Mr. Buckland died May 15, 1973 in Port Perry at the age of 89.

STAMP AUCTIONS
In some recent auctions one may detect a trend. Single stamps in very fine condition bring better prices than blocks. One explanation may be that those buying the blocks are breaking these up into singles for future sales. A single in very fine condition may bring double or more the catalogue value, while a block of four of the same stamp may bring less than four times the catalogue value.

Some dealers advertise an agent through whom one may place bids for an auction. What is the experience of collectors using or not using an agent for their bids? Some dealers prefer bids directly from purchasers, rather than through an agent.

1978 C.N.E. STAMP
Irving Singer, finder of many Canadian varieties, brought to our attention a misspelling on the official Post Office announcement for Scott No. 767, the 1978 Canadian National Exhibition Centennial stamp. The gate shown on the stamp is identified as the Prince’s Gate. An article on the construction of this gate appeared in the July 1994 issue of Engineering Dimensions, the journal of the Professional Engineers of Ontario. The article noted that the gate was opened by Prince Edward and Prince Albert, and the correct name therefore is the Princes’ Gate. The spelling Prince’s Gate in the official announcement is wrong.

The Unitrade and Darnell catalogues are also wrong, as are Stanley Gibbons and Scott Vol. 1. The popular press frequently uses another incorrect version: The Princess Gate. The Post Office played it safe with the stamp and the plate block. Neither show the word.

10-CENT SMALL QUEEN
In one of his firm’s recent auction catalogues, Bill Maresh states: The ten cents is the most challenging of all the Small Queens with its wonderful colours, shades and especially its usages. It is one of the very few stamps that has not been studied and written up.... This is very true. The attractive large multiples that are still around would certainly be very useful for any study. We hope that these are not torn up before all the information has been collected. The book published Ian Kimmerly on Constant Plate Varieties of the Canada Small Queens lists one major re-entry plus some other flaws. The book has five different references dealing with the ten-cent value.

10-CENT SKUNK
The 10-cent Skunk definitive, Scott No. 1160, shows the animal in a cloud. On some stamps, this cloud has moved to the top margin of the stamp, indicating a mis-registration of the colours during printing. An interesting curiosity, but probably not of great value as a variety.

THE PRECANCEL COUNT
As this is being written we are in the midst of the Precancel Count once again. A few points can be made. The total number of varieties listed for each type in the last Precancel Catalogue is as follows: Bars, 899 of which two are Admiral Dies; Cities, 2,543 including 104 Admiral dies; Numerals, 451; and 3rd Class, 64. Of interest is that two collectors report 454 and 453 types, more than are actually listed in the catalogue. The Bar types obviously represent the greatest collecting challenge. The largest collection has 605, or 294 short of the maximum possible. Several collectors are close to the 64 possible 3rd Class varieties. The best Cities collections are about 250 varieties short of complete.

It would be interesting to know if one would put all the collections together the count would be equal the total of all catalogued varieties.

AN UNUSUAL OCEAN LETTER
An interesting cover was offered recently in an auction. It consisted of a printed form envelope with the return address of the Marconi International Marine Communication Co. Ltd., Marconi House, Strand W.C.
The cover has preprinted on the front, along with the Marconi return address, the words OCEAN LETTER and RECOMMANDÉ/REGIS-TERED. It is franked with 3c and 10c Admiral stamps, and cancelled with a Quebec P.Q. circle date stamp on 25 June 1925. The letter is addressed to Joliet, Illinois, where it arrived June 29.

Inside the cover was a form marked Ocean Letter and Handed in on board the SS Athenia on 21 Jan. 1925 and received by the SS Manchester Hero for mailing at first suitable port of call. At the very bottom of the form is printed: This ‘Ocean Letter’ has been transmitted by wireless from the ‘ship of origin’ to a vessel going in an opposite direction to be forwarded to the addressee by registered post on the ship’s arrival in port. A message of this sort should not be confused with an ordinary wireless telegram which is treated telegraphically throughout.

I could not find any instructions at the Canadian Postal Archives in Ottawa about this mailing method. Can any readers add more information to this interesting story of Ocean Letters?

PERFORATION GAUGE

The Germany company SAFE, which developed the first electronic perforation gauge, will soon bring out another one that will measure accurately to two decimal places. The need for more accurate perforation measurement is obvious. Catalogues, including Scott, will and have already introduced listings of perforations of stamps down to two decimals. Years ago, a measurement of 12 or 11 was standard, but many stamps did not have such perforations. The catalogues simply rounded off the values. Collectors now demand more accuracy. The SAFE instrument is called Perforotics. The question, then, if a Small Queen perforation of 11.5 exists will be solved without difficulty. With the new device, there will be no need to count the spacing between perforations anymore, which leads to inaccuracies.

Above: the front of the Ocean Letter. Below: The inside of the Ocean Letter, with the telegraphed message in manuscript.

XXXVII. Accountancy Markings on Stampless Letters

Many collectors, when they first study stampless letters, may be confused by various seemingly meaningless markings originally in manuscript and later either handstruck or manuscript. Prior to the 1840s, these were either additions to postage due, as a letter was passed from one exchange post office to the next within British North America, or showing a division of prepaid postage on letters being sent into the United States, or U.S. postage due on unpaid ship letters from New York to the Canadian border.

The first of these types are to be found on inland letters travelling through at least one major office such as Quebec, Kingston, Toronto and on packet letters between the Canadas and England via Halifax (Figure 1). The second type were letters from the Canadas sent to New York to connect with either the Falmouth packets after the American Revolution the American packets after 1820 (Figure 2). With respect to this second type of marking, as the B.N.A. and U.S. postage charges were unchanged from the late 1820s for about a decade and virtually all commercial and other important letters from Toronto for Great Britain were sent to New York to connect with the weekly American packets, Toronto adopted the first handstamp, identified as used in B.N.A., to show prepaid postage on such letters in the middle 1830s. This was a straight-line ‘PAID 9 & 25’, representing 7d. Cy. inland postage to Queenston, 2d. Cy. ferriage across the Niagara River, and 25 cents inland postage to New York (Figure 3). In 1837, when ferriage was abolished, Toronto used an equivalent ‘PAID 7 & 25’ (Figure 4).

Accountancy Markings

The above were not accountancy markings, but rather, a means of showing prepaid postage or postage due as it accumulated in transit. Accountancy markings were only used when letters were passing between countries where there was a postal treaty establishing exchange offices and a sharing of the total postage.

The first such treaty of interest here was the Anglo-French Postal Treaty of 1843, Article 12, which provided for a British charge of 3s. 4d. Stg/ounce to cover British packet and inland postage on letters in transit from North America to France, or 10d. Stg. / 7 ½ grams, and a French charge of 4 francs/30 grams for sea conveyance and French transit. The exchange rate equated 10d. Stg. to 10 décimes (1 franc). An example of the British marking in this case is shown in figure 5, an 1845 letter from New Orleans, which was prepaid to Boston, whence it travelled by the Cunard Cambria to Liverpool in a closed bag for London, where it was struck with a boxed ‘COLONIES &c. Art. 12’ to show the British charge of 10d. Stg. It was sent to Boulogne, where it was rated 15 décimes postage due; 5 décimes French inland postage to Paris being added to the charge.
The next treaty to note was the 1848 U.K.-U.S. Postal Convention, which established a shared postage of 1s. Stg. or 24 cents postage between any office in Britain and any office in the U.S. This was divided into three components: 1½d. or 3 cents British inland postage, 8d. or 16 cents packet postage, and 2½d. or 5 cents U.S. inland postage. The packet postage belonged to whichever country’s contract packet carried the letter. Letters could be sent either prepaid or unpaid, with rate markings on prepaid letters being in red, and black on unpaid letters. The originating post office only marked its debit on unpaid letters; viz. ‘3’ or ‘19’ by Britain and ‘5’ or ‘21’ by the U.S. On prepaid letters, the full postage was shown as ‘Paid’, together with the credit to the receiving country of its share. Because this is included to show the development of the system of markings, although outside the main subject, and has quite a few possible combinations, only two examples are included as illustrations (Figures 6 and 7).

When Canada assumed responsibility for the post office from the British in 1851, it became a separate administration with respect to postage and therefore came under the same system as outlined for U.S. mail. The British post office applied accountancy markings on letters to B.N.A. to show the British debits on unpaid letters and B.N.A. credits on prepaid ones. With respect to Cunard letters, only B.N.A. colonial postage was outside the British charges, so that ‘1s.’ and ‘10d.’ are found on unpaid letters, depending on whether they went via Boston or New York, or via Halifax, and ‘2d.’ on prepaid letters the former in black and the latter in red. When the postage was reduced to 6d. and 8d. Stg. in 1854, ‘5d.’ and ‘7d.’ appeared on unpaid letters, and ‘1d.’ on prepaid ones. Once the Allan steamers began operating, ‘1d.’ went to the G.P.O. and ‘5d.’ to Canada. The Canadian post offices were very casual in following this practice, so that Canadian accountancy markings are few and far between after a few years the British obviously decided that a one-sided system was a waste of time and discontinued these markings. Again, because of the number of variations found among transatlantic letters between the two countries, illustrations must be limited to typical markings (Figures 8 to 13).

Figure 1: Letter mailed at Bed ford, England on 22 December 1830, which appears to have been originally rated at 8d. Stg. as an outgoing ship letter. This was deleted, the letter marked ‘Packet’, and rated 2s. 3d. Stg. packet postage due at Halifax. Carried by the Rinaldo from Falmouth on 8 January 1831 and arrived at Halifax on 5 February, where the postage due was converted to 2s. 6d. Cy. and 9d. Cy. postage to Moncton added to make 3s. 3d. Cy. At Moncton, an additional 7d. Cy. postage to Saint John, N.B. was added, where in turn a final 1d. postage to St. Andrews was added for a total postage due of 3s. 11d. Cy.

Figure 2: Letter mailed at St. John’s, L.C. on 1 April 1824 with the postage to New York prepaid, shown at upper right as ‘Paid 18 ½ cents’ and ‘Paid 6 Cy.’ the latter charge indicates that the letter was sent to Montreal to be made up in the New York Mail, even though the mail courier went through St. John’s on his way to New York. Carried by an American sailing packet to Liverpool, where it was charged 1s. 7d. postage due to London as an incoming ship letter.

Figure 3: Letter from Toronto dated 19 December 1836 with postage prepaid to New York, shown by a straight-line ‘PAID 9 & 25’ handstamp. Carried by a Red Swallowtail packet bound for London, which landed the Mail at Deal; hence this was backstamped with a boxed ‘SHIP LETTER/DEAL’ AND RATED 1S. 4d. Stg. postage due at London.
Figure 4: Letter from Toronto dated 1 January 1839 with the postage to New York prepaid, shown by a straight-line "PAID 7 & 25" handstamp. Carried by a Blue Swallowtail packet to Liverpool, where it was rated 1s. 7d. Stg. postage due at London as a ship letter.

Figure 5: Letter mailed at New Orleans on 5 December 1845 with 10 cents postage to Boston prepaid. Carried by the Cunard Cambria in a closed bag for London, where it was struck with a boxed 'COLONIES &c. ART. 12.' to show the British debit of 10d. Stg. against the French post office.
Figure 6: Forwarded letter mailed at London on 23 August 1850 with the postage unpaid. Struck with ‘19 CENTS’ in black to show the British debit. Carried by the Cunard Hibernia in a closed bag for New York, where it was struck with a black ‘24’ to show 24 cents postage due.

Figure 7: Letter mailed at Chicago on 19 October 1853 with 24 cents postage prepaid. Struck with a red ‘3’ at New York to show the British credit. Carried by the Havre Line Humboldt, an American contract packet to Southampton. Datestamped ‘PAID’ at London on 6 November.
Figure 8: Unpaid letter from Halifax dated 2 October 1851, which was struck with a black '2' to show the B.N.A. debit. Sent by the Cunard Europa in a closed bag for London, where the '2' was deleted and the letter was rated 1s. Stg. postage due.

Figure 9: Unpaid letter mailed at Brighton on 25 October 1855. At Liverpool, it was struck with a black '7d' to show the British debit via the U.S., as it was sent by the Cunard Asia to Boston in a closed bag for Toronto, where it was struck with a black '10' to show 10d. Cy. postage due.
Figure 10: Unpaid letter mailed at Glasgow on 24 April 1854. Originally struck with a black '7d' at Liverpool to show the British debit by Cunard. This was subsequently changed to a black '1d', as the letter was sent by the Canadian Steam Navigation Co. Ottawa on her second voyage from Liverpool on 25 April. Finding ice in the St. Lawrence, the steamer diverted to Portland, Maine.

At Montreal, it was marked with a black '7'/2' to show the postage due in currency.

Figure 11: Unpaid letter mailed at Greenock on 23 September 1854. Struck with a black '5d' at Liverpool to show the British debit by Cunard via Halifax. Carried by the Europa to Halifax, where it was struck with '7'/2d' to show the postage due in currency.
Figure 12: Unpaid letter mailed at Birmingham on 8 August 1854. Struck with a black '1/-' at Liverpool to show the British debit on a letter carried by the Collins Line Baltic, an American contract steamer the postage was determined by the 1848 U.K.-U.S. postal convention. At Toronto, it was struck with a black '1/4' to show 1s. 4d. Cy. postage due, corresponding to 1s. 2d. Stg. the packet postage, plus 2d. colonial postage.

Figure 13: Two-ounce unpaid letter from Glasgow, mailed on 22 June 1855. Marked with '2/4' in black manuscript to show the British debit (4 x 7' / .4d. Stg.). Carried by the Cunard America to Boston in a closed bag for Montreal, where it was marked with '3/4' in black manuscript to show the postage due (4 x 10d. Cy.).

THE 1947 BOOKLET AIRMAIL STAMPS

by Trelle A. Morrow

In 1947 the Canadian Post Office issued a Combination Gift Booklet of stamps. Priced at $1.00, the booklet included stamps of 3¢, 4¢, and 7¢ denominations. The first two values covered the drop letter and forward letter rates. The 7¢ stamps paid the domestic airmail rate for up to one ounce. The 3¢ and 4¢ stamps in the booklet consisted of War Issue definitives in six-stamp panes, the same format as in other booklets of the period. The airmail stamp was the 7¢ stamp showing Canada Geese in flight in northern Ontario, originally released in sheet form as part of the 1946 Peace Issue. The intent of the booklet was to provide a gift opportunity at any season of the year.

On July 1, 1948 the “All Up” service was put into effect. Under this policy, all first class mail up to one ounce was to be carried by air whenever airmail service was available. Obviously, this greatly reduced the demand for airmail stamps. However, packets weighing over one ounce still required airmail stamps, and consequently, full panes of the 7¢ airmail booklet stamp can be found used on parcels.
Greetings to

I expect to get most of these stamps back on letters from you.

From

The exploded booklet, containing one pane each of the 3¢ and 4¢ War Issue definitives, and two panes of four of the 7¢ Canada Goose airmail stamp.
The $1.00 Gift Booklets were first sold in Ottawa on November 24, 1947. Some catalogues give the date incorrectly as December 1, 1947. First Day Covers franked with the 7¢ airmail booklet stamps were serviced at Ottawa. Mr. Colin Bayley had learned of the imminent issue of the booklets, and was able to make up a few covers to mark the event.

The Gift Booklet was issued in Winnipeg four days after the Ottawa release. There, the Postmaster at Station B cancelled about 25 panes of the 7¢ airmail booklet stamp for Winnipeg stamp dealer K. Bileski on November 28, 1947. The Winnipeg first day markings were done with an oval handstamp, and exist in both black and purple.

Papers and Printing

The paper used for the 7¢ airmail booklet stamps appears to be the same as that used for the sheet stamps of the same value, as part of the 1946 Peace Issue. When holding a stamp to the light, fine laid lines are evident. There are some paper varieties, but these are quite minor and difficult to distinguish.

A thin paper variety is listed in the Standard Catalogue of Canadian Booklet Stamps. However, this is not the dramatic thin paper used for a few of the 7¢ airmail sheet stamps (Scott C9i). The Booklet thin paper is only slightly thinner than the normal paper. A footnote in The Canadian Plate Block Catalogue by K. Bileski lists three paper types for the Scott C9 Airmail stamp: thin, intermediate, and normal papers. The booklet thin paper could very well be the intermediate paper so noted.

A ribbed paper variety has been recorded by Bill McCann, the Canadian booklet expert. Again, this is a difficult variety to observe. The pane must be held to a strong light and at a specific angle in order to detect the ribbing.

Another elusive variety is the ‘reversed pane,’ catalogued as C9a. This means the pane is upside down. The pane is reversed, with the tab on the right side in a complete booklet. Thus the staple holes are on the normal right side instead of being on the normal left side.

According to Douglas Patrick, the panes were printed from a single plate of 200 subjects. No information on the pane layout is available. As each booklet contained eight of the 7¢ Airmail stamps, 1,009,000 panes or 4,036,000 stamps were sold. By comparison, 72,350,000 copies of the sheet version of the stamp were sold.

The CBC Perfin

A perfin on a booklet stamp is a highly unusual occurrence. Due to the lack of popularity of the 1947 Gift Booklet with the public, and the change in 1948 to the “All Up” service, the Post Office experienced a considerable surplus stock of these booklets.

Apparently, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation obtained some of the booklets, dismantled them, and endorsed the stamps with its perforated initials, “CBC”.

It is interesting that the 7¢ booklet airmail perfin is positioned cross-wise on the stamp. The CBC perfin on the 7¢ airmail sheet stamps appears lengthwise on the stamps. This probably occurred because the booklet panes were easier to handle and feed through the perforator in the cross-wise position.

When the Gift Booklets were issued in November 1947, the domestic airmail rate was 7¢ for the first ounce, and 5¢ for each additional ounce. With the introduction of the “All Up” policy for letters after July 1, 1948, the need for airmail stamps was much reduced.

The relatively short period for mandatory seven-cent airmail franking after the Gift Booklets were issued, plus the unpopular price of $1.00 for the booklets, resulted in few sales to the public, and few of the 7¢ airmail booklet stamps being used. After the introduction of "All Up" service, they did find use in multiples for franking airmail packages, on airmail letters to the United States, and in combinations for overseas airmail rates.

The 7¢ airmail booklet stamp used to pay domestic airmail. This example is almost five months after the introduction of "All Up" service, and the airmail stamp overpays the four-cent letter rate.

The "All Up" service did not apply to mail to United States destinations, and the rate remained 7¢ for the first ounce and 5¢ per additional ounce. This 1949 example to the U.S. bears a House of Assembly machine cancel as well as a 7¢ airmail booklet stamp.
A 7¢ airmail booklet stamp franking a letter to the United States, June 16, 1950.

A fine example showing a pair of the 7¢ airmail booklet stamps combined with a 1¢ War Issue definitive, to make up the 15¢ per quarter ounce airmail rate to Great Britain.

The Post Office discontinued the $1.00 Gift Booklets on April 30, 1950. Unsold booklets were exploded and the stamps were sold individually across the counter. These were expensive booklets to produce, and the Post Office probably lost a considerable amount of money on them.

Trelle Morrow of Prince George, B.C. recently developed a one-frame exhibit on the 7¢ airmail booklet stamp. This article is based on that exhibit.
VENICE: SOME EARLY POSTAL HISTORY

by Michael Madesker, FRPSC

Historical Background

The early history of the Republic of Venice is shrouded in obscurity, much like the gentle fog which often covers the western approaches to the City and its lagoons. It is known that there were people in the area in 452 A.D. during the invasion of northern Italy by Attila the Hun. Legend claims that the City of Venice was, in fact, established exactly at noon on Friday, March 25, 421. The inhabitants are thought to have been impoverished fishermen and refugees from the mainland, hiding from invading barbarians and, not infrequently, from legal authorities on the mainland.

Settlements were built in and around Rialto, which was sheltered from the elements. In the year 726 the people elected a leader, Orso Ipato, and enthroned him as a non-hereditary Doge (Duke). Repulsing attacks from Franks and Lombards on the west and Dalmatian pirates on the east, Venice asserted its hegemony over their own territory and declared its independence. In the early tenth century the Republic of Venice began to expand and prosper. By the middle of the twelfth century, Venice had become a major trading port and an embarkation point for the Crusades. Its political structure consisted, at this period, of a Grand Council of 480 elected members and a Council of the Invited (Senate) appointed by the Doge.
Doge Enrico Dandolo in 1204 led the Fourth Crusade, with the hidden agenda to destroy Constantinople and the power it represented. Dandolo was successful in establishing his dominion over the Ionian Islands, the Cyclades, Crete and the ports of Thessaly, and other points on the Greek mainland. The democratic institutions of Venice did not interfere in the local political structures beyond establishing commercial outposts and encouraging trade. The only major competitor in the area, Genova, was defeated at Chioggia in 1380 by Doge Andrea Cantorini. Venice established its undisputed dominance over the Adriatic and the Eastern Mediterranean. The fifteenth century saw the Republic of Venice blossoming and expanding its commercial influence over its dominions.

Early Postal Service

Postal services were provided in Venice by three main methods: Ducal couriers, private messengers (including mainland coachmen), and by incoming vessels. Several routes into and from the City were also covered by postillions belonging to other states and cities.

There were no postal fee markings in this period. For this reason, one must ascribe a delivery service by the origin of the missive and such signs as arrival times and directions; for example, "d'Ufficio" – on official business.

For the best appreciation of the fifteenth century postal activities in Venice, both the City and the Republic, I have divided my study of the subject into four units:

1. Mails within the Venetian con-urbation
2. Mails within the Venetian Republic
3. Mails within the Italian States
4. Mails to and from foreign destinations, including dominions.

Mails within the Venetian Con-urbation

A letter dated June 22, 1482, from Venice to Torcello, one of the islands in the lagoon. According to the manuscript note below the address, the letter was delivered the same day, by private messenger. Torcello was an important shipping and repair depot within the Venetian con-urbation.
A letter dated June 12, 1497 from the College (Assembly) at Rialto to the Municipal Authorities at Torcello. The letter was delivered overnight, on June 13. The manuscript mark "d'U" (d'Ufficio) indicates the nature of the correspondence. The rippled holes in the cover are from tassels or strings which were threaded through them to seal the letters.

Rialto was the hub of Venice, its main administrative and commercial centre, comparable to a North American downtown.

Mailings Within the Venetian Republic

Letter dated June 22, 1401 from the Municipal Government of the Provincial Capital at Treviso to Venice. Written in Latin, this letter was addressed to the Most Distinguished and Wise Doge Anthonio Veniero, Judge, etc.

The flaps of the letter were held together by a paper seal with the embossed official insignia of the Podesta (Mayor) of Treviso.

Carried by a ducal courrier, this letter arrived at Venice on June 26, 1401.
Letter dated January 12, 1483 from Padua to Rialto. This “indirizzo,” or addressed direct letter, is written in Latin. A clergman wrote this letter. The message begins with the salutation, “+IHS MARIA” ([in the name of] Jesus and Maria).

Mails Within the Italian States

Left: Letter written in 1459 from Mantova, Lombardy, to Venice. The address side is marked “PAGATTO TUTTO” (fully paid), indicating that all fees to the point of origin have been met. It was carried by the Company of Courriers of Mantova.

Below: Letter dated February 23, 1498 from Livorno, Toscany to Venice. This missive was delivered on March 20, 1498, travelling by Florentine Courrier, connecting with the Rome to Venice Courrier traversing Toscany.
Above: Letter dated April 5, 1424 from Laodicia (in present day Latakia), Syria, to Venice. This missive, written on parchment, refers to the cost of doing business. Of particular interest is the merchants mark in the lower right corner, beginning with the initial “b”, the first letter of the sender’s name. The address is prefaced by the sign of the cross, wishing the letter godspeed.

Left: A letter of September 24, 1459 from Bougie (present day Bejaia), Algeria, to Venice. It arrived on October 30, 1459 after a voyage across the Mediterranean Sea.
A letter dated December 2, 1490 from Candia (present day Heraklion), Crete, to Venice. This letter was carried by a commercial vessel.

The "d'U" (ex officio) below the address, shown vertically on the bottom portion of the letter, indicates that the contents were of an official nature. The letter is illustrated partially opened to reveal the style of writing of the fifteenth century.
A fold-out letter dated January 1, 1402 from Venice to Therno (present day Santorini), in the Cyclades chain of islands. The letter is addressed to Antonio Falascho, Captain of a vessel belonging to Modena. The address incorporates a fine merchant’s mark with a cross salutation “A blessing to you.” The letter itself begins with the sign of the cross and the invocation “In the Name of God, Amen,” followed by the date (first line at top of illustration).
Right: Letter dated May 1, 1460 to Capodistria, Istria, from Venice. The arrival date at the destination was May 25, 1460. The letter came across the Adriatic Sea by a merchant vessel.

Below: A business letter dated December 23, 1418. It was sent from Venice to Alexandría, Egypt. The letter is written on parchment and still retains the original closing string. The address begins with the sign of the cross and the words "D(ei) Gratio." The arrival date of March 29, 1419 is shown in darker ink below the address.

PLASTICS

Plastic has become an important vehicle for products associated with our hobby. It has many advantages and disadvantages. While many plastic films are available to collectors, the challenge is to select and use the right one.

Most philatelic exhibitions, and particularly National and International shows, will not accept a philatelic exhibit unless the mounting sheets are enclosed in a plastic film. This is not only a protective feature safeguarding the stamps during handling. Should a stamp fall from its mounted position on the album page at any time, it will most likely remain in the plastic 'sheet protector.'

The use of sheet protectors gives considerable protection and assurance to the exhibition committee that assumes responsibility for the millions of dollars worth of stamps while in their custody during an exhibition. Insurance companies give preferential rates when sheet protectors are mandatory. Sheet protectors protect the album page and the mounted stamp from dirt, light and atmospheric elements.

The preferred sheet protector is one that is crystal clear, is inert, stable, and light in weight. In addition, the sheet should act as a barrier to acids and chemicals that might migrate into the mounting sheets and the stamps themselves. We will have more to say about protector sheets as we describe the various plastics.

Cellophane

The first plastic film, Cellophane was developed early in this century by Jacques Brandenbourger in France. This attractive material became commercially available in the 1920s. Basically, it is a refined paper, made from wood pulp and coated to give barrier and heat seal properties.

Cellophane coated with PVDC (Saran) is tougher than ordinary cellophane. It is difficult to stretch these materials. They tear easily, become brittle, and shrink slightly owing to moisture, and continue to burn when withdrawn from a flame. Carbon disulphide with sulphuric acid is used in processing cellophane. Residual acid remains in cellophane. Although cellophane is the most static-free of all plastic films, it should not be used by philatelists and postal historians, due to chemical and moisture migration. Sulphur dioxide and sulphuric acid, used in the manufacturing process, migrate rapidly to any paper product in contact with them.

Glassine

Glassine, as its name implies, is glassy clear. It makes your stamps look better under its cover than they appear normally. Leave your 1¢ green Canadian stamps of the 1930-1940 era in a glassine envelope for a few months and you will find that they change colour dramatically. The green will appear bright blue in colour. Bend the stamp slightly and it will break into pieces. The chemical migration from glassine is severe. A WARNING to philatelists: Avoid glassine envelopes and any product made from glassine like the plague.

R H film (rubber hydrochloride) is not too common a film, but it is occasionally used for various products. Its acid and chemical migration is so bad that its use by philatelists should be avoided. Another consideration to remember is that many films have various coatings. These coatings are added in order to extend the use of the end product. Generally speaking, all coatings migrate, and any films with a coating should not be used.

Vinyl Films

PVC (polyvinylchloride) or PVDC (polyvinylidene chloride) are the names for the more common vinyl films. These films have severe deorientation and shrinkage characteristics, especially at higher temperatures. When the film is removed from a flame it is self extinguishing. The film tears easily and is generally made in thicker gauges. The clear film has either a bluish or yellowish tinge, depending on whether it is a PVC or PVDC based film.

This material, when used as sheet protectors, is heavy and undesirable. Furthermore, inks on stamps or covers migrate rapidly to the plastic surface, creating an image on the plastic. One of the decomposition products in these films is hydrochloric acid. Both films are prone to changes from heat, pressure and humidity that assist in reverting the film to an acidic base. The plasticizers used in manufacturing these films migrate rapidly.

Vinyl films are destructive and should be avoided. PVC plastic products are commonly sold for the storage of stamps, covers, postcards, first day covers, and sheet protectors. The degradation of the plastic, even in a short time, emits hydrochloric acid gasses. The film reacts to many inks, particularly gravure printing inks, ball pen inks, felt tip pens, and typewriter inks. The damage PVC products cause is astronomical. It is regrettable that such products made from PVC are offered to collectors. Be wise. Avoid them.

Polyester Film

Polyethylene terephthalate or polyester film was created in the 1950s.
Philatelists know this film best under the Dupont trade name Mylar. Mylar is created by adding ethylene glycol to terephthalic acid. The result is a very strong, inert, dimensionally stable film that is very clear and can be made in very thin gauges.

There are many grades of Mylar, but the one product acceptable for conservation and philatelic uses is Mylar Type D. An excellent moisture barrier and light in weight, it is available in gauges as thin as 1 or 2 mils. It has a sharp clarity and a smooth surface, with a slight clinging characteristic that enables light, thin gauges to be used as sheet protectors, stamp mounts, and other philatelic products. These characteristics make it an ideal material for philatelists, postal historians, and conservationists.

Another polyester film is Mellinex Type O. It is uncoated, biaxially oriented, with a polished finish and a good optical brilliance. Mellinex is manufactured by the International Chemical Company (ICI) of England. This film is very similar to Mylar and is also recommended.

Some suppliers of Mylar Type D sheet protectors, envelopes, pouches, mounting sleeves, and other products are:

Acrylic Plastic

Polymethylmethacrylate is a clear acrylic sheet. Some of the familiar trade names are Plexiglas, Perspex, Rohaglass, Lucite Acrylite. This material, with ultra-violet ray absorbers, is ideal for exhibitions or where a display of philatelic items is desired.

Plexiglas UF-1 is the grade recommended for use in Canada and the United States. It is strong, light in weight, and is many times less breakable than glass. The ultra-violet absorbers eliminate or greatly reduce the amount of transmitted ultra-violet radiation.

Plexiglas UF-3 is another grade that is even more effective, but it has a noticeable yellow tint. Some brands of acrylic sheet available in Canada do not have ultra-violet absorbers and are therefore not as desirable.

The negative aspects of acrylic plastics are their cost, which is higher than glass, its susceptibility to scratching, and its tendency to pick up and hold electrostatic charges. Dry atmosphere and rubbing during cleaning aggravate the latter tendency.

Lucite SAR is treated with a coating that reduces marring and scratch marks. Do not clean acrylic sheets with cleaners containing ammonia or alcohol as they will cause crazing of the material. A solution of 90% water and 10% isopropyl alcohol is useful for cleaning. Care should be taken to rub the plastic as little as possible.

Polycarbonate

Lexan 9034 is a polycarbonate with ultra-violet absorbers. Another type of polycarbonate is Lexan Margard MR-5000. It is the same unbreakable material, but has a mar-resistant coating.

Polyethylene

This is a chemically stable, highly flexible, transparent or translucent plastic. Solvents are used in manufacturing many types of polyethylene. Most often, they are used to apply coatings to the film. They are very difficult to remove and cause problems for the philatelist. One antioxidant often used in polyethylene is butylated hydroxytoluene. This additive will turn paper to a yellow colour. It is important and wise to avoid films with additives when using them for philatelic purposes.

The collector is well advised not to use polyethylene, although in fairness we must note that polyethylene film without additives will cause no great harm to stamps over long periods. Due to the difficulty of manufacturing polyethylene without additives it is seldom available commercially.

Polypropylene

This is a stiff, heat resistant, chemically stable plastic. Archival polypropylene is a special film produced for use in museums, and is available from archival supply houses. Its application for philatelic related uses would be very limited.

Polycarbonate

The philatelist will find very few, if any, uses for this plastic. It is used mostly in moulding drinking glasses, and other applications where strength is required. It is also a fairly expensive type of plastic.

Polyvinyl Acetate

Also commonly referred to as PVA, Polyvinyl acetate is colourless and transparent. It is used very often for adhesives. While there are dozens of different PVA adhesives, only those that are ‘internally plasticized’ are suitable for conservation purposes. Acetate, particularly in sheet form, absorbs moisture and gases. Even though not recommended for sheet protectors and transparent envelopes, it is quite superior to polyvinylchloride sheets.

Cellulose Acetate

This is the film commonly used for industrial and commercial sheet protectors, overlays in draughting, overhead drawings, and similar uses. It is economical, clear, easy to cut, and practical.
For the stamp collector wanting protection for the long term, it is not recommended. The plasticizers used in its manufacture on an economical basis are harmful to papers and stamps.

Triacetate

Known as TRIA, this is probably second only to polyester as the best film for philatelic purposes. Because of price and availability, it is seldom sold commercially for use in film products.

Polystyrene

Polystyrene based plastics are cause for concern due to the monomer styrene being emitted by the plastic. It acts as a solvent on certain types of inks. Many modified styrene plastics are made up to 50% styrene monomer, the balance being other monomers or copolymers. Most polystyrenes are moulded or extruded. The material is noted for its light weight, good dimensional stability, brilliant clarity, odourlessness, and resistance to most chemicals. This plastic will be of little use to the philatelist, other than for containers.

Kodacel

The Eastman Kodak Company of Rochester makes an acetate based plastic material known by the trade name Kodacel. It is available in clear plastic mounting strips with an adhesive on the back.

It is an excellent material for channel mounting strips in exhibition frames. The strips come in lengths and can be cut to size with scissors. Exhibition pages can be mounted on them, and are easily removed from the mounting strip channel. Kodacel strips are available from Impressions Inc., 439 Monroe Ave., Rochester, New York 14607.

Kenneth Campbell prepared and partially wrote this series before he passed away suddenly in August 1989. Mr. James E. Kraemer has completed the series from Mr. Campbell’s research notes.
Express Post: Since several of our Owners and Buyers began to use Express Post, we requested the Executive of our Society to ascertain whether we are covered for losses when using it. We discovered that the insurance covers "services which acknowledge receipt and provide for signatures to be obtained on delivery." This means that both 'green' and 'red' registration is acceptable, and all the courier and parcel services, but NOT Express Post.

Nickel Boxes: We have discovered that Nickel Boxes look too depleted to send out again after forty dollar's worth of stamps have been sold, so we are sending them home. However, owners are encouraged to fill them up again and send them back. With a new bag and fresh labels the expensive stock sheets can be used again and again.

As we expected, the mixed Nickel Boxes are not selling as well as those in which the owner has kept to one country or collecting area. And the reason is as follows: We feel we cannot send a nickel box out unless at least nine pages of the twelve are on the interest list of the recipients, so the mixed ones are going to Chapters only. Since fully half of our sales are to members who ask for Direct Circuits and their interest lists are usually short.

Number of Books in Circuits: Our regular books are getting fatter and heavier, we think for two reasons. We raised the minimum value, and also, more of our Owners are using stamp mounts. So, due to size and weight restrictions, there are fewer books in the circuits nowadays. But we think that there are as many stamps as ever, especially those big circuits which often contain a nickel box.
