A WORKING HOLIDAY

Over the past fifteen years I have often been asked to act as a judge at shows across southern Ontario. Less often I am asked to travel a little farther. Such an occasion occurred in early April, when the Lakeshore Stamp Club of Montreal asked me to serve on the jury of LAKE-SHORE 95.

I have often maintained that the social aspect of organized philately is as important as the stamps. This trip was a good example. Ray and Marj Ireson offered three nights in their home, and I was made to feel like a member of the family. Many club members renewed acquaintances, remembering me from my last visit about a decade ago. Ray and I are both former bankers, and I was fascinated by Ray's stories about his career with the Royal Bank in the Caribbean and South America. My own banking experience at small town Ontario branches was quite different!

The Lakeshore Club is one of the larger local clubs in Canada, and a number of advanced and distinguished philatelists are among its members. This fact presents problems to the jury. Exhibits at the club show can range from the first efforts of novices to those of national and even international calibre. How should such a show be judged?

I think the best way is to expand the range of evaluation to reflect the range in the quality of exhibits. That is, standards become higher with each medal level, so that a gold at Lakeshore (or similar show) is equivalent to a gold at a national level show. This way, the show is still open to new exhibitors while still recognizing the achievements of advanced collectors.

I sensed that show organizers are also wrestling with this problem. Although Lakeshore could easily be elevated to a national level show, several club members are strongly opposed because they fear it would be less inviting to new exhibitors and those with no ambition to move to the higher level.

The Lakeshore Club has been running a course on exhibiting. One of the products of this course, Michael Rixon, put together an eye-popping exhibit of Small Queens that captured the top award. This is an outstanding achievement for someone who has never exhibited before. I was pleased to see that his exhibit captured the Reserve Grand at ROYALE 95 ROYAL at Quebec City in May.

Although only a handful of clubs in Canada have the depth and breadth of expertise of the Lakeshore Club, most local clubs have at least a couple of seasoned exhibitors who could run a brief course in exhibiting. There are books and articles on exhibiting, but nothing can match the guidance of an exhibitor who has learned the techniques of philatelic presentation on the exhibition floor. I hope to see other clubs offer courses in exhibiting over the next few years.

My editor's visor went with me to Montreal, and I succeeded in lining up some feature articles for future issues. All in all, the trip to Montreal was both enjoyable and productive, and a very pleasant and welcome change from my usual daily routine.

DON'T FORGET THE PHILATELIST

The fall exhibition season will soon be upon us. As editor, I like to give as much coverage as possible to club shows and significant local philatelic events. We have no reporters, so I must rely totally on news submissions and photographs from the clubs themselves. When your local show is over, don't forget to send a brief story and a picture if possible. Not all club executive members are members of the Royal, so don't assume that the show chairman will submit an account of your show. Remind them to send me a report, or better still, why not write it up yourself?

One of the purposes of this journal is to spread ideas. If your show has introduced a new event or activity, be sure to mention it in your show report. Clubs are always looking for something new to make their local shows more appealing. If an activity works for you, other clubs will be very interested in reading about it. I look forward to hearing from you.
CANADIAN REVENUES

Want a change? Take up Canadian Revenues. Here is the situation. Just about every dealer has a box of these that can be picked up reasonably. All auctions have collections and accumulations, and tremendous bargains are fairly normal, and even when prices look high you usually wind up with stamps that exist not in the hundreds or thousands but in 10 and 50!

Best of all, consider this:

NOT ONE CANADIAN REVENUE STAMP WAS EVER ISSUED WITH COLLECTORS IN MIND!

As I’ve pointed out before, nearly all come engraved (mostly the work of The American Bank Note Company) and if you think the 50¢ Canada Bluenose or the $1 U.S.A. Trans-Mississippi are the height of beautiful engraving, wait till you see any of the Canada Supreme Court Law Stamps.

Here is an excellent start. I recently purchased 100 packets of 200 different from a dealer who spent several years assembling the lot. Now a packet of 100 different sells at $25 or more every time. This 200 lot is well worth $100.00.

To it I’m adding more revenues, including complete sets well worth $100.00 alone.

THE COMBINED LOT JUST $100.00 US ($120.00 Cdn.)

The best and only Canadian revenue Catalog on the market is by E.S.J. van Dam. I’ll have the latest edition just coming out for $20.00. It has the easy to use spiral binding.

I have two addresses. If you live in the U.S.A. ALWAYS use the Pembina address. For Canadian collectors, there has been a change in my Canadian address. The old Station B, which I’ve used for 57 years, is no more. The old Station B Post Office, built before 1900, has been retired. All else remains the same, except the replacement for Station B. This is now RPO REDWOOD CENTRE.

ROYALE 1995 ROYAL

All who attended the Royal's 1995 Convention and Exhibition in Quebec City from May 26 to 28 are offering glowing reports on the show and the various activities associated with it. Hosted by La Société Philatélique de Québec, the show offered 174 frames of competitive exhibits, several of which are destined for CAPEX 96 next year. The bourse consisted 26 dealers from across Canada.

There were a half dozen meetings of philatelic societies, as well as the RPSC Annual Meeting and Directors Meetings. Show organizers also scheduled four seminars during the show.

Top prize winner was J.C. Arnell, who captured both the Grand Award and the Postal History Award. Michael Rixon, a newcomer to national-level exhibiting, received the Reserve Grand Award. The Youth Reserve Grand Award went to Louis-Martin Fadous. Charles J.G. Verge of Ottawa headed the jury, assisted by Jean-Guy Dalpé of Boucherville, Clark Grierson of Ottawa, Grégoire Teysseier of Charny, and Harry Sutherland of Toronto. Jean-François Hardy of Cap-Rouge served as apprentice. The literature was evaluated by Charles Verge, Harry Sutherland and Grégoire Teysseier.

The Canadian Philatelist
KENNETH ROWE TO SIGN ROLL

The Board of Election of the Roll of Distinguished Philatelists recently announced that five philatelists have been invited to sign the Roll at a ceremony scheduled for October 1995.

Among the new names is that of Kenneth Rowe of Toronto. He is well known for his Postal History of the Forwarding Agents and The Postal History of the Canadian Contingents in the Anglo-Boer War; for his exhibits at the national and international levels, and as a judge.

Mr. Rowe has been a key figure in organized philately in Canada for several decades. He served as Executive Secretary for CAPEX 78 and CAPEX 87, and is the Chairman of CAPEX 96. At present he is President of the Vincent Graves Green Philatelic Research Foundation. Mr. Rowe has been a Fellow of the RPSC for many years.

The Roll is the world's top philatelic honour. Since it was established in 1921, some 250 philatelists have been invited to sign the Roll. Harry Sutherland is the only other living Canadian to have achieved this distinction.

Joining Mr. Rowe at the signing ceremony will be Robert Francon of France, Charles Goodwyn and Francis Kiddie of Great Britain, and Fratz-Caspar Moldenhauer of Norway.

NEW DEFINITIVE HANDBOOK
John G. Schmidt, familiar to readers of this journal through his "Definitives/Timbres Courants" column, has compiled a specialized listing of all Canadian definitive issues from 1972 to 1994. The survey lists perforations (in decimal format), stamp sizes, printing methods, sheet sizes, formats, plate numbers, and first days. The handbook, 98 pages long, is issued in looseleaf form, and punched for a standard 3-ring binder.

This publication is a valuable aid to anyone seriously interested in the definitive stamps of the post-Centennial era.

The book is available for $18.95 with a binder, or $14.95 for the pages only, plus $3.00 shipping, from Saskatoon Stamp Centre, Box 1870, Saskatoon, SK S7K 3S2.

EIRE PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION
Collectors of the stamps and postal history of Ireland will find the Eire Philatelic Association to be a useful organization. This is a worldwide society. It publishes a quarterly journal and conducts frequent mail auctions of Irish material. The Association holds regional meetings and maintains a library of reference material for the use of members.

The EPA recently awarded its Thomas Field Award to Otto Jung of Germany, for his research on the subject of Irish postal stationery which has culminated in a 270-page handbook, published in 1994.

Information on the Association is available from the Secretary, Michael J. Conway, 74 Woodside Circle, Fairfield, CT 06430 USA.

MAIL EARLY FOR SUMMER
As we go to press the federal Cabinet has approved a two cent increase in the first class letter rate to 45¢, to go into effect on August 1.

Canada Post Corporation had applied for the increase in October 1994, and apparently had anticipated a quick approval of the new rate. Uncertainty about the date of confirmation forced Canada Post into issuing the Flag, Golf, and Fort Louisbourg issues without denominations.

Citing operating losses of 69 million dollars in the last fiscal year, Canada Post officials requested the increase to put the lid on the red ink bottle.

Taking current exchange rates into account, the new 45¢ rate is very close to the new American 32¢ rate, but when three cents of GST is added, the cost of mailing a letter here is higher than in the republic to the south.

The rate increase will require a new batch of stamps in sheet form plus the various booklet configurations now available. No details of these designs were available at press time.

In the meantime, better stock up on 2¢ definitives to use with your old stamps.

POTASH CORP ADS USE STAMPS
The Potash Corporation of Saskatchewan (PCS) is the latest company to join the list of those using stamps in their promotions. A recent ad, appearing in the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix and elsewhere, shows a simulated stamp with a globe made of postage stamps as the central image, along with the slogan, "Growing Global Opportunities."

PCS is the world's largest potash producer, and a major global supplier of potash and phosphates for agricultural fertilizers.

PIPEX '95 IN VICTORIA, BC
On June 2, 3, and 4 Victoria's four local stamp clubs hosted PIPEX '95, the 55th Pacific International Stamp Exhibition. The show was sponsored by the Northwest Federation of Stamp Clubs. The show's theme was "Pacific Rim Philately."

There was much to interest the collectors and visitors to the show. As well as an impressive array of 45 competitive exhibits, including five juniors, in 174 frames, the program included seminars and meetings of a number of specialist societies. There was also an excellent walking tour of Victoria's Chinatown.

Canada Post supported the show with a special unveiling of one of the new golf stamps, featuring the world famous Victoria Golf Club. Special cancels, illustrated above, were in use on each day of the show.

Attendees at the sold-out banquet were treated to a talk on "Canadian Pacific Steamships - 1890s to 1950s" by local transportation historian Robert L. Turner, Curator Emeritus of the Royal British Columbia Provincial Museum. Show organizers are grateful to Beautiful B.C. magazine (via club member Heather Kochems) and to Jutta Montifort of Lighthouse Publications for numerous prize donations. All in all, an outstanding show in every respect.

Grand Award: John M. Wallace (British Columbia and Vancouver Island); Reserve Grand Award: Phillip J. Stager (Aliments of Venus).

Participation in all classes is free of charge, although National Federations may have fees to cover administrative or handling and transportation expenses. WORLDWIDE STAMP COLLECTORS
In these times of increasing specialization among collectors, there are still those who prefer the challenges and rewards of a worldwide collection. The International Society of Worldwide Stamp Collectors, with 1000 members in more than 50 countries, assists these collectors in deriving the maximum enjoyment from philately by collecting stamps from around the world.

The ISWSC recently honoured a Canadian with its Youth Merit Award. The winner is Sarah Funk of Edmonton, who showed a topical exhibit, “The Rain Forest,” at the Edmonton Spring Show. The exhibit used worldwide stamps in a very effective way. This is the first time a Canadian has won this award.

Information on membership in the ISWSC is available from the Canadian Secretary, William Sylvester, 378C Cotlow Rd., Victoria, BC V8C 2G1.

FDR REMEMBERED BY APS
During his terms as President of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt enjoyed relaxing with his stamps, and was known as America’s number one stamp collector. As President he took an active role in the U.S. stamp issuing program. He combined his interests in philately and conservation by pushing forward the Federal Duck Stamp Program.

Roosevelt died on April 12, 1945. The American Philatelic Society, of which Roosevelt was a life member, marked the 50th anniversary of his death with a tree planting ceremony at the APS headquarters, State College, Pennsylvania, on March 10. The tree planting coincided with the SCOPEX 95 show.

The young trees planted were grown from seeds collected from trees that Roosevelt himself planted at Hyde Park, his estate in New York State.

STAMP MONTH CONTEST WINNERS
Winners of the Return of Tommy Tricker Contest, conducted by Canada Post during the 1994 Stamp Month, were selected at a draw at La Maison de la Poste in Montreal on January 27. More than 81,000 entries were received for the contest.

The Canadian Philatelist
There were three grand prizes, consisting of a trip for four to the Cook Islands. These went to Wendy Wok of North Vancouver, Bill Spencer of Toronto, and Naomi Boylan, also of Toronto. Secondary prizes of 50 Stamp Travellers' Club Official Membership Kits and 200 Mammoth Fun Packs were also awarded.

LAKESHORE '95

Visitors to LAKESHORE 95, held at Dorval on April 7 to 9, were treated to a fine showing of philatelic items. This is the largest of the Montreal area club shows and it attracted a good crowd from a wide geographic area.

The Lakeshore Club is anxious to bring new people into the hobby and particularly to organized philately. An information table offered help and advice for collectors, and there were free packets of stamps to young collectors.

The jury consisted of Patrick Campbell of Pierrefonds, Steve Thorning of Eiora, Leon Balian of Pointe-Claire, and Ray Ireson of Roxboro. The Best in Show Award went to Michael Rixon. Medal awards were as follows:

Gold: Michael Rixon (Six and Two Cent Small Queens of 1872); Graham Locke (Great Britain: The Jubilee Issue of 1887-1900).

Vermeil: Richard Thompson (Four Ring Numeral Cancels); Jacques Charron (Les émissions du district postal de l’Allemagne du Nord, 1868-1871); Wally Gutzman (Toronto Postal Markings, 1880-1910); Peter McCarthy (Canadian Railway Postal Cancellations); Roger Gagnon (Strange Flights); Yvon Lussier (Fires: Natural and Man-made).

Silver: Lew Waller (Waterfall Postmarks); “Aquarius” (The Newfoundland Fishery).

Silver-Bronze: Harold Gordon (Palestine — The Picture Set).

Bronze: Fred Tabah (The Fifty-Cent Postage Stamps of Canada); Les Herman (The British Empire Revisited—Sixty Years Later).

Junior Awards went to Marie-Eve Cyr, Emeline Cyr, and Emmanuelle Cyr. In the Court of Honour were frames by Léon Balian (Egypt, 1871-1881); Ray Ireson (Search for “El Dorado”); and David Nickson (Australia George V). The attractive show cover (illustrated in our last issue) commemorated the end of World War II.

WHITNEY L. BRADLEY, 1921-1995

Whitney L. Bradley, a leading expert on the 1898 Canadian Map Stamp of 1898, passed away recently in Waterloo. His research into this stamp culminated in the publication of The Canadian Map Stamp of 1898: A Plating Study, published in 1989.

Mr. Bradley was born in Thorold, Ontario, and graduated from the University of Toronto in Civil Engineering in 1944. Following service with the Royal Canadian Engineers, he was employed as a city engineer by Waterloo and Kitchener. He was Chief Administrative Officer of the Region of Waterloo at the time of his retirement in 1980.

The Map Stamp was a lifelong fascination with Mr. Bradley. He was the founder of the Map Stamp Study Group of BNAPS, and was active in the Kitchener-Waterloo Philatelic Society, Kiwanis, and professional engineering associations.

Mr. Bradley is survived by his wife, four children, and nine grandchildren. His many friends will miss his genial personality.

REMEMBRANCE DAY SLOGAN
Collectors of ink jet spray markings are scrambling to get copies of the slogan markings coming from the Winnipeg Mail Processing Plant. Several issues ago we published the D-Day slogan produced by machine No. 076. The above, courtesy of member George Yarkie of Englehart, is the 1994 Remembrance Day slogan, produced by machine No. 077 on 10 November 1994.

IMPROVEMENTS TO SCOTT CLASSIC
The Scott Publishing Company will be making changes to the 1996 edition of the Scott Classic Catalogue. The most significant addition is pricing for 19th century stamps on cover for U.S., B.N.A., Great Britain, France, and the German and Italian areas.

Reflecting the additional information, the title is changing to the Scott Classic Specialized Catalogue. Eventually the publisher hopes to include additional information and more minor listings, such as paper, perforation, and shade varieties.

This catalogue, which lists worldwide stamps issued between 1840 and 1940, first appeared last year. According to the publisher, it has been very well received by the philatelic community.

HAWAIIAN COLLECTION ON BLOCK
The world famous Honolulu Advertiser Collection of Hawaiian stamps and postal history is to be broken up and sold at auction. The Smithsonian Institution had been negotiating for a decade with the Twigg-Smith family, owners of the stamps and until 1993 of the Honolulu newspaper, to add the stamps to the Smithsonian’s collection.

The deal collapsed when Congress refused to grant the Twigg-Smith family an $8,000,000 tax break.

The collection includes a number of historically significant items, as well as rare philatelic gems. Estimates of the value of the collection range from $8 million to $15 million.

The Hawaiian collection will be sold in November by Robert A. Siegel Auctions of New York City.

NEW BOOKS FROM BENDON
Several new volumes of specialized philatelic literature have appeared under the imprint of James Bendon Ltd. Among them are Ordinary Mail by Diplomatic Means during the Siege of Paris by Ernst M. Cohn, Philatelic Atlas of the Ottoman Empire by Andreas Birken, and Transvaal: Revenue and Telegraph Stamps by Alan R. Drysdall.

Although expensive, Bendon’s books are usually definitive works in their subject areas. The printing and binding of the volumes is of a very high standard.

James Bendon Ltd. can be reached at P.O. Box 6484, 3307 Limassol, Cyprus; or by fax at +357 5 311 228.

JEAN TALON POSTMARK

The French Post Office honoured Jean Talon (1625-1694), the first Intendant of New France, with a very attractive cancel used at the Châlons-sur-Marne Gare post office. The cancel marked the tricentennial of Talon’s death. It was in use from October to December 1994.

In the March/April issue the editor published information on the major changes to the Canadian Postal Archives.

Betty H. Kidd, Director of the Visual and Sound Archives Division of the National Archives, has provided considerable detail regarding the new organization in a recent letter. She advises that “the National Archives is introducing a “single window” for all researchers interested in any type of records held by the institution. This single window will be operated from the third floor, 395 Wellington Street. All users, including philatelic researchers, will commence their research in this location. From this access point, the philatelic researcher can consult data bases and finding aids, refer to the most highly used books on philately, and request other philatelic books and periodicals which are located only one floor above in closed stacks.”

It would be interesting to find out how many philatelic books and periodicals will be located at the “single window” for reference, and how long it will take for “other philatelic books and periodicals” to be retrieved from the closed stacks on the 4th floor of 395 Wellington Street. If this can be done within a few minutes, such consultation may be practical—but I doubt if this will happen with recently reduced staff. How practical will it be for many visitors to come back a day or more later?

Betty Kidd also says that “Enquiries—oral or written—for which information cannot be located in the sources available in this area are referred to the Philatelic Acquisition and Research Section of the Visual and Sound Archives Division. If consultation of original materials is necessary, this is then arranged through the reference officers, Staff of the Custody of Holdings Division, Archives Preservation Branch, will ensure that the records are safely transported to a consultation area—usually 395 Wellington Street—or in some instances, because of various factors relating to the records, consultation may take place in other areas including storage areas.” This procedure may not be feasible for many of us who are only in Ottawa for short periods.

She has not answered my enquiry regarding viewing of the National Philatelic Collections, including such items as the British North American Bank Note Co. Archives.

Authority and responsibility for the functions previously vested in the Canadian Postal Archives have been separated to the extent that no one manager now exercises control over these functions. While Cimon Morin remains as Section Chief responsible for “the acquisition of, description of and specialized public service to philatelic materials,” he “has one full-time person reporting to him as well as contract personnel and students for project work.” In addition, Mr. Morin has been on leave to complete a second supplement to his Bibliography of Canadian Philately.

What can he and the single remaining full-time person achieve in the assigned areas? I and many others are deeply concerned.

The Canadian Philatelist
RPSC PREPARING FOR CAPEX

CAPEX 96 will be the largest and most significant stamp show ever held in Canada. It will be an opportunity to showcase Canadian philately, and it will present some of the world’s rarest and most intriguing stamps, collections, and postal artifacts.

What CAPEX 96 must also do is promote the ROYAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY OF CANADA. This show will provide a golden opportunity for the world to witness and join the RPSC.

Michael Nowlan has agreed to look after the Royal’s booth at CAPEX 96, but he will need the help of other RPSC members. If you have ideas or suggestions, Michael wants to hear from you. He will also need volunteers from the directors and membership to assist at the Royal’s booth during the show. If there are enough volunteers, the term of duty will involve a commitment of a mere two or three hours promoting the RPSC.

There will be more about CAPEX 96 in the next issue. In the meantime, let Michael Nowlan know your ideas on how we can make the best of this opportunity. Write to him directly at 514 Gardiner Street, Oromocto, NB E2V 1G3.

OFFICIAL CAPEX HOTEL

The official hotel for CAPEX 96 will be The Crowne Plaza Toronto Centre. This hotel is connected to the Metropolitan Toronto Convention Centre, where the show will be held. The special CAPEX rate is $135.00 per night, single or double occupancy. Suites are also available.

It is wise to reserve a room as soon as possible. Write to the hotel at 225 Front Street West, Toronto, ON M5V 2X3, or call (416) 597-1400. There is also a toll-free number: (800) 422-7969. When reserving a room, be sure to request the CAPEX 96 rate.

ARE YOU A BEAVER CLUB MEMBER?

Visitors to CAPEX 96 should consider a Beaver Club membership. In addition to receiving all the bulletins, program information and the Catalogue and Palmares, a Beaver Club member also receives a season ticket to the show. Beaver Club members avoid the line-ups at the entrance with the privilege of the Members Only entrance. Members have access to the Beaver Club Lounge, a private restaurant and bar. As with past CAPEX shows, members also receive limited edition collectibles and souvenirs. A membership costs $100.00. To enroll, send a cheque payable to CAPEX 96 to CAPEX (’, Box 204, Station Q, Toronto, ON M4T 2M1.
Two letters arrived recently bearing an unusual marking, "Mailed After Cut Off Time" in two lines and struck in blue ink. Can anyone explain what this means?

The 43-cent coil has now been found with a hibrite paper that is even brighter than the famous six-cent orange Centennial stamp. The tagging shows a slightly less intensive yellow than some of the earlier 43c stamps.

An interesting but minor variety has been located on the 40-cent Christmas stamp of 1991, Scott 1339. Santa’s white sleeve on the left side has a reddish brown line through it at the bottom of the sleeve. This variety may have been caused by a damaged photo subject.

The Moncton, NB precancels of Style 2 come in two different overprints. Two different overprinting plates were used for this town. The difference can be noted by looking closely at the first "N" of "MONCTON". The first plate shows the sloping stroke of the N not fully meeting the upright stroke at the bottom. The second plate has these lines meeting at the bottom. In addition, the opening of the "C" is 0.5 mm on the first plate, and about 0.45 mm on the second one.

The idea of controlled mail is not new. Stamps on such mailings are returned to the sender. Take, for example, the very nice Canadian art stamps, which are not used by very many people and when they are used, they disappear into the garbage can after use. Under controlled conditions these stamps would be kept. Special cleanly cancels can be used for such controlled mail.

We now hear that countries such as Germany allow the nicely cancelled stamps to be enclosed in an envelope, with the envelop to be attached to the mail. In that way the stamps remain in good condition. Once the stamps are cancelled, the authorities do not care if they are directly attached to the piece of mail or not as long as they have been purchased and properly cancelled for the particular mailing.

For the update of the Canada Precancel Catalogue, a question: Does Perth 2-183 exist? If anyone knows the whereabouts of a copy of this precancel, kindly let the editor know.

Neudruck and Nachdruck
The terms Neudruck and Nachdruck may need explanation to some collectors. These words, along with the terms Reprint and Official Reprint, are often mentioned in catalogues. Large numbers of stamps from various countries have been produced by these processes.

A book published in 1906, Handbook of All Known Neudrucke of Government Stamps, Stationery and Essays with Their Characteristics, written and published by P. Ohrt of Dusseldorf, is the basis for what follows.

The definition of the term Neudruck was clarified by the Germania Ring of the German Society for Collectors in 1901. One can define a Neudruck as follows:

A Neudruck is any new printing of a stamp, in any colour, which is manufactured using the original die, and printed after the use and printing for postal purposes of the original stamp has been satisfied, and after a replacement design has been accepted and is in production. The old stamp need not be made invalid for postal purposes.
The original die is of course the one that must be used for the manufacture of the Neudruck stamps. In Europe this die is known as the Stempel. If there are small differences from the original die, or even the replacement of worn portions of the die, the printed stamp constitutes not a Neudruck but a Nachdruck.

Neudruck stamps can also exist with colours different from the original stamp. Even when the reprinted stamps were produced as essays, they still remain Neudruck stamps.

The definition, "after the use and printing for postal purposes," needs to be clarified. Before Neudruck stamps could be issued, all old stamp remaining in the inventory had to be used up. This could take many months after the replacement issue had appeared.

Neudruck stamps were valid for postage even when the original stamps still retained their postal validity. The Neudruck stamp was sold at face value, the same as the original stamp, to avoid defrauding the post office. Neudruck stamps can be found postally used. For example, the Prussian Neudruck stamps were used by a stamp dealer for franking his mail. In France, Neudruck stamps of Napoleon could be used as valid postage. There was no loss to the post office.

With the term Nachdruck, the important characteristic is that a new die was prepared to copy the original die, but with slight variations.

For example, the first United States stamps, issued in 1847, were late reprinted by a Nachdruck process by making changes to the original die design.

Some Neudruck stamps were produced by private people, not the government. These come from original dies that were sold to firms and individuals, often with permission to use. Even so, Neudruck stamps were often released without the knowledge of the authorities. These may be classified as Private Neudruck, but they were still produced from the original die.

Neudruck stamps were at first shunned by collectors, because they were sold as in mint condition. There was once a suspicion the mint stamps, particularly of rarer issues, were forgeries. This charge was overplayed to a large extent, since any fake stamps have certain characteristics that readily distinguish them from the originals.

Most Neudruck stamps were issued in limited quantities, and dealers soon recognized this fact. For example, Antigua No. 1 has a value of several thousand dollars, but the Neudruck version may cost only about twenty dollars. A dealer would need to sell plenty of them to equal the profit on one original stamp. With these circumstances, it is no wonder that collectors became suspicious of the Neudruck printings when they first appeared on the market.

UNDER THE HAMMER

.... with Dean Mario

The stamp market continues to be strong. Quality, specialized sales are as popular as ever. Victoria Stamp Company's first public auction of selected Commonwealth material was held on March 20-21 and was a resounding success. Tempting seldom-seen items from the Harry Whitin "Keyplate," "Derby" British America, and Reid Shaw Falkland Islands collections were offered to an eager audience and postal bidders.

Shaw's Falkland material was an impressive array of philatelic rarities. Lot 66 contained an 1891 1d Red Brown Victoria strip of three on cover to England (one stamp having the half-penny surcharge on bisected). Estimated at $2000, it sold for $2420 (prices include the 10% buyer's fee). One of the scarcest of Falkland Island cancels, the parcel roller on cover, was offered in lot 192 and was estimated at $2500. Until 1985, when this cover was discovered, no examples of this cancel had been known on cover. It went to a new home for $2090. This is a choice cover.

Many of the more familiar and attractive Falkland 1933 Centenary Issue stamps were also offered for sale. The 5/- Black and Yellow-Orange King Penguin in mint LH condition (lot 406) was estimated at $800 and sold for $935. A registered cover to Switzerland with this issue attached (lot 408) sold for $1100, lower than its $1750 estimate. A used £1 Black and Carmine King George V single was purchased for $1375 against a $1250 estimate.

The "Derby" British America collection also held some beautiful surprises. A mint Bahamas 1916 5d Queen's Staircase with the Special Delivery double overprint, one inverted variety (only 120 exist) was illustrated in colour on the front page of the sale catalogue (lot 1405). Estimated at the 1994 Stanley Gibbons value of £950, it sold for £715. Lot 1632 had a scarce Grenada tête bêche mint pair of the surcharged 1892 2d on 6d Victoria Postage Due Issue (with rough perfs). The pair sold for $1375 although only estimated at $600. Two amazing Leeward Island rarities could be found in lots 1685 and 1686. Each contained a different mint NH error of the 1938-51 £1 Black and Violet King George VI Issue. Only 60 of each error exist. Lot 1685 featured a margin copy with its watermark sideways. It sold for $3080 against a Stanley Gibbons value of £2500. Lot 1686 had an example with the watermark inverted. Estimated at $1500, it found a willing buyer at $2530.

The Harry Whitin Keyplate collection was a wonderful study of rare and unusual printings of Bermuda, Leeward Islands, Malta, and Nyasaland issues. Lot 782 contained a 1920 Bermuda 2/- King George V Ultramarine and Violet mint single with the watermark reversed error (only 60 copies known). Estimated at $750, it reached $1375.

Another rare item, a complete sheet (only 112 printed) of the Bermuda 2/- King George VI 1940 Reprint in lot 1062, was estimated at $5000. Spirited bidding saw it close at $7150.

Very few Canadian lots were offered in this first public sale. Nevertheless, lot 1568, a 1969 Queen Elizabeth II Centennial part imperf coil of four, was still desirable. It sold for $209 and was estimated at $250.

Although Victoria Stamp Company has offered collectors quality items from the British Empire exclusively since 1962, this was its first public auction. Given the quality of these collections offered, and the firm's superbly illustrated catalogue, future sales participation by all collectors of this material would be highly recommended. The firm can be contacted at P.O. Box 745, Ridgewood, New Jersey 07451, USA, by telephone at (201) 652-7283 or fax at (201) 612-0024.

The Canadian Philatelist
Another year of philately and we have another set of four stamps, this time depicting the closing phases of World War II. Rather a forerunner of the 50th anniversary celebrations on May 8. It is surprising that Canada Post Corporation didn't issue a stamp specifically for that occasion.

Also appearing are two more architectural stamps: Yorktown Courthouse and the Provincial Normal School at Truro. As I have said before, the designs are a little stiff, but they carry out, or continue, the theme established with previous issues in the series. Perhaps we should have started this Commentary with the Christmas set, but I really find them rather dull. They are predominantly blue, which is not a Christmas colour, and the brighter colours seem like an afterthought. Even the word "Canada" seems frail. The faces give one the feeling that the choristers are having an internal problem. Perhaps 1995 will bring a design that is more cheerful.

The new 88-cent Art Canada stamp is certainly cheerful. Perhaps Pellam's work is a little above the average collector's idea of art, but having seen Pellam's first exhibition in Ottawa I have always been fascinated with his work. I wish I had one in my collection—a painting, that is. Getting a good used copy of this stamp is a problem.

Next we have the new Canadian flag, an attractive design, but where is the value? I'm told it is only for local use. The design is well balanced, except the word "Canada" could be a little more prominent.

And next we have Louisburg: an unusual approach to the subject to begin with, and again, no values. The panoramic view is very confusing, and perhaps photographs of the site might have given us a better picture. For anyone who has been to Louisburg the stamps are not much help, and the descriptions on the selvage are somewhat misleading. Perhaps individual views of the fortress and town would have been better. One possible source might be Canada: An Historical Magazine (1974), or perhaps J.S. McLennan's Louisburg. No doubt the next set of stamps, land vehicles, will be more interesting.

The subject often comes up: Has stamp collecting changed? Only the other day, a collector I was chatting with recalled the days when the government issued a set of stamps from one cent to the dollar. Newfoundland issued a set showing the whole Royal Family. Not that many years ago, Canadian industry became subject material for stamp design, with issues every two to five years. Now everyone is on the bandwagon and in some quarters this flood of new issues is being frowned on. In 1988 the United States issued 87 22-cent stamps, and one of my correspondents called it quits! You can buy wallpaper by the roll! Probably our early issues are more interesting, such as the small queens, which were in use for over twenty years. Stamp production may be out of hand, but everybody is doing it.

MODERN PLATE BLOCK COLLECTING

All of my previous articles have concentrated on plate blocks issued prior to the Elizabethan Era. Their scarcity provide collectors with many challenges. Unfortunately, these older blocks are more expensive and difficult to find in perfect, never hinged condition.

Many plate block collectors concentrate on the modern plate blocks from 1953 onwards. There are as many challenges when one considers all the different papers, perforations and tagging variations. These blocks can easily be found in perfect, never hinged condition from most dealers and are quite reasonably priced. Many national dealers are advertising modern plate blocks (1953-1994) at either double face or 50%-off catalogue prices. There is more of a supply than a demand. The following is a very general and private outlook at modern plate block collecting. I will also try to address the negative comments that are being discussed in recent issues of this Journal.

Modern plate block collections have evolved over the last thirty years. Collectors either purchase matched sets or only one specific corner. Prior to the mid-sixties, plate block collectors would try to find all corners of every plate number. For example, they would attempt to collect all 607 positions of the War Issue. Their plate block collection would be their main collection and would occupy most of their time and efforts.

Most modern collectors still collect all four corners but this has become a second or third collection. Many now only collect one corner or a matched set of one plate number. With the increase in the number of stamps per year and the increase in face value of each stamp, this change gradually occurred for economic reasons. A second less obvious reason occurred with the issuance of the Centennial Issue from 1967 to 1972. Many a collector who only had a general collection, got involved with this issue and started collecting all of the paper varieties, perforation varieties and tagging varieties. This vast uncharted area helped create numerous study groups. Since all of us have limited time and resources for our hobby, something else had to be abandoned. Plate block collecting started declining, as well as other traditional collections, at the same time as many collectors got involved with the Centennial Issue. Increased interest for topicals also had a negative effect on plate block collecting.

Another change occurred with the purchasing habits of collectors during the mid-sixties, which helps explain the over-abundance of plate blocks on the market today. The Post Office started promoting the sale of matched sets and first-day covers through their subscription service, first in Ottawa, then eventually in Antigonish, Nova Scotia. More and more collectors were purchasing directly from Ottawa and less and less from local post offices and dealers. As small stamp stores began closing and philatelic counters witnessed reducing sales, the trend to purchase from Ottawa continued to increase. Did this change in purchasing habits have an effect in the closure of small stamp stores and philatelic counters in local post offices, or did these closures force more and more collectors to add their names to the subscriber's list?

One thing is certain. These closures cause the collector to loose the opportunity to discuss his passion with the only two persons that could help him, his local dealer and his regular postal clerk. When a collector looses interest, he looses enjoyment and may eventually abandon. The majority of collectors in Canada do not belong to a local club and are quite isolated with their collections.

Let's continue with my theory on how this shift in the purchasing pattern caused the over-abundance of plate blocks in the nineties. Many dealers and small-time accumulators never noticed this shift. They continued to purchase their regular stock and even increased their purchases due to the popularity of plate blocks in the fifties and also due to the popularity of the Centennial issue. They wrongly assumed that the plate block trend would increase and they never noticed that the peak years of the fifties and early sixties had been reached.

Accumulating matched sets looked like a good investment at the time. They came in neat little envelopes that were easy to store. A plate block was at least worth (and is still worth) 5 times the value of a single stamp, therefore creating a false profit on the date of purchase. There were numerous writers and dealers recommending the purchase of plate blocks for investments purposes. Many collectors got on the band wagon and put away sets and sets for resale in 15 or 20 years. The idea was a good one on paper but when thousands and thousands of people got the same idea disaster was just around the corner.

In the eighties, when they tried to sell these matched sets at catalogue value or with their regular discounts, they discovered that most collectors had maintained their collection through the philatelic service, or had changed their collecting habits and now specialized in the Centennial issue or were into topical collections.

Facing with substantial loss, they were (and are) forced to sell them “under-face” to the only purchasers available: auction houses, catalogue dealers or specific dealers who rent tables at large shows and re-sell these match sets at face or double-face, or use them for postage. The fact that most of these stamps are still in the original envelopes confirm to this writer that these do not come from serious collections but rather from these accumulations. I have never received so many nice Olympic stamps from the seventies as I am receiving on all of my correspondence from dealers and auction houses. Following same inquiries, it has been confirmed that these stamps have all been purchased recently “under-face” and are not from their regular inventory.

I personally feel that this surplus stock will eventually be used for postage and the market will correct itself. It is a good time to purchase modern plate blocks for your own collection, but not for investment purposes. They will never become so rare as to demand a premium. It is a bad time to sell a modern plate block collection since most dealers will only offer face or under-face as a postage lot. Hold on for now to allow this surplus stock to liquidate itself.

In summary, plate block collecting has decreased over the years for numerous reasons, some of which I have elaborated in this article. There are still thousands of collectors in small towns who are purchasing matched sets from the subscription service. To keep our hobby healthy, we have to reach these collectors and get them to join local stamp clubs.

If local clubs and journals can furnish more information on stamps, then the collectors will be more interested in learning about his hobby. The more he or she is interested the more he or she will enjoy the hobby. I strongly feel that it is better to discuss the positive aspects of our hobby rather than to try to find the specific causes of our decreasing membership.

This article is a departure from my usual articles and I intend to return to more informative articles. This historical essay was necessary to clear the air but I prefer to concentrate in the future on informing my fellow collectors on some of my discoveries.

Good hunting!

The Canadian Philatelist
Montreal to the Lines—The Vermont Exchange Offices

In the third of this series in the September-October 1985 Canadian Philatelist, the 1792 U.S.-Canada Postal Convention was discussed, and it was noted that the U.S. mail route up the Hudson River from New York only went as far as Burlington, Vermont. Thus it was agreed that the U.S. Post Office would carry the sealed mail bags received from the Falmouth packet agent at New York to the latter office, which by default became the exchange point where the Canadian postal courier would deliver the outgoing and collect the incoming Mails. As Burlington was in the 60 to 100 mile zone from Montreal, the postage between the two points was 6d. sterling or 7d. currency. This arrangement continued until was disrupted by the War of 1812.

There was no exchange of mails between the two countries during the war until 1815. With the resumption of the Montreal-New York mail route. The U.S. postal service, recognizing an opportunity to obtain more revenue from the Canadian Mails, extended the Hudson River valley route to Swanton, Vermont, close to the Canadian border. Moving the exchange office to less than sixty miles from Montreal should have reduced the Canadian postage to 4d. Stg. / 4½d. Cy. But as described in Vignette XXXI (Canadian Philatelist January-February 1994), the Montreal postmaster, apparently without official approval, took the opportunity to extract extra revenue from a public only too pleased to be able to speed their overseas correspondence through New York once again and charged 6d. Cy. As no record is known relating to what actually transpired at this time, my interpretation of this postal charge is an educated guess, based on an examination of many contemporary letters and the consideration of parallel developments elsewhere; i.e., that it was an equivalent of the 'ferriage' being charged at the water-separated exchange offices in Upper Canada, which had been started, informally, at this time. Although there was no river to be crossed at the Lower Canada—Vermont border, the Richelieu River lay between St. John's, L.C. and Montreal, so perhaps this was the excuse for charging an extra 1½d. Cy., the postage from the Lines to Montreal, a total of 6d. Cy. This was continued until 28 February 1837, when this additional charge was stopped. It is interesting that this was also the date on which 'ferriage', which had been officially recognized in Upper Canada in 1829, was discontinued on the order of the Deputy Postmaster General. The postage remained at 4½d. Cy. from that date until 5 April 1851.

The real purpose of this short article is to discuss another interesting aspect of this route related to the U.S. exchange office. At the time that the exchange of Mails was restarted in 1815, the stage coach route carried the Mails to Swanton. However, some years later the exchange office was moved to nearby Highgate. I had no idea of the reason for this change, as I had never seen any reference to it in postal sources, until a Vermont historian sent me an extract from a multi-volume history of Vermont, edited by Abby M. Hemenway in the 1870s-80s. This contained following:

The mail stage which had from a very early day run daily from Burlington to Montreal had up to about 1830 passed from St. Albans through Swanton, and vice versa, and a daily mail stage was considered of much importance in those days to the business and prosperity of a place. About that time the Keyes (they moved in 1819) having large political influence in Washington, secured the stage to be run by way of Highgate Falls instead of Swanton Falls, and it continued on that route until the railroads superseded the stage altogether. Strenuous efforts made to reverse this had no effect.
BRITISH COLUMBIA SHIP MAILS: INLAND LAKES, FLOATING SETTLEMENTS, AND PAQUEBOT MAIL

by Edwin Drechsel

(Mr. Drechsel examined the British Columbia coastal routes in the March-April issue. This article covers other parts of west coast transportation and postal history.)

Inland Lakes

A prominent geographic feature of Southeastern British Columbia is a group of elongated lakes. Mountainous terrain made land transportation difficult in this region. To provide access to the settlements around the perimeters of these lakes, and to connect several railway lines roads, steamships plied these waterways. This service remained in operation until the 1950s.

On Kootenay Lake the coalburning steamships were operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway, with which they connected at Nelson, on the west arm of Kootenay Lake. The Movie, the principal ship on this route, was a stern-wheeler, one of seven of similar design that served the inland lakes for nearly six decades. Movie was constructed at Toronto, and shipped to Nelson in sections for assembly there. This ship ran until April 1957, and has been restored as a museum at Kaslo, the mid-point of its former route. The ships on Kootenay Lake carried mail, but did not operate Railway Post Offices.

On Okanagan Lake, a steamship service ran between Okanagan Landing and Penticton. For a time this route had a full R.P.O. on board the vessels operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway. This oval marking for the Penticton and Okanagan Landing R.P.O. has been recorded used in 1909 and 1910. The Okanagan Lake postal service was truncated and eventually eliminated by a railway extension from Okanagan Landing to Kelowna, and a bus service between Kelowna and the Canadian Pacific railway at Penticton.
Steamers connected points on Okanagan Lake, Kootenay Lake, and the Arrow Lakes with various points on railway lines. This map is from a 1941 Canadian Pacific timetable. By this date a bus service had replaced the steamer on Okanagan Lake.

The middle cover is from the Okanagan Lake service. This cover was posted Sept. 21, 1936, and shows various handstamps applied on board the S.S. Sicamous. The cover was postmarked at Peachland, as there was no longer an R.P.O. operating on this vessel at this time.

Canadian Pacific ships were operated under a subsidiary company, the Canadian Pacific B.C. Lakes and Rivers Service. The principal steamer on this route was the S.S. Sicamous.

As was the case with the coastal service, Canadian National Railways operated a competing service between Kelowna and Penticton, with the S.S. Penetowna.

The Upper and Lower Arrow Lakes had operating shipboard R.P.O. service until the post World War II era. The S.S. Minto provided service for 56 years on the Arrow Lake routes before the stern-wheeled vessel was retired in 1954.

The R.P.O. operated between Robson and Arrowhead, and the circle date stamp read ROB&A'AHEAD R.P.O./ B.C. The service ended when Canadian Pacific concluded that operating and maintenance costs on the vessel exceeded revenues, and that replacing the vessel would be prohibitively expensive.

After retirement Canadian Pacific sold the S.S. Minto to the town of Naskusp for $1. The town found preservation too costly, and sold the ship for scrapping. Local resident John Nelson intervened at the last minute, and bought the ship for $800. It is now high and dry at Galena Bay.

Burrard Inlet

For 62 years the Burrard Inlet floating post office plied the waters of Burrard Inlet, Salmon Arm, and the Vancouver harbour, along a thirty mile route. Operated by the Harbour Navigation Company, this postal service began on January 1, 1908 and ended on October 3, 1970. Operated thrice weekly in winter and daily in summer, the company's vessel served residents, commercial activities, quarries, resorts, and a power plant. The stops had appealing names: Balcarras, Coombes, Cosy Cove, Jug Island, Grey Rocks, Belvedere, Frames Landing, and Silver Falls. A stopover at Wigwam Inn allowed time for picnics, wandering, and sightseeing. Over the years, several craft and their Captain-Postmasters were the welcome link for these removed settlements with the Vancouver metropolis. In latter years the service was a reminder of a slower, gentler past.
Floating Settlements and Other Maritime Mail

In remote coastal areas, some communities serving fishing, logging and mining activities are built on log rafts. Simoom Sound is such a floating village. The post office was named Broughton Island until circa 1910. Simoom Sound is the centre for an active logging and fishing district. A store, post office, fuel services and residences are set on a raft of cedar logs cabled together.

The circle date handstamp used at the floating post office at Simoom Sound and (inset) the location of some of the floating post offices on the coast.
Sullivan Bay is another floating village. These villages can be towed to wherever they are needed. If the post office is named after a particular locality, a new name may be required if it is moved a significant distance.

Small craft still serve as in providing postal connections with land transportation. The Columbia Coast Mission serves the Haida and other Indian tribes. These craft are also useful in times of emergencies.

A Columbia Coast Mission cover with a straight line marking for the M.S. Columbia, and postmarked at Alert Bay on Vancouver Island, where it entered the official mail stream.

The extension of the road systems on the mainland and on Vancouver Island reduced the need for coasting shipping facilities, such as that provided for 60 years by the Union Steamship Company.
In 1966 the Queen of Prince Rupert, built in Victoria, opened a new route from Kelsey Bay, the extremity of the Vancouver Island road network, to Prince Rupert, a run of 330 miles and takes 20 hours. This new ship can carry 400 passengers and 80 vehicles, and is part of the British Columbia government's ferry system.

In a dense fog in August, 1967 the ship ran onto Haddington Reef near Alert Bay. The 299 passengers evacuated safely, and some of the cars were removed. Rescue crews pulled the ship free 36 hours later. This was one of the luckier accidents in coastal shipping history.

Way Mail came into use in the early 1930s for mail put aboard ships at coastal points without postal service, or mailed on ships without on-board mail processing. The Canadian Postal Guide stated that Mail couriers are authorized and required to accept mail offered to them en route between one post office and another provided that the nearest post office exceeds one mile. Such mail is termed WAY MAIL and should be prepaid with postage.

A straight line WAYMAIL marking is known from 1931, used on mail posted in Alaskan waters. A WAY MAIL slogan was used on a machine canceller at Vancouver from 1932 to 1938. A PAQUEBOT marking replaced the machine slogan in 1939.

Paquebot Markings

Effective in 1894, the Universal Postal Union expanded the practicality of shipboard mails with regulations for posting at sea on vessels with no postal service.
A 1932 strike of the Vancouver WAY MAIL slogan. The cover is franked with a 2¢ U.S. stamp, and cancelled with the oval Vancouver-Skagway R.P.O. handstamp applied aboard the S.S. Princess Norah.

Under the new regulations, mail could be posted aboard a ship franked with postage of the ship’s nationality. On arrival at a port foreign to the ship’s flag, the local postmaster had to accept this mail franked with foreign postage, provided the stamps wereuncancelled and was handed in as mail posted on the high seas according to U.P.U. regulations. To explain such acceptance, and the inland postal rate (even though the mail had to cross foreign territory to reach its destination), the word PAQUEBOT, NAVIRE or an equivalent was applied on the envelope, and the local office’s normal cancellation was applied to the stamp. In later years, some port offices used the word Paquebot or other explanation in a machine canceller.

PAQUEBOT POSTED AT SEA handstamp used at Vancouver in 1952 with British stamps.
British Columbia ports, despite the decline of ship mails, still provide this Paquebot mail handling. Since most travellers prefer to use airmail, they usually post their mail in the port, rather than on board the ship. Much of the recent shipboard mail has been generated by collectors, who wish to get strikes of shipboard markings and the signatures of ship captains. Legitimate commercial mail moving through this system is rather scarce and much desired by collectors of ship mails.

The machine canceller at Victoria was fitted with a \textit{PAQUEBOT POSTED AT SEA} slogan to handle mail off visiting ships. It was not normal practice to use such cancels on Canadian stamps, but it did happen, as this 1939 example demonstrates.

The Paquebot handstamp used at Prince Rupert also indicated the latitude and longitude. The Prince Rupert handstamp used on the Liberian stamp is in compliance with U.P.U. regulations for handling such mail.

CANADA WORLD WAR II BLACKOUT CANCELLATIONS

by Ron Leith

Collectors are frequently puzzled by the ‘blank’ or ‘blackout’ cancels found on Canadian mail during the World War II period. On these cancels, the town names have been carefully removed from the cancelling devices, presumably as a security measure.

However, many covers clearly show return addresses. If blackout cancels were intended as a security precaution, it would seem that allowing a return address defeated that purpose. After studying these covers, many philatelists have presumed it was unlikely that blackout cancels had anything to do with national security. Nevertheless, they did play a very important role.

The following is a brief overview of Canadian blackout cancelling devices, and an inventory of known cancellations.

A Canadian World War II civilian blackout cover. Note that none of the markings contains the name of the town (not even the Registration box), yet the envelope has a printed return address indicating that it originated in Quebec City.

Historical Background

From the onset of World War II, the British Admiralty was concerned that dated ship mail could be used by enemy agents to predict convoy and naval ship movements along the English coastline. Although letters origination from Royal Navy seamen were censored on board ship, they were posted at the port-of-

call, thereby revealing the Navy ship schedule to anyone who might be interested—a very sensitive subject indeed in time of war. The British postal authorities took control by first concentrating all Navy ship mail sorting in Edinburgh, Liverpool, and London. In mid-1940 they went even further by completely removing the town dater hub from their cancelling machines. Thus, the first official World War II 'blackout' cancellation device was created. It should be noted that this was not the earliest known use of 'blackout' markings. Unofficial blackout processing of ship mail occurred during the later stages of World War I, and postmarks have been reported with manually created blackouts in 1939.

An early British blackout cancel on a ship letter dated October 25, 1941 from a Canadian sailor stationed on the British Submarine HMS Princess Beatrix. It was received at the London Ship Letter Office. Note the receiver slogan portion of the London machine cancel is present, but the dater hub is completely removed. The letter was then forwarded to the Canadian Field Post Office No. 428 in London (arriving circle date stamp November 8, 1941) for redirection to Canada.

Even in the early war years, the main supply line for Allied efforts came from North American convoys. The counter move by Germany was to deploy a U-boat fleet with the aim of disrupting that supply line. German success in this mission surprised most observers, and by mid-1942 the U-boat threat had become critical both to the War effort and to sailor morale. More than 200 ships were sunk along the Newfoundland to Bermuda corridor during the first six months of 1942 alone. Even heavier losses were reported in the Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico.

Ship security along the American Atlantic seaboard had always been a Naval priority, but it was not until the ship losses escalated that civilians, and in particular Post Office civil servants, took the matter seriously. They were then ready to act on Naval Command initiatives to help reduce the devastating losses.

Maintaining convoy secrecy was a major problem, especially with the huge number of naval and merchant seamen involved in convoy operations. Telephone, telegraph, and radio security was already under military control. Naval and merchant marine mail processing after it arrived at port was another matter. Postmarks on letters with return addresses identified the ship name, date, and port location. As well, the deluge of ship mail posted prior to each convoy departure disclosed the sailing time. All this information was valuable to anyone working closely with the public Post Office, and unacceptable security problem that had to be resolved.

Canadian postal authorities finally conceded that their postal system had many of the same difficulties that had been noted earlier in England. Some of the key directives drafted by the Canadian Department of National Defence were:

1. Mail from Canadian Navy ships must have all ship name and location references deleted from the return address. All return addresses had to be care of the Fleet Mail Office, where personnel location records allowed letters to be forwarded to sailors...the process was entirely handled by the military and non-complying letters were destroyed.)

2. All Navy and Merchant Marine ship mail will be censored. (Again, handling was entirely by military procedures to eliminate any possible security violation.)

3. Prior to convoy departures, all mail from ships will be detained at the Fleet Mail Office until the convoy arrives at its destination. (Many such letters have "DELAYED FOR SECURITY REASONS" applied to explain the delay.)

4. On August 31, 1940 the Canadian Post Office was requested to delete all local date stamps on letters arriving from H.M.C. Ships at all Canadian ports. The request was extended to all Merchant Marine letters on December 6, 1940; to all letters addressed abroad from Canadian Army Command Bases on March 5, 1942; to all letters addressed abroad from RCAF Command Bases on March 9, 1942; to all letters from sailors on Allied ships on July 23, 1942.)

Directives numbered one through three were handled immediately by the Navy. However, the fourth point required Post Office cooperation to devise a new processing system. After 28 months of bureaucratic delays, hastened by political pressure from the demoralizing 1942 ship losses, the Canadian Post Office Department narrowed their options to the following:

a. Set up a separate postal security group to handle only military mail, similar to the system used in Britain. This required more Post Office space, additional personnel, and a moderately complicated delivery system. There was always the possibility of some accidental re-processing of ship mail by the local post office using a town name canceller.)

b. Convert the entire Post Office in each port city or designated military location to Blackout statue by replacing all existing town cancellers with Blackout devices. This solution was simple, cheap, eliminated the chance of postal clerk errors, and circumvented the need to set up a separate security group.

The second option was the obvious choice, and hence the origin of the first Canadian blackout cancellations. It was fortunate for postal historians that all mail from each port was “blackout” since the only way to determine the origins of ship letters today is to correlate the individual features of blackout cancellations with those found on civilian mail containing a return address.

Canadian Blackout Locations

Members of the BNAPS Military Study Group have classified 23 different Canadian blackout locations. Eastern Canada blackout conversions started in December 1942 and included the following sites:

- Quebec City, Quebec (Main P.O.)
- Rimouski, Quebec
- Gaspé, Quebec
- Bagotville, Quebec (RCAF)
- Shelburne, Nova Scotia (RCAF)
- Yarmouth, Nova Scotia (RCAF)
- Moncton, New Brunswick (RCAF)
- Saint John, New Brunswick
- Halifax, Nova Scotia (Main P.O.)
- Halifax FMO (Fleet Mail Office)
- Dartmouth, Nova Scotia
- North Sydney, Nova Scotia
- Sydney, Nova Scotia
- Sydney FMO (Fleet Mail Office)
- Pictou, Nova Scotia
- Liverpool, Nova Scotia

Ship mail from Canada’s western ports was not initially considered a security risk. Even though the Vancouver Island lighthouse at Estevan Point was bombarded by a Japanese submarine on June 20, 1942, it was not until September 1943 that the first British Columbia port blackout conversions were made. These were:

- Vancouver BC (Main Post Office)
- North Vancouver BC
- Hollyburn BC
- Victoria BC (Main Post Office)
- Prince Rupert BC (Main Post Office)
- Prince Rupert BC (Station B)
- Esquimalt BC (processed at Victoria)

When a post office was changed to a blackout, all cancellation devices containing the town name were removed. This included all circular dated handstamps, duplex handstamps, the boxed registration handstamps, roller cancels, dater hubs on machine cancellers, and even money order date stamps. They were replaced with a variety of blackout devices that created some very interesting collectibles.

Blackout Circular Dated Handstamps

All reported eastern Canada blackout circular dated handstamps are illustrated on the following page. Although they look similar, most are readily distinguishable by accurately measuring the rim diameter and thickness of the circles. The Moncton hammer 1 device, with its heavy inner circle, is different from all other eastern blackout handstamps and only one example has so far been recorded. It remains on the unconfirmed list.

Also shown on the following page are all known western Canada blackout circular dated handstamps. The various cancellers can again be differentiated by accurately measuring the rim diameters. The Vancouver hammer 5 is noteworthy in that it is found mainly on special delivery mail either in the configuration shown or with all the indicia inverted.
Blackout Duplex Handstamps

Five blackout duplex cancels have been identified to date. All are from eastern Canada locations. These are shown below. They can be differentiated by measuring the rim to killer distance and rim diameter. The unique Moncton duplex has been confirmed.

Blackout Machine Cancellations

During the blackout period there were four types of machine cancellers in regular use in Canada. Some smaller offices used Columbia hand operated machines. These were owned by individual postmasters. Some Universal Model D hand operated machines, rented by the Post Office, were assigned to some medium size offices. At larger offices there were Perfect machines, which had been purchased by the Post Office, and Model G electric machines, rented from Pitney-Bowes. Dater hubs on these models were not compatible with one another, and consequently there are four distinct blackout machine types. In all cases, only the hub rim was replaced; the dater and the killer bars remained the same after conversion.

Fifteen cities used blackout cancelling machines, as follows:

Hubs from the four different machine cancel models. The original state is at the left and the replacement hubs are to their right.
Individual machines or hubs are identified by measuring the hub-to-killer distance, by noting flaws that are present in the impression, or by slogan cancel dies that are known to have been used at particular towns and particular times.

One of the more fascinating machine cancel stories comes from Vancouver, where as many as five Pitney-Bowes machines were used simultaneously. Postal authorities needed to identify impressions from the various machines for quality control, so they devised a unique coding system by notching each of the hubs. Altogether, there are nine hub varieties for the Vancouver machines, as illustrated below. Six of the hubs are known inverted, and there are a number of collectable varieties resulting from hub wear.

![Diagram of Vancouver Pitney-Bowes machine blackout hubs showing the nine different notch codes used to identify each of the machines for quality control purposes. Dies 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, and 9 have all been reported inverted.]

Forty-one different slogans have been noted with blackout machine cancels, many of which were in use for very short periods of time. The Prince Rupert “Airmail” slogan has been reported for just one month in June-July 1944; the Quebec City “Victory” slogan for less than two weeks in January 1943; and the Rimouski “Observe Sunday” die 1 for only six days in January 1943. (The latter is illustrated on the cover of this issue.) Some of these are quite scarce and present a good challenge to the collector.

Other Blackout Markings

Although blackout postal markings have been studied intensively, there are still many surprises. After four years of research, the Blackout Study Group was convinced that they had identified all the British Columbia blackout town locations.
The accidental discovery of a Prince Rupert Registered Letter Bill, sent from the main post office to the other post office across town, identified Prince Rupert Station B as a new blackout location.

There are still many unanswered questions and there are bound to be more blackout findings. For example, only one blackout permit cancel has been reported to date. It was used only on July 13, 1945 at the Victoria post office for the Family Allowance cheque mailing.

The Victoria Permit Number 9 Pitney-Bowes die with a blackout hub used for the July 13, 1945 mailing of Family Allowance cheques. So far, this is the only known blackout permit mail usage.

Some Exotic Blackout Markings (opposite, from top):
1. A ‘dot’ blackout cancel of unknown origin on a German Prisoner of War card from Bowmanville POW Camp, dated December 29, 1943 and airmail rated to Germany.
2. A ‘felt pen’ provisional blackout cancel on a ship letter posted at Halifax on May 20, 1940.
3. A blackout Registration Box marking on a cover from North Vancouver, dated July 30, 1943.
4. A ‘Postage Paid’ triangle blackout cancel on a ship letter arriving at St. John’s, Newfoundland on July 22, 1942. The cancellation signified that six cents was paid in cash for airmail delivery.

Conclusion

To date a total of 23 blackout post office sites have been identified. In almost all cases, the blackout town can be identified directly from the blackout cancel, without the presence of a return address. This has enabled collectors to identify the port-of-entry on most World War II incoming ship letters.

It has often been asked whether the blackout directive was a success. After 50 years, collectors are still struggling to track down the story, so the it certainly seems that the procedure frustrated the enemy, and served its purpose well for the War years.

VENICE:
SOME EARLY POSTAL HISTORY
Part II: The Sixteenth Century

by Michael Madesker, FRPSC

(Part I of this series appeared in the January-February 1995 issue. Succeeding parts will appear in future issues.)

Venice, as a result of an unfavourable peace treaty signed with Turkey on January 24, 1479 lost many of its possessions on the Greek mainland. The immediate results were the loss of markets and opening a route for the Ottoman Empire to attack Europe. Venice was no longer a bulwark defending Christianity against the Turkish invaders.

The attention of the Venetian Republic turned now westward towards the Italian States and Europe. This change was not an easy one. It required the talents of its diplomats to gain the trust of the many states on the Apennine Peninsula and the dexterity of its merchants in establishing posts and commercial trade connections in the rest of Europe.

Postal markings, on 16th Century mails, were still few and taxation notes, such as "paid", were almost unknown. We have, however, directions marked on many of the surviving mail items, for such things as encouraging the postillions to provide prompt delivery. These might be considered the predecessors of current Expedited Mail Service.

EARLY POSTAL TARIFFS IN VENICE
A BASIC OUTLINE

Carriage of mails was governed by the agents, and tariffs were imposed by them depending on weight and distance. Additional charges were also in effect for special services such as speed of delivery and taxes which were payable to the various jurisdictions. No markings were applied to the mails.

Postal tariffs in the Republic of Venice were governed more by competition than decree. The matter was complicated by the delivery services offered by cities, states and private couriers coming in from abroad.

Thus, until the latter days of the sixteenth century, the tariffs were, in general, not interfered with by the government. In 1580 this holiday was ended by bringing in the carriage of mails under the control of the Senate of Venice.

Until the sixteenth century tariffs were posted at the various shipping points and were part of the bills of lading. A 1581 list of costs of mailing, approved by the Senate, lists the following:

Points in-between the port of departure and port of arrival commanded the tariff of the final destination; e.g., a letter from Venice to Padova which lies approximately half way to Vicenza was taxed Scudi 1.1.15. This method covered the costs of stop-overs and, in some cases, transfer to a third party.

A new tariff was approved on October 31, 1634 which was more comprehensive. The values were now quoted in Lire.

Conurbation mails were moved by boats through the canals of the lagoon. The tariffs approved by the Senate in 1629 were for letters between the city core and some nearby islands, as follows:

- Chiozza,
  - by boat with two oars: Lire 7.-
  - by boat with four oars: 14.-

- Fusiya,
  - by boat with two oars: 3:8
  - by boat with four oars: 4:16

- Marghera,
  - by boat with two oars: 3:-
  - by boat with four oars: 4:16

The employment of boats with greater motive power assured quicker delivery as well as the ability to mail items larger in size which, however, were subject to various surcharges.

The year 1580 can be considered as a turning point in the taxation as well as the manner in which mails were being moved. That year also saw the new requirement that fees and other collected monies were to be marked on the mailed item. This prevented double taxation and other types of fraud.

Mails Within the Venetian Conurbation

(Left) Letter dated February 8, 1502 from Mestre to Torcello, arriving at its destination on February 12. Both towns are within the Venetian conurbation, with the first on the mainland and the second in the lagoon. The letter shows stains resulting from disinfection.

(Right) A sheet-letter from Venice to Chioggia, at the southern end of the conurbation, with a note: “franco piatte con botte tre ogio”—attached to a cask of oil. Dated February 24, 1599.

Mails Within the Venetian Republic

(Right, top) A fold-out letter dated August 15, 1587 from Asolo in Treviso to Venice addressed to the town’s baker with a specialty craft. The letter is marked: “subito, subito, subito”—(deliver) immediately.

(Right, middle) A fold-out letter from Cittadella in Vicenza to Padova dated December 23, 1543. The letter was addressed to the ecclesiastical community of Santa Lucia.

(Right, bottom) A fold-out letter from Venice to Padova dated on December 21, 1600.

The letter accompanied a book which warranted a note on the address side: “con un libro”—with a book. The address itself is very descriptive: to the spice store (“dal Diamante”), the one with a proper (spice) press. It should be noted that Venice was the spice centre of Europe at this time.

SEALS - PAPER AND WAX

Postal historians are interested in the wax and/or paper seals on the back of many of their older covers. There are two types of seals, a gummed paper seal and a wax seal.

The wafer or gummed paper seal is much like a postage stamp and should be looked upon the same way. The adhesives used in affixing them to a cover vary widely. They are generally marked in ink with a printed monogram or initial. Some of the larger wafer seals are sensitive to moisture.

Wax seals contain bee’s wax, shellac, and often a pigment. They are hard, brittle, and adhere to the surface of the paper. Care should be taken to prevent them from being broken or crushed. Otherwise they present little problem in conservation.

CONSERVATION MATERIALS

Japanese and Oriental Papers: The best of these papers are made from Kazo and Mulberry leaves. They are long-fibred and strong, and can be handmade or machine made. They are used for repair or backing paper. AVAILABLE FROM: The Japanese Paper Place, University Products of Canada, Woolfis, Talas, Aiko’s Art Materials.

Handmade Papers: Made by hand using cotton or rag pulp. They have a deckel edge and chain or laid lines. Used for end papers, repairs, and backing paper. AVAILABLE FROM: Woolfis, University Products of Canada, Talas, Opus Framing.

Tissue Paper: This is available in acid-free format, buffered or unbuffered, with smooth or textured surface. It comes in sheets or rolls. Used for lining, interleaving, and wrapping. AVAILABLE FROM: Conservation supply houses.

Blotting Paper: An acid-free absorbent paper. Use white only. Available in various sizes and thicknesses. Used for paper repairs, drying, or flattening wet papers. AVAILABLE FROM: Conservation supply houses art supply dealers, paper suppliers.

Mylar: An inert clear polyester film, free from plasticizer, surface coating, and ultraviolet inhibitors. Use S or D type only. Available in various thicknesses from .0005 inch to .014 inch. Thicknesses .001 to .004 (one to four mils) are most suitable for philatelic purposes. Manufactured by Transilwrap or Canada or Dupont. (Mylar is a registered name of Dupont.)

Starch Paste: A highly purified wheat or rice starch base is used to make this paste. Must be mixed with water and cooked. It has great strength, excellent ageing properties, a neutral pH, and is reversible. A negative factor is that the shelf life of prepared paste is limited. AVAILABLE FROM: Art stores, conservation supply houses.

Methyl Cellulose Adhesive: A granular powder to be dissolved in water to produce a neutral pH, reversible adhesive. The shelf life of the prepared adhesive is unlimited. Manufactured by Dow Chemical. AVAILABLE FROM: conservation supply houses.

Jade 409 Emulsion: A polyvinyl acetate emulsion (PVA) that contains no acetate. It has a neutral pH, dries fast, is long lasting, and forms a transparent flexible film. AVAILABLE FROM: Talas, conservation supply houses.

Magic Rub; SKUM-X: Made by Faber Castell, Magic Rub comes as an erasing block or peel-off pencil. SKUM-X (Dietzgen) is an erasing powder. These materials are recommended for surface dry cleaning of paper. AVAILABLE FROM: art and drafting supply stores.

pH Pen: A sensitive marker, manufactured by Abbey. A chlorophenol red indicator solution turns a definite purple colour on any paper with a pH of 6.5 and above. Unfortunately, the mark is permanent, so this should be used with caution. AVAILABLE FROM: University Products of Canada, conservation supply houses.

pH Pencil: Insta-Chek—a set of 5 pencils which indicate pH. Moisten the surface with distilled water, mark the spot with the pencil, wait a few seconds, and compare the colour with the pH indicator chart. Users are warned that these, like pH pens, leave a permanent mark. AVAILABLE FROM: University Products of Canada, conservation supply houses.

Morocco: A vegetable tanned goatskin leather having a grained pattern. It can be purchased in a range of colours and textures. It is used for covering books and albums in bookbinding. AVAILABLE FROM: Talas, Hewit and Sons Ltd., Russell Bookcrafts, bookbinding suppliers.

Calf: Similar to Morocco, but made from calfskin. It has a smooth surface, but is thicker than Morocco. Use and availability is the same as for Morocco.

Buckram: A cloth made from closely woven cotton or linen, impregnated with pyroxylin. Use and availability is the same as for Morocco.

Marbled Papers: Used for end papers or covering books and albums. AVAILABLE FROM: Talas, Michele Semard, bookbinding suppliers.

Canada Post issued a set of stamps on May 5 featuring the Fortress of Louisbourg. The stamps mark the 275th anniversary of the founding of the fortress, the 250th anniversary of the siege by New Englanders, and the 100th anniversary of the commemoration by the Society of Colonial Wars.

The five stamps portray a modern panorama of the historic site, offering a bird’s eye view of the reconstructed portion of the Fortress with transparent line work re-creating the un-restored sections.

The set was designed by Montreal graphic designer Rolf Harder. Mr. Harder has designed many stamps for Canada Post, including the 1983 and 1985 fort sets.

The set was issued without a denomination indicated to ensure its continued usage in the event of rate increase.

La Société canadienne des postes a émis, le 5 mai, cinq timbres commémoratifs soulignant le 275e anniversaire de la fondation de Louisbourg et le 250e anniversaire du siège de la forteresse par les soldats de la Nouvelle-Angleterre. Il y a 100 ans également, la Society of Colonial Wars, rappelait la prise de Louisbourg.

Ensemble, les cinq vignettes présentent un panorama moderne du lieu historique actuel. Les éléments non restaurés sont dessinés au trait.

Les motifs des timbres ont été réalisés par le graphiste Rolf Harder, de Montréal, qui a signé un grand nombre de timbres émis par la Société canadienne des postes dont les jeux consacrés aux forts, en 1983 et en 1985.

Nobody is buying Plate Blocks or recent FDC's, although there is still interest in booklets and booklet panes; souvenir sheets also sell. Books in unusual areas are welcome, but we can't promise that they will sell well.

We like to keep a running total in our heads when checking in books. This is too difficult when stamps are priced in odd amounts, and necessitates the use calculators or computers. The buyers make many errors too. So could you please round up or down to the nearest five cents when pricing stamps in future.

All common stamps should now be put into Nickel Boxes, (all stamps in Nickel Boxes are currently priced at ten cents, but we didn't change the name). Minimum price per stamp in a book is fifteen cents, with the exception of stamps which are part of a set.

Due to increases in our expenses minimum handling charge on books and Nickel Boxes is now $5. This means that the computer is programmed with an 'IF' statement. If the calculated commission is less than $5, the commission amount charged is raised to $5. This will not affect those owners whose valuable stamps sell well, since it is only necessary to sell $35 worth in order to generate a commission of $5.25.

Because of the low value of the Canadian dollar compared with the U.S. dollar some owners are pointing out that the Scott's Catalogue prices quoted are in U.S. dollars and that their prices are in Canadian dollars, and have revised them accordingly.

Since the Royal Philatelic Society of Canada is the national society of philatelists in Canada, many requests for exchange partners are referred to us. As a service to our members, we are pleased to present these names, so that those who wish to do so can make overseas contacts. Please note that we have no way of checking the credentials of the individuals who write to us asking that their names be published, therefore, we urge that caution be taken when answering these requests.

La Société royale de philatélie du Canada ne s'occupe pas normalement des échanges entre philatélistes, mais comme elle est la société philatélique nationale du Canada, elle transmet de nombreuses demandes de philatélistes désireux de trouver des correspondants pour échanger des timbres. Ainsi a-t-elle décidé, pour rendre service à ses membres, de publier les noms intéressés d'autrui, afin que ceux qui désirent établir des rapports avec eux puissent le faire. Je vous signale toutefois que nous ne savons rien des personnes qui nous demandent de publier leur nom, c'est pourquoi je vous conseille d'être prudent en répondant à ces demandes d'échange.

Dear Mr. Maresch:

I wanted to write and thank you and your staff for the wonderful experience I had in selling some of my treasures through you. You told me up front what to expect, and when, and you met and exceeded those expectations.

I had had some less desirable experiences with others before dealing with you, and I am very glad that I chose to sell the bulk of my material through you. My only regret is that I had tried someone else first, but I eventually realized that going with you was going with the best.

I had seen all those testimonials in you ads, and I wrongly assumed that ALL auction houses were the same. How wrong I was, and I know now better. When someone now asks me for a reference on where to sell their stamps and covers, I tell them "R. Maresch & Son".

Thank you very, very much. It was very much a pleasure doing business with you.

Sincerely,

Paul Burega
