In honour of Stamp Collecting Month, the winning designs of the “Stampin’ the Future” contest are shown. See page 215 for details. The entries from all 30 finalists are shown together. This collage illustrates how the future is viewed by the young.

Congratulations to all finalists. Remember that your reward is in participating and enjoying the challenge more so than in winning.

The “win” is just a bonus!
I write these notes from the shores of Jasper’s beautiful Lake Edith. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle wrote a 1923 story about Jasper. It told of a New York man who reached heaven and as he passed the gate, Peter said, “I’m sure you will like it.” A Pittsburgh man followed and Peter said, “It will be a very great change for you.” Finally, there came a man from Jasper Park. “I’m afraid,” said Peter, “that you will be disappointed.” It’s that sort of a day here. Glorious.

The fall season is just around the corner. The Jasper bears contemplate hibernation while stamp collectors seem quite the opposite, finding new energies to pursue their colourful paper bits, musty envelopes and postcards with ancient “wish you were here” messages.

Canada Post has managed to jump-start the season by producing a millennium package, which includes 64 stamps found only in a souvenir book. Philatelic mathematicians have been quick to calculate that the total cost of the book and stamps is about double face and a hue and cry has gone up from a number of quarters.

The Scott catalogue people, following the protestsations of the American Philatelic Society suggest that they may not list these stamps. This I find a bit humorous; “black blots” have yet to impact the purchase by collectors of the range of stamps singled out for discriminatory attention by those who would feel that it is their position to tell the rest of us not only what to collect, but how to collect it. Truly, there is not much difference between Tanna Tuva of the 1920s Ajaman & Manama of the 60s and Canada and the United States of the 90s. Postal administrators seem less often than ever to issue stamps for postal purposes. They are all in the souvenir business. But until our government decrees that we all must purchase each new emission, I’ll not worry too much. I’ll just simply carry on buying those items I like and ignoring the balance. To do otherwise would be foolish, I believe.

I am not a regular reader of stamp publication editorial and letters-to-the-editor columns, but lately I have become aware of how negative and complaining much of this writing is. Too many, too few, too expensive, too cheap. Bad designs, poor subject matter. Glue that doesn’t stick and then won’t unstick. Too many commemoratives, too few definitives – or was it the reverse?

Can stamp collectors really be such an unhappy lot? I think that if I was searching for a hobby and read a stamp paper letters-to-the-editor column, I’d be turned right off and seek out some alternative. Something pleasant like used yo-yo strings – or maybe cigarette package silver paper – huge round balls of it.

Et voici l’automne qui arrive à petits pas. Les ours de Jasper rêvent de leur hibernation alors que les philatélistes se découvrent une nouvelle énergie en rassemblant leurs morceaux de papier colorés, leurs enveloppes à odeur de moisis et leurs cartes postales où de chanceux vacanciers leur exprimaient leur regret de ne pas les voir avec eux.

Postes Canada devance les événements en ouvrant la saison avec une série de 64 timbres du millénaire, présentés dans un album souvenir. Les philatélistes matheux ont eu tôt fait de calculer que le coût total de l’album et des timbres était d’environ le double de la valeur faciale et la clameur publique s’est élevée un peu partout.

Suite aux protestations de l’American Philatelic Society, les éditeurs des catalogues Scott laissent entendre qu’ils ne répertorienteront peut-être pas ces timbres. Je trouve un peu bizarre que quiconque puisse nous dire quoi collectionner, mais aussi comment. En fait, il n’y a pas grande différence entre les émissions de Tannour Touva des années 20, de l’Ajman et Manama des années 60 et du Canada et des États Unis des années 90. Les administrateurs postaux semblent moins que jamais émettre des timbres pour des raisons postales. Ils font tous du commerce “souvenir”. Mais je refuse de m’en inquiéter tant que le gouvernement ne nous obligea pas à acheter chaque nouvelle émission. Je continuerai à acheter ce que j’aime et à laisser de côté le reste. Il serait insensé de faire autrement.

Je ne lis pas régulièrement les éditoriaux ni les lettres à la rédaction des revues philatéliques, mais je me rends compte à quel point ces articles sont négatifs. Trop, pas assez, trop cher, pas assez cher. Mauvais dessins, thèmes dépourvus d’intérêt. Gommage qui ne colle pas ou qui ne se décolle plus. Trop de timbres commémoratifs, trop peu de définitifs – ou était-ce le contraire?

Les collectionneurs sont-ils si tristes? Si je me cherchais un passe-temps et lisais la rubrique des lettres à la rédaction d’un magazine philatélique, je me sentirais rebuté et chercherai autre chose. Quelle chose d’amusant comme les ficelles de yoyo usées ou encore les papiers métallisés des paquets de cigarettes.

Les collectionneurs de timbres sont ils vraiment d’êtres éternels insatisfaits grincheux? Allons bon, la philatélie est censée être
Dear Editor,

With respect to Mr. C.W Turner’s letter, published in the May/June issue of our journal; if said gentleman would refer to the introduction of either Scott or Gibbons catalogues he would find the answers to the several questions he raises. This basic stamp information is invaluable to learning about papers, watermarks, printing processes, separation, etc.

My Club (Lakeshore Stamp Club Inc., Pointe-Claire, Québec) runs an annual Seminar – EXPEX (Experience in Philatelic Exhibiting) for the benefit of those members who are interested in learning the ins and outs of putting together a stamp exhibit, and the one-day lecture always opens with reference to the Scott catalogue introduction. It is always a wonder how many attendees had never known of this opening section of the catalogue, even though they had possessed one for years. It is a “must” reading for any budding philatelist.

Yours sincerely,
Raymond W. Ireson

Dear Editor,

Re: Canada’s Millennium Issue

Since this issue was first announced, there have been many comments and doubts there will be many more regarding this controversial issue. I modestly send you mine, which will not, however, comment on the issue itself but on a proposal that follows its implications.

Some years ago Canada Post located its Philatelic Sales branch in Antigonish, NS, and I have no quarrel with this. It is a good example of federalism at work, an example of decentralization, and a fine idea in this age of electronic communication. But, with all respect to the people of Nova Scotia, I submit that the branch needs to be moved. It is the turn of another of Canada’s less-wealthy provinces to have its economy aided by relocation. I submit that the branch should now be located in Manitoba.

SNOWBIRD COVERS AVAILABLE

Editor’s note: The following information may be of interest to many collectors with a passion for airplanes or to those who enjoy visiting air shows. It is also timely, considering the September 3 issue showing the RCAF planes.

The Canadian Aerophilatelic Society (CAS) has for sale sets of 10 envelopes, autographed and flown, by the Snowbirds at the Ottawa International Air Show on May 30, 1999.

There are nine covers individually autographed and flown at $45 per set, and one envelope autographed by all of the pilots at $15. Also as part of the complete set is one 1999 Snowbird brochure, a statement from the Squadron Logistics officer, and a few Ottawa newspaper clippings concerning the Snowbirds. The total cost is $60 Canadian. There were 25 sets of 10 covers prepared and flown for this flight.

Please note that the Snowbirds are to receive a new aircraft, the British Hawk 100 series, in 2000. Payment for items retained should be made payable to the Canadian Aerophilatelic Society and sent to: Major R.K. Malott, President, Canadian Aerophilatelic Society, 16 Harwick Crescent, Nepean, ON, K2H 6R1. There are hopes to have a few sets flown at the Toronto International Air Show with the new stamps which were released on September 4, 1999. ☯
October is Stamp Collecting Month.

Several interesting articles appear in this issue. The most important illustrations, from the future stamp collecting viewpoint, are the submissions by youngstes to the stamp design contest. Congratulations to the 30 finalists... and also to all participants. Perhaps these budding artists will discover the many joys attached to this particular hobby, with the result that stamp collecting interests will continue to grow far beyond the boundaries of today.

The stamp collecting cycle is the subject of another article which summarizes some of the plights being felt by the stamp collectors in general.

Some pundits believe stamp collecting will diminish because of the computer and e-mail. The same predictions were made when the telegraph network was expanded in the late 19th century. (One reference can be found about an eight mile electrical telegraph line constructed in Hammersmith, England in 1834 and how telegraph poles were erected in France about 1794.) You rarely see telegrams today. As the telephone network expanded and long distance calls became cheaper through competition, more people resorted to verbal messages instead of written letters. Teletype machines were in popular use amongst businesses 50-60 years ago. They were making inroads into commercial applications during the 1960s. Then came the fax machine in the 1980s – practically eliminating the teletype industry. The fax machine is now found in many homes as a means of quick efficient and more private means of communications. Many post offices even offer a fax machine service. The fax machine is even incorporated into computers to transmit documents. During all these innovations, the post office mail volume continued to grow by leaps and bounds.

Then came e-mail. It provides an almost instantaneous means of communications, but there are some severe privacy problems. Encryption is one solution, but that, too, has its problems. Most encryption programs have been broken because the same computer that made such message transmissions possible, can also be used by others to find out what you have to say. One commentator related how 14,000 computers were privately linked together by a band of hackers. They used their combined efforts to break a code which the U.S. military was incapable of solving.

Yes, it is true that some post offices have suffered revenue losses because of e-mail. Some estimate that about 15 percent of the messages that were previously sent by mail are now sent by e-mail.

One hundred and fifty years ago, the Pony Express and other similar companies operated in the wild, wild west because the post office was not set up to meet the demands of the public. Today, the fax machines, private courier systems and e-mail are meeting demands which most post offices simply cannot supply in the way the public wants it done. If all those messages were letters, the post office would simply collapse with an overload of volume. Have you ever seen how a post office handles mail? What happens when the automatic machines break down? Think about it.

This is the message for Stamp Collecting Month. Stamp collecting is not dying, nor will it die. Only the ways in which mail delivery services are paid and receipts are issued have changed... and those methods will continue to change as post offices seek different methods to improve efficiencies while processing the mail. Stamp collecting has also changed to reflect changes in the other postal systems around the world. The postal service is still the only worldwide service which can deliver messages to almost every nook and cranny around the globe.

As we approach the end of the 20th century, we need some thoughtful articles about the progress of philately since the end of the 19th century. We need to explore what happened and try to foresee where the world is heading in the 21st century. From a collecting standpoint, here is a thought starter. One hundred years ago, the goal was to collect used stamps from every country in the world.

Over the years, people started collecting mint stamps. Many began buying full sheets, expecting to cash in after years went by – only to find out that there was no market for them. The proliferation of issued stamps escalated far beyond comprehension. If you wanted to own only one mint copy of every stamp issued around the world today, by one estimate you would need to invest more than $7,500 every year – if you can find all of the stamps.

How could you find a used copy of about 14,000 stamps issued every year around the world? It is difficult enough to find a used copy of every stamp issued by Canada over the last 10 years. Today, it is economically difficult to collect all the possible varieties from even one country. And even if you could, how would you store them?

The challenge is “what should one collect?” What every stamp collector needs is the knowledge to know what to look for or how to build a personal collection which will be rewarding in different ways. That is the purpose of publications such as this.

We are seeking articles about collecting different kinds of stamps and about mail processing stories from around the world. Share your pleasures with other readers and let us all enjoy them with you.

Finally, in the last issue, we issued a challenge for collectors to submit a list of all the post offices in the new Nunavut Territory. We neglected to also recognize that the North West Territories had also changed. Remember your history? Except for Upper and Lower Canada (which were much smaller than the provinces of Ontario and Quebec as we know them today) and the Maritimes, most of the rest of the country was known by different names at different times. In 1869, it was all Northwest Territory except for British Columbia. Other changes took place over the years. The rest of the challenge is who will be the first to send in a list of all the post offices now included in the Northwest Territories?

P.S. The writer’s guidelines are not yet ready. Next time!
Fishermen’s tales are legendary. Everyone knows that. The size of the fish that got away is not even limited to the reach of the angler’s arm-span reach... it was the grandaddy of them all! Yeh!

Well, I'm no fisherman – just a philatelist. But I would like to tell you about how a stamp “got away” from me once. And I still cry about it, now and then (like now; as I’m writing this account of the incident).

During my 42 year career path with the Royal Bank of Canada I saw service in various countries. In 1952 I was stationed in their Kingston, Jamaica branch. In those days we used a postage metre to frank our outgoing mail, but the collection department used adhesive postage/revenue stamps to affix to the bills of exchange that they handled. We used to purchase supplies of those stamps from a little old lady who got them from the post office at a small discount (a charitable arrangement for her).

The 1938 George VI definitive set of Jamaican stamps stopped at the 10 shillings value, but in 1949 a £1 stamp was added to it. Its usage was mainly for revenue purposes, as the airmail rate to the UK at that time was a mere 6d., so for a postal package to attract a £1 rate had to weigh a ton! But for revenue purposes a £1 stamp was no great deal. The bank mopped them up. But then George VI died and the sparse supply of his £1 stamps dried up. The Jamaican post office ordered a fresh supply from the printers, but, seeing that Elizabeth II was now on the throne, they supplied them with her portrait on them in lieu of that of her father, George VI.

At the time, the Jamaican postal authorities were in the process of selecting new designs for a completely new set of stamps bearing Elizabeth II’s effigy, and it was decided not to issue this £1 stamp. It was debated to surcharge the printing to a 6d value to honour the impending visit of Princess Margaret Rose, the Queen’s younger sister, but in the end it was felt that such would be improper and the entire printing was ordered to be incinerated. And so it was done.

Except, that one day the little old lady came into the bank with her supply of stamps and the Foreign Exchange teller, who handled the collection items requiring revenue stamps, happened to notice that she had a sheet of 60 £1 stamps with the Queen’s head on them. He commented on this, and the old lady said that she wasn’t sure that they were supposed to be used. She extracted a promise from the teller to return them to her if such happened to be the case. With that she hied off back to the post office, a scant two streets away.

Meanwhile, the teller, knowing of my addiction to philately, showed the sheet to me. My legs trembled and I just about soiled my knickers! My salary in those days was £75 a month, so a £60 purchase was a huge outlay. But I telephoned my father and got his permission to charge his account with £60 to acquire this priceless sheet of stamps. It was then that the teller told me of his promise to the old lady. In those bygone days the banks still had tellers’ “cages” (like animals in a zoo), and that is what saved that teller’s life; for I was set to kill him if I could have laid hands on him!

Sure enough, a few minutes later the old lady was back in the branch, accompanied by none other a personage than the Postmaster General! They headed straight to the Manager’s office and then his secretary was bidden to call the teller to the Sanctum Sanctorum. He emerged moments later and headed back to his cage to retrieve the sheet of stamps and return to the Manager’s office.

In the Queen’s version of the stamp, her effigy was on the right-hand side and she was depicted facing to the left.

Shortly afterwards the Postmaster General and the old lady departed, but I accosted him before he left the premises and asked if I couldn’t have a corner block of four of the stamps. He looked at me and asked if I was a stamp collector, to which I replied in the affirmative. “In that case,” he said, “you should know better than to ask that question,” whereupon he swept out of the office.

On my lunch break that day I visited my old pal, Everard Aguilar (Kingston’s only stamp dealer at the time), and told him of the morning’s events. He didn’t believe me, but at my urging he telephoned the Postmaster General who confirmed that one sheet of the QE £1 stamp had somehow escaped the flames and nearly got into circulation. Everard berated me for having let that sheet slip through my fingers. “I’d have paid you £5 for each of those stamps”, he told me. That would have been a nice profit for me, but it was a deal that I wouldn’t have entertained. A price tag of £25 each would have been more like it (don’t forget that my monthly salary was only £75 at the time... but to have held the only sheet of that stamp I could easily have commanded that price!). How that one sheet had escaped the destruction of the issue was never divulged.

But, like the unlucky fisherman who didn’t manage to hang onto his monumental catch, I, too, lost it.

The Royal Collection does have a corner block of four of this “non-stamp”; but I console myself with the thought that I was privileged to hold in my hands, for a fleeting second, that “renegade” sheet of stamps which eventually went to join its mates in the flames of the incinerator.
THE RESUMPTION OF BERLIN'S POSTAL SERVICE (1945)

By Wolf J. Pelikan

(There was a Courier postal service in Berlin as of May 18 1945. This was followed by a short episode of a general postal service from May 21 to 23, 1945.)

On April 20, 1945, when Hitler shot himself in the bunker of the State Chancellery in Berlin, the post office staff was still working in the Berlin SW 11 post office nearby. The last Commander of “The Battle of Berlin,” General Helmut Weidling capitulated on May 2, 1945. About 300,000 Soviet soldiers fell in the battle for Berlin. The German dead were so numerous they could hardly be counted.

After almost six years of war, of the 188 post offices in Berlin, 18 per cent were totally destroyed, 45 per cent were half destroyed and 37 per cent partially destroyed or damaged. The letter boxes were full of field-post letters, postcards and letters from people endeavouring to get in touch with relatives and friends. Tens of thousands of pieces of mail were lying unsorted in the post offices which were no longer functioning.

On April 30, 1945, the Ulbricht Group was set up in Calau, about 80 km, (50 miles) southeast of Berlin. The former postal inspector for the Berlin W15 post office, Ernst Kehler belonged to this group. He was of the 1913 age group and was a lieutenant in the Intelligence Corps. Kehler, who had been in Soviet captivity, had included himself in the “National Committee of Free Germany” which was run by German communists.

On May 16, 1945, Kehler visited the former State Director of Posts in Berlin-Charlottenburg, Dernburgstrasse 50, and presented himself to H. Dox, the Director-General of Posts. Dox had received his appointment on May 10, 1945 from General Berzarin, the Soviet Commandant of Berlin. Kehler informed Dox that he (i.e. Kehler) had been entrusted with the supervision of the postal service by Marshall Georgii Zhukov of the Soviet Union. Kehler had an order with him from the Soviets. Dox immediately vacated his position.

As a first step Kehler set up on May 18, 1945 the so-called, “Stafettenpost”, (Courier Post), which originally consisted of messengers on foot or on bicycles. Its essential task during the first few days was to carry out the distribution of the Municipal Council’s mail with the various offices still functioning. At that time there were 66 post offices and agencies, among them the General Letter Post Office of Berlin N4 on Invalidenstrasse (later in the Soviet Sector), Berlin NW7 on Dorotheenstrasse.
observer of that time who has subsequently passed away, remembered the events of the time as follows. "Lower echelons of the Soviet military authority had agreed with the postal authorities concerning the resumption of limited postal service in Berlin for letters and postcards up to 20 grammes. A higher Soviet authority quashed everything two days later."

This statement would carry a lot of credibility if it were considered in conjunction with a protocol of the Mayoral Sessions of May 18, 1945 for the administrative district of Wilmersdorf, (later in the English sector), the Study Group for the Post-war Postal History of Berlin found a statement that says the Soviet Military Authorities basically felt that one, "Does not commit anything to writing." Its orders were to be passed on by word of mouth, so that they could be, if needed, denied in correspondence. It was also resolved at the same session that Deputy Mayor Wallner should resign his post since he had made public in writing three Russian orders for the expulsion of foreigners.

The Courier Service was modeled on the old Berlin City Post of the 19th century. Convenient routes from the four functioning Main Letter Offices led to the post offices in Berlin's outer suburbs. The messengers on foot or on bicycle proceeded at stipulated times in the outgoing and incoming directions to all the post offices along their route, handing over their sendings and accepting those for other recipients.

Altogether there were 16 courier services with a further 16 auxiliary courier services subordinate to them. Mail, which could not be delivered within the area served by a Main Letter Office were exchanged with the other Main Letter Offices. The courier routes were specifically classified as follows:

A postal service for the official mail only, of the self-governing organizations went into operation on May 16, 1945. This type of official mail was marked with an official cachet inscribed, “Magistrat der Stadt Berlin” (Municipal Council of the City of Berlin).

Much of this mail also received a marking or manuscript notation reading, “Dienstsahe des Magistrats – Sofort durch besonderen Boten abzutragen”, (Official Mail of the Municipal Council – to be conveyed immediately by special messengers). This messenger post had its own, “Offical Bureau of Posts and Communications”, in the building on Parochialstrasse 1/3.

It is stated in a surviving directive of the Department for Personal Affairs and Administration of the Municipal Council, dated May 29, 1945 that:

“The Official Bureau will accept firstly, only the collective official mail of the Municipal Council of the city of Berlin from the Town Hall to the offices of the suburban mayors in the relevant administrative area and vice-versa. Delivery will take place at present within 48 hours and this period of time will be shortened as soon as possible. The acceptance of the relevant mail for delivery must be carried out daily up to 5:00 p.m.”

It cannot be specified at this point in time just how long this Official Mail Service of the Municipal Council as set up on May 18, 1945, functioned under the Courier Post formed by the Department of the Municipal Council for Posts and Communications. It is not known when it gradually passed to the control of the Courier Post. Documents about this matter have still to be found.

It can be asserted, however, that mail items of the Messenger Post of the Municipal Council have surfaced dating from as early as May 16, 1945, but these are just as difficult to find as examples of the Courier Post of the Department of the Municipal Council for Posts and Communications.

It is more difficult to identify either the handwritten or hand-stuck markings, such as the cachet of the Municipal Council or of one of its departments on examples of the Courier Post during the period of the Messenger Post of the Municipal Council. There exists a very impressive piece of 7, 7. 45, handed in at the Berlin C2 post office with the handwritten notation, 0 17 EILT SEHR: MIT STAFETTE NACH 17, (East 17 -
Further, “overflows from the letter boxes”, up to May 31, 1945 are as follows:

- A cover from Berlin SW61, dated 24.5.1945.
- A cover from Berlin SW61, dated 29.5.1945.
- Two covers from Berlin-Tempelhof 1, dated 29.5.1945.
- A cover from Berlin-Lichterfelde 1, dated 30.5.1945.
- A card from Berlin-Charlottenburg 9, dated 31.5.1945.
- Two further covers from Berlin-Charlottenburg 2, dated 2.5.1945.

As far as can be ascertained from the texts of the letters and postcards, these are examples of mail which were written on April 20, 21 and 22, 1945, i.e. during the military operations in Berlin.

It is evident from the lists on hand at the Department of Posts and Communications of the Municipal Council dated May 19, 1945 concerning the extent of destruction to the individual post offices, that the Berlin SW61 post office could be set up as a temporary installation for the acceptance, sorting and delivery of letters. The post offices of Berlin-Charlottenburg 2 and Berlin-Charlottenburg 9 were both operational and in working order. The Berlin-Lichterfelde 1 post office was operational despite severe damage and in spite of extensive destruction. An emergency installation was also immediately available at the Berlin-Tempelhof 1 post office.

Closely related to all this was the fact that these, “overflows”, came from the unclerared letter boxes of the relevant post offices and that, with the resumption of operations and emergency measures, the mail from the letter boxes was the first to be attended to and received the sorting dates stamps. Some of the 11 “overflow” items listed above bear a marking that reads, ZURÜCK (Send back), and were often returned to the senders, if they had addresses in Berlin. In other cases, so far as can be determined, they were delivered providing they did not bear field-post addresses.

This year marks R. Maresch & Sons’ 75th anniversary in the stamp business. The firm’s March 9-10 public sale certainly helped to successfully celebrate this remarkable achievement by once again offering collectors an impressive array of rare and choice material.

Lot 936 had to be the sale’s pièce de résistance! It contained a remarkably-centred Mint original copy of Canada’s 1851 12d Black Queen Victoria. The stamp (ex. Lichtenstein, Jarrett et al. collections) was estimated at $75,000+ and sold for an amazing $98,900 (prices in Canadian funds and include the 15 per cent buyer’s fee). Even a crude and faulty fake of the stamp (lot 937) was sold for an incredible $603.75 against an estimate of $100-pluss!

Other rare Canadian items included a selection of seldom-seen large die proofs on thin wove paper of the 1868 Large Queen issue. Lots 1090-1096 were estimated at $3,500+ each and sold from $2,990 (lot 1092) for the 3-cent Bright Orange value to $9,487.50 (lot 1096) for the 15-cents Dark Grey Violet watermarked value. The seven lots totalled $37,490. Lot 1298 featured a heavy-hinged, but wonderfully centred, Mint copy of the 1897 5s Green Jubilee which sold for $1,552.50 (1999 Unitrade value of $1,700). A perfectly-centred Mint NH copy of the 1929 50-cent Bluenose (lot 1463) sold for $299 with a Unitrade value of $600 quoted. A horizontal Mint LH pair of the stamp vertically imperforate (lot 1464) with a Unitrade value of $1,000, went to a new home for a very reasonable $373.75.

The firm is well-known for providing excellent Commonwealth and worldwide material and the sale contained a superb 300+ lot collection of Seychelles formed by Mr. Earl Palmer. Highlights included lot 363, a Mint LH pair of the 1893 3-cent on 4-cent Provisional Surcharge with the right surcharge missing, which sold for $8,050 against a 1999 Scott value of U.S. $4,750. A Mint-hinged block of nine of the same over-printed stamp (lot 364) but with the surcharge inverted sold for $6,325 (Scott U.S. $2,700).

Worldwide material in the sale included lot 625, a classic Used 1850-72 Austrian collection with an estimated value of $5,000+. It sold for $4,887.50. A specialized collection of over 200 1849-76 proofs and essays from France (lot 668) reached $1,035 against an estimate of $500+. A German lot of 16 Mint NH values of the 1951-52 Posthorn issue (lot 705) sold for $1,207.50 (Scott U.S. $2,400). A Very Fine NH/LH set of the 1901 Pan-American Exposition from the USA realized $632.50 against a Scott value of U.S. $786 (lot 801).

The firm’s June sale is equally impressive and work is already progressing on its fall sale. Contact R. Maresch & Son at 330 Bay St., Suite 703, Toronto, ON M5H 2S8; telephone (416) 363-7777; fax (416) 363-6451; or see their website at: www.maresch.com for more information.

GIBBONS’ SALE

Stanley Gibbons’ March 24-26 sale provided collectors with a fine selection of Commonwealth and worldwide material. Let’s examine a few of them from the sale.

Canada and BNA material proved popular. Lot 92 contained a nice looking Used copy of the 1851 3d Orange-Vermilion Beaver. Estimated at $260-280, it sold for $368 (Cdn. $927.36; the exchange rate at $2.52 and prices quoted include the 15 per cent buyer’s fee). A lot of partially-imperforate Mint NH horizontal pairs of the 1-cent-12-cent values from the 1927 Confederation issue (lot 124) was estimated at $400-450 and realized $920 (Cdn. $2,318.40). Newfoundland’s scarce 1857-1/2d Scarlet-Vermilion was offered in Mint condition with original gum (lot 537). The stamp had large margins but a “trivial” horizontal bend and was estimated at $1,000-1,200. It sold for $1,092 (Cdn. $2,751.84). An imperforate between Mint vertical pair of the 1933 5-c Air Mail issue (lot 553) was estimated at $550-650 and went to a new owner for $690 (Cdn. $1,738.80).

Great Britain’s 1840 1d Black Queen Victoria, printed from various plates, was obviously well represented in the sale. A used example from Plate 2 (lot 1595) reached £69 (Cdn. $173.88) with an estimate of £50-60. Lot 1603 featured a Used PJ-PK (Plate 11) Grey-Black rare horizontal pair with close to wide margins.

Estimated at £3,000-3,400, the pair reached £3,450 (Cdn. $8,694). A stunning Used block of four (KK-L) from Plate 6 (lot 1600), however, failed to find a new home.

The sale’s worldwide offerings included a Mint (part OG) copy of the Luxembourg 1852 10-cent Grey-Black issue (lot 1177) which sold for £1,035 (Cdn. $2,608.20) against an estimate of £900-1,000. Belgium’s 1849 20-cent Blue in Mint OG condition with four good margins (lot 844) had a similar estimate and realized the same price. The People’s Republic of China 1962 Mei Lan-fang miniature sheet was offered in Mint NH condition (with a small wrinkle; lot 928) at an estimate of £1,300-1,500, and Used with a special cancel (wrinkles; lot 929) estimated at £600-700. They sold for £1,322 (Cdn. 3,331.44) and £632 (Cdn. 1,592.64) respectively.

Stanley Gibbons Auctions will be having several more sales this year including its "Rarities of the World" sale in September, and “All World” sales in October and December. Estimated at $8,000, it sold for $6,820 (prices include the 10 per cent buyer’s fee). A Mint NH 1990 39-cent Queen Elizabeth horizontal pair imperforate between (lot 1302) reached $522.50 with an estimate of $750. A completely imperf horizontal pair of the same stamp in the following lot (1303) sold for $550 with a similar estimate. A Mint NH copy of the 1978 50-cent Prairie Street “ghost town” image with the printing missing in lot 1294 realized $1,980 against a $2,000 estimate. The famous 1935 1-cent Princess Elizabeth “Weeping Princess” variety in a Mint NH UL corner block of six (lot 1265) had an estimate of $150 and went to a new owner for $126.50.

Lot 1111 contained a complete set of... plate Proof singles on card in colours of issue of the 1897 Queen Victoria Jubilee issue. Estimated at $3,500, the set sold for $2,530. Several Mint and Used copies of the 1929 50-cent Bluenose were offered in the sale. Canada’s “most beautiful” stamp in Mint condition sold between $49.50 (lot 1240; F-VF Unused NG) and $264 (lot 1238; VF NH). In VF Used condition from $49.50 (lot 1242) to $121 (lot 1241). The 1929 $1 Parliament in Mint F-VF condition (with small hinge remnant) in lot 1243 reached $82.50 despite its $150 estimate.

Commonwealth material always attracts interesting results in these sales. Lot 108, a nice Mint OG pair of the Barbados 1855 4d Brown Red Britannia on unwatermarked blue paper was estimated at $150 and sold for $176. A VF Mint NH 1923 £1 Violet and Red issue from Dominica (lot 276) sold for $220 and was estimated at $250. A VF Mint NH 1948 £1 Silver Wedding value from the Falkland Islands (lot 280) went to a new home for $71.50 (estimated at $90). Used singles of Britain’s 1840 1d Black Victoria sold between $35.20 (lot 365; minor corner crease) to $176 (lot 363; margins all around).

In the worldwide section, lot 1641 attracted a great deal of attention. It contained a Mint OG block of 15 of France’s 1862 25-cent Blue Louis Napoleon re-issue. This incredible large-margin block had a diagonal crease on the LR stamp and was estimated at $4,000. The showpiece sold for $1,760. A complete Mint NH collection of all United Nations issues from 1951-1997 (including souvenir sheets) in a Lighthouse hingeless album was offered in lot 1771 at a $350 estimate. It sold for $308. The firm is already lotting for its August sale. They can be reached at 112 Sparks St., Ottawa, ON, K1P 5B6; e-mail: kimmerly@compsuserve.com; telephone (613) 235-9119; fax (613) 235-9504. CENTURY-OLD CANADIAN CHRISTMAS STAMP FEATURED ON FAVOURITE CANADIANA STAMP OF 1998

A souvenir sheet from Grenada, featuring a reproduction of a century-old Canadian stamp, is the favourite Canadiana issue of 1998 according to voting members of the Canadiana Study Unit.

The winning souvenir sheet was one of two souvenir sheets and a set of six stamps issued for Christmas 1998 by the Caribbean island. The set features the beauty of birds as drawn by British artist Jennifer Toombs who was commissioned by Grenada's philatelic representative, the Inter-Governmental Philatelic Corporation (IGPC) of New York. Designer Toombs added decorative holiday borders to the stamps in keeping with the Christmas theme.

Unbeknown to the designer, the winning $6 Grenada souvenir sheet turned out to be different from the rest of the set in that it is of a stamp-on-stamp format. The original Toombs design did not include a reproduced Canadian stamp. Somewhere in the production process, the Grenada stamp was altered to faithfully reproduce Canada Scott #85, the Canadian "map stamp" of 1898.

The Canadian stamp was chosen for use as a stamp-on-stamp since it is generally regarded as the world's first Christmas stamp. An inscription on the Canadian stamp reads "XMAS 1898." This tied in nicely with the Grenada set as 1998 also marks the centenary of the world's first Christmas stamp.

The stamp portion of the Grenada souvenir sheet is quite large measuring 38 by 61 millimetres. It shows the colourful hummingbird known as the Purple-throated Carib (Eulampis jugularis) feeding at a yellow Allamanda flower, below which is the Canadian map stamp. The wording above the Canadian stamp reads 100TH ANNIVERSARY / FIRST CHRISTMAS STAMP 1898.

The Grenada stamp was officially issued on December 1, 1998. Printing by multicolour offset lithography was done in Dublin, Ireland by BDT International Security Printers Limited using unwatermarked PVA gummed security-coated paper.

The Grenada item was a popular choice as of all votes cast, the winning stamp was the first choice of 45 per cent. Further, a total of 75 per cent of voters picked the Grenada stamp as one of their top three.

Finishing in second spot in the annual poll was a stamp from Australia depicting the clipper ship Marco Polo. Although not chosen as the winner, the Australian stamp was a popular choice as more than half of those voting (55 per cent) picked it as one of top three stamps of 1998.

The 85 Australian stamp was issued on January 15, 1998, part of a four stamp set on the theme "Maritime Heritage."

The Marco Polo was a three-masted wooden clipper ship built by James Smith at Saint John, New Brunswick in 1851. On her maiden voyage she sailed from Canada to Liverpool, England with a cargo of timber.

In 1852 she was sold to James Baines of Liverpool for the Black Ball Line of Australian Packets and she was reworked for use in the passenger trade. That year, under the command of Captain James Nicol Forbes, she made the first recorded round trip from England to Australia in under six months, actually in five months, 21 days. Marco Polo was fast becoming something of a legend in her own time. The great ship had just circumnavigated the world in an amazing time of less than six months. As such, she was deemed the fastest ship in the world, the “Queen of the Seas.”

In subsequent years, the ship transported thousands of emigrants to new homes in Australia. It is said that today one in every 20 Australians can trace his or her roots to the Marco Polo!

The great vessel remained in the Australian trade for 15 years. Some time later she was used in the Quebec timber trade.

The ship’s career ended tragically in 1883. On July 22 of that year she sprang a leak in the St. Lawrence and was run aground near Cavendish, Prince Edward Island. A gale subsequently broke up the famous ship.

The Australian stamp was designed by Brian Sadgrove. McPhersons did the printing using offset lithography on Harrison paper. The stamps were printed in panes of 50 without gutters.

Third place in the 1998 Canadiana popularity poll went to another stamp depicting a legendary Canadian ship, this time the Bluenose.

On March 16, 1998, the Caribbean island of Dominica issued a set of four stamps, a block of six 55-cent stamps and two souvenir sheets on the theme “History of Sail.” One of the stamps in the block of six pictured the Bluenose.

The original Bluenose was launched at Lunenburg, Nova Scotia in March 1921. She was designed as a fishing schooner but intended for racing. In 1921 she won the International Fisherman’s Race for Canada, redeeming a loss to the U.S. in the 1920 race. The famous Bluenose raced many times after and over the next 20 years won more competitions than any other schooner.

Tragically, the vessel was wrecked on a reef off the coast of Haiti on January 29, 1946.

The Bluenose stamp from Dominica was designed by Kim Gromoll. The House of Questa printed the stamps on unwatermarked PVA gummed security-coated paper in London, England using multicolour offset lithography.

The fourth favourite stamp of last year was issued by the United States. That was the stamp, Scott #3235, commemorates the Klondike Gold Rush of 1898.

Although the first major gold discovery was made in the Klondike region of the Canadian Yukon in 1896, the gold rush actually peaked in 1898. It is this that is commemorated on the U.S. stamp.

In 1898 some 60,000 Americans sought their fortune in Canada. It is their arduous journey through treacherous mountain passes in pursuit of Klondike gold that is portrayed on the U.S. stamp by designer Howard Paine.

The 32-cent Klondike stamps were printed offset by Ashton-Potter (USA) Limited in panes of 20. First day of issue was August 21, 1998 at both Nome and Skagway, Alaska.

Registering in fifth place in the 1998 poll was a stamp from Antigua, yet another stamp with a maritime theme. This time the stamp depicts a lighthouse. To be exact, the $1.65 stamp shows the Point Abino Lighthouse located near Crystal Beach, Ontario.

The Antiguan stamp is part of a set consisting of eight stamps and one souvenir sheet on the theme “Lighthouses of the World.” The stamp, Scott #2146, was designed by Mordechai Friedman. Printing was done in England by The House of Questa using multicolour offset lithography. First day of issue was April 20, 1998.

The only other stamp to have received more than a couple of votes in the poll was a stamp from Ireland. The 32p stamp depicts Col. James Fitzmaurice and the aircraft Bremen. Fitzmaurice was the navigator on the first east-west transatlantic airplane flight, flying a Junkers W33, D1167 Bremen from Baldonnel, Co. Dublin to Canada, landing on Greenly Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence on April 13, 1928.

The Irish stamp, Scott #1102, is part of a four stamp series dubbed “Irish Aviation Pioneers.” Issued on February 24, 1998, the Bremen stamp was printed using lithography by Irish Security Stamp Printing. The designer was Vincent Killory. A total of one million copies of the 32p stamp were printed.

Several other stamps received one or two votes with no other stamp receiving significant point totals.

What Can Be Done?

There have been numerous letters and articles complaining about the current problems with philately. Among the causes mentioned are: The high face value of new stamps; large number of different stamps issued; smaller number of stamps being used on mail; discouragement of new collectors; difficulty of obtaining good used stamps; types of cancellations. All these items have been identified as causing the decline in our hobby. If we want to restore philately to its former glory, many things have to be done.

This article will list many things that if changed would help to correct the problems. Many of the changes mentioned are obviously impractical. However, it must be kept in mind that many different things combined together to cause the present situation. It is not expected that any one person, or even any group or club can make all the changes listed. It may not even be desirable to change all the things mentioned back to the way they were. Some of the possible changes may even make the situation worse than it is now. Where the changes are not practical, it is obvious that we must work around the problems. Changes must be made, either inside of the hobby to the method stamp collecting, or outside the hobby to remove the problems. These are things to start people thinking.

At first glance the falling number of active collectors, and the decline in new collectors, are seen as the causes of the decline in interest in philately. These are not causes but an effect caused by the things listed and possibly by other things not listed.

The high face value of the new stamps

The face value of the stamps is set by Canada Post to offset their cost in providing postal service. This value is controlled, or rather forced upon the postal authorities by the requirements of operating the postal system. Another reason for the higher cost is the change of policy from the government providing a postal service to the public to a policy of user pay. The solution of course is to lower the cost of mailing a letter. It is doubtful that Canada Post will accept this solution. It is also doubtful that the government will revert to its former policy. Another solution, one which can be controlled by collectors is to collect postally used stamps rather than to collect mint stamps exclusively.

The large number of different stamps issued

This again is an option of the postal authorities who decide how many stamps to issue. There are several reasons for changing to a new issue of stamps. The postal rate may have to be changed to cover rising costs. There may be an important event that the government may wish to commemorate. There may be a new monarch to be shown on the stamps. All these are valid reasons but they are not the only reasons.

A driving factor in the number of stamps issued is the greed of the postal authorities who, following the lead of some small third or fourth world administrations have discovered a good thing. The more stamps they can coax collectors to put into their collections in Mint condition the more money they will make. The high number of commemorative stamps being issued is where this problem shows itself. The greed becomes very apparent when the subjects of the commemorative stamps do not bear any relation to our country. One correction for this is for collectors to stop collecting these issues.

At present there is a feeling that collections must be complete. This should not be the standard for a good collection. A good collection should be based on good taste. The standards for taste will depend on the standards for exhibiting and judging stamp collections.

The high number of commemorative stamps being issued is being fostered on collectors specializing in collecting commemoratives. They cannot be faulted for their choice of specialization. Yet their choice is a factor which influences the number of different stamps produced. Fewer issues of better quality would probably be favoured by these collectors. This again is a question of the standards of the collectors.

A possible correction for this problem could be to put pressure on the government to make a statutory requirement that the issue of commemoratives be related to regular definitive issues by a fixed ratio based on the number of stamps required for postal use. It is possible that MP's would be favourable to this suggestion if it were pointed out that this would show Canada as a more mature nation, not a money-grubbing nation. It would probably take government action to limit the number of commemoratives as Canada Post would not likely give up this easy source of revenue.

One way that Canada Post could get some of the collectors to purchase and collect some mint stamps would be to make very slight colour differences in definitive stamps which are issued in different formats. At present dealers catalogue stamps issued in booklets with a stamp identification number for the booklet. This in spite of the fact that some of the stamps are imperforated on one or more sides, which by definition makes them a different stamp. By also having a slight colour shade difference collectors of used stamps could identify which books the stamps came from. This would make the collection of common definitives more interesting to new collectors and would thus increase their interest in collecting. In all probability they would continue to collect and move on to collecting mint stamps.

This would be in the interest of both the collecting fraternity and to the financial interest of Canada Post. The idea of a shade difference could be carried to stamps which are issued in mini-sheets. At present once the stamps are collected, the source cannot be detected. This is the type of thing that Canada Post can do which would be an aid to promoting stamp collecting. It is likely that some advance collectors would want to have complete mini-sheets in their collections to show why they collected the shade difference. At the same time collectors would not feel it absolutely necessary to purchase whole sheets. The result would be to lower the financial pressure on collectors and at little cost have some benefit to Canada Post.

At the same time a government policy for the issuing of commemoratives should limit the subject being commemorated to subjects which are typical of Canada and which show Canada in a good light. We are in danger of having to copy stamps which have been issued by other countries for no reason other than to make money. This type of action does not put our country in a good light.

The smaller number of stamps being used

This problem concerns mainly the collector of postally used stamps. There are several reasons for this. One of the reasons is the general reduction in use of mail because of use of other means of communication such as telephone and e-mail on the Internet. Increasing use of metered mail results in fewer stamps being used. This problem is aggravated by the Canada Post action in having their clerks discouraging the use of stamps and encouraging the use of a metered sticker when a letter is taken to the post office for weighing. It seems strange that Canada Post claims to encourage stamp collecting yet discourage the use of stamps. I have even seen a suggestion that reduced postage should be charged for mail with metered stickers. That is, there would be a premium charged for the use of postage stamps! This is a major cause for reduction in the number of stamp collectors. Of course they wish us to collect only mint stamps so they can sell the stamp yet not give the service of handling mail!

Discouragement of new collectors

New collectors are generally children. There are of course some new adult collectors, but most are children. For children cost is a big item. The sheer number and high face value of mint stamps is daunting to anyone who is trying to collect mint stamps. To this is added the cost of other materials required in collecting. The cost of a package of stamp hinges has risen from a few cents to several dollars (farther than the rate of inflation). Stamp album costs have increased greatly over the years. The answer to this problem is to collect used stamps on plain paper in loose leaf binders on plain paper. Better quality and fancier albums and collecting mint stamps can come later when interest in collecting has become established. Dealers would be better advised to encourage collecting rather than encourage the sale of albums. The desire for good albums will come with experience in collecting.

Another thing that discourages new collectors is that collecting mint stamps appears to the new collector very similar to collecting sports cards, and not as interesting. Mint collecting becomes very interesting when it becomes an adjunct to collecting postally used stamps. In this case it provides a good clear copy of a stamp that may be badly cancelled and the collection of both show the postal connection, which then becomes the focus of the interest. A new collector may not see this focus and thus not become interested.

The solution to this problem is to point out to all concerned that most collectors start as collectors of used stamps. If they cannot get used stamps, they will not start to collect. If they do not collect, they will not graduate to collecting mint stamps. Discouraging the collection of used stamps will in the long run discourage the collecting of mint stamps. This will be harmful to Canada Post, dealers and collectors alike. The focus must be kept on postage stamps or the hobby will deteriorate to the level of collecting items which were made only to be collected.

Difficulty in obtaining good used stamps

This problem occurs partly due to the general reduction of letters using stamps as discussed above. Another cause of this problem for collectors of used stamps is the change in method of distributing stamps. At one time all post offices carried all stamps. Now due to the large number of stamps in print at any one time this is no longer practical as the number of stamps of common denominations which each office would have to carry would exceed the number of stamps they could sell. The post office quickly recognized that if all offices carried all stamps many would have to be recalled as new stamps were issued.
This would not be cost efficient so they opened a special philatelic office ostensibly to provide a service to the collector. This served to reduce the necessity of sending all stamps to all offices which in turn resulted in only those who used the philatelic office (collectors) would purchase these stamps. The general public, many of who are not aware of the philatelic office, would never see or hear of these stamps. The effect of this on collectors is that most of the stamps sold through the special office are being used for mint collections. A secondary effect is that less of these stamps get postally used and thus do not become available for collectors of used stamps. This is another example of Canada Post encouraging the collection of mint stamps and discouraging the collection of used stamps.

This problem is aggravated by stamp dealers who find it much more convenient to obtain a sheet of mint stamps and tear off one as required than it is to obtain used stamps, soak off the stamps and sort the stamps for sale. Dealers will have to balance their convenience with the effects of reducing the number of collectors. This could become a matter of continued existence for both the dealer and the collector.

The solution for this problem is to evoke the law of supply and demand. Demand that the dealer obtain a good used copy of a stamp that you desire. If enough demands are made for good copies of used stamps they will see that such stamps are available. There may be an increase in the cost but this will level out at a proper level (which may be higher than mint, as they may have to use mint to obtain used stamps) as more collectors make their desires known.

Another situation caused by this difficulty in obtaining good used stamps is that collectors are unable to amass sufficient copies to provide a good basis for trading stamps with other collectors. This trading of stamps was a feature of collecting that promoted enthusiasm in collecting. It encouraged new collectors as they could improve their collections and see how others collected. Stamp clubs are losing members who no longer find club activities interesting. Trading stamps was an activity that only stamp clubs carried out, without trading there was very little difference between stamp clubs and any other club.

Types of Cancellations

There has been much discussion on the changes Canada Post has made in cancellations. At one time the most desired cancellation was a nice clear, clean, round cancellation made with a cancelling hammer. This is now seldom used and cancellations are made with rubber stamps resulting in heavy lines and smears which obscure the face of the stamp. Stamps are also cancelled by spray jet printing in a form which is considered undesirable.

The type of cancellation is, of course, the pergative of the post office as the purpose of the cancellation is to show that the stamp has been postally used. The method used is, of course, a matter of economics. However, there is no reason why Canada Post cannot come up with a cancellation which is appealing to collectors as well as efficient in cancelling the stamp. Even rubber stamps can be made with thin lines that would give a nice cancellation. This is something that could be requested of Canada Post. If they are really interested in encouraging collectors, they will be able to come up with a method that is satisfactory to collectors as well as efficient. It can always be pointed out that if the interest in collecting stamps drops much more due to their actions/inactions they will have killed the golden goose. If they don't want to be cooperative, well we don't have to collect Canadian stamps.

Another problem which occurs is a similar cause. Canada Post is very careless with cancellations, not only by making a mess of the stamp, but by missing the cancellation entirely. This results in the collector of used stamps obtaining what amounts to a mint stamp with no glue on the back. The post office claim that using any stamp which has been through the mail is illegal. A claim could be made that the stamp has not been used until it has been cancelled. This point should be clarified by some authorities (other than the post office, who claim it is illegal in an attempt to cover their mistake). If it was recognized that uncancelled stamps were legal to use maybe Canada Post would be more careful in doing their job.

GST

The imposition of GST on the purchase of stamps has a bad effect on the collection of either new or used stamps. This is purely a matter of the way it was done and the stubborn way that the method is continued. Originally stamps were designed to pay for postage fees and taxes, i.e. war taxes. When the stamp was placed on a letter, the postage was paid. When the stamp was cancelled, it became a receipt. If GST has to be collected on mail it should be included in the postage charge so the receipt shows that both the postage charge and the GST have been paid. It is legal to include GST in the price of an item and there is a precedent in the inclusion of war tax in the value of postage stamps. Changing to this method would make no change to the amount collected on mint stamps but it would require a bureauocrat to change his mind. It would have removed the tax on used stamps, but if this encouraged collecting the government would eventually make this loss up on the tax on mint stamps.

The method of collecting GST on the value of stamps sent to collectors on approval has all but stopped the use of approvals from dealers outside of Canada. Canada customs puts a value on the entire approval submitted to the collector. Thus the collector is required to pay GST on both the stamps he purchases and the stamps he returns to the dealer. There is probably a method of getting reimbursed but it is so cumbersome that fewer and fewer collectors are using this system. This reduces the fostering of international friendships which were one of the mainstays of philately. GST is applied not only to stamps sent by dealers but stamps sent by swapping with pen friends.

Summation

These problems, like others which have occurred in the past, can be overcome. The best way to overcome them is to change our collecting habits. We must take care that changes we make will improve the hobby not destroy it. We will have a greater effect by changing the standards for exhibiting than by writing letters or articles of complaint. The hobby became great by being very interesting to collectors. This interest showed in our enthusiasm and enthusiasm is catching and thus others took up the hobby. Newcomers to a hobby are not encouraged by attending a meeting where the main subject of conversation are the difficulties of collectors in collecting. This will only encourage them to find another hobby which does not have so many problems!

Grand prize winner Christine Weera
Edmonton, AB

Canada Post has announced that Rosalie Anne Nardelli of Montreal, QC, Sarah Lutgen of Vernon, BC, Andrew Wright of Collingwood, ON, and Christine Weera of Edmonton, AB, are the four grand prize winners of the Stampin’ the Future contest. The contest asked children from across Canada to draw their vision of our country for the next millennium. The artwork from the four winning entries will be immortalized on special stamps to be issued July 1, 2000 in Ottawa, ON.

Thirty finalists, whose designs are shown here, were chosen from among the more than 36,000 entries received. All 30 designs will be on display in the Pitney Bowes Art Gallery of the Canadian Postal Museum at the Canadian Museum of Civilization. The artworks will be presented from July 2000 to January 2001.

Stampin’ the Future, a national stamp design contest to celebrate the new millennium, is part of a larger contest initiated by the United States Postal Service. More than 29 countries are participating in this international event. The winners from each country will gather in Anaheim, California in July 2000 for a special global celebration. The four winning Canadian drawings will become postage stamps to be issued on Canada Day 2000.

Along with this once in a lifetime opportunity, the Grand Prize winners have won a trip for four to Anaheim, California, an IBM personal computer and a CD-ROM encyclopedia from McGraw-Hill. The participating sponsors included: Via Rail Canada, IBM Canada, Boulebogue Bazar (Radio-Canada Télévision), YTV, McGraw-Hill, Québecor Printing Canada and the Government of Canada.

Editor's note: The following is an article on standardized judging criteria. It is meant as a conversation piece and to encourage response.

Judging is a contentious subject and needs to be discussed if we are to progress beyond an unsatisfactory system which is based on old concepts. The reasons for and the methods used to judge exhibits needs some fresh air. But the process is not clearly understood. Judges in the past were reluctant to discuss matters which are based on personal opinions and, perhaps, difficult to put down on paper. The new proposal promises some good answers. A French language version has been promised and will appear in the next issue.

Some exhibits are obviously outstanding. You do not need to be any kind of an expert to realize that a burning passion created something special and interesting to look at. Other exhibits are so boring and uninteresting by comparison that it is easy to give them a “thumbs down”. The real problem is the “in-between” exhibits. These evoke such comments as, “the judges sure knew what they were doing”, or comments which are the exact opposite. Or worse yet, suspicions about an “old boy’s network” come to the surface.

A group of collectors have experimented with a proposed judging method which could be adapted to fit local, regional and international shows. As the exhibit level increases, the greater emphasis is placed on a narrowing scale of differences. Since very few collections are exactly the same, a fair process has to be used to decide which exhibit can garner the highest average points when viewed by a number of judges on the panel.

Some experienced philatelists may not like this system because it is foreign to their previous experiences. They resist change because they feel change is not required. Perhaps they are correct. Maybe changes are not required at the FIP exhibit level. But that is a different playground with different rules.

Many collectors do not aspire to reach this higher level.

They may not have the deep pockets to pay for expensive items if they did, they may not know where to get the items they need to win a Gold medal at an FIP world exhibition.

But, as stamp collecting practices change over time, so is it necessary to change the way they can be compared with each other. The old rules simply do not fit any longer. The standard modus operandi was to ignore new developments until at least 50 years went by. It took that long for facts to shake out in the old, slower moving world. That practice greatly simplified the judging process. But are the old rules still relevant at every level in the world today when news can spread all over the world within seconds using fax machines, the Internet or cheap long distance phone costs?

LOCAL JUDGING SHEET REPORT 1999

During the development of this sheet various preliminary forms were used in Bramalea, ON (Brampton), Woodstock, ON (Oxford, P.S.), London, ON (London, P.S.) and Kitchener-Waterloo, ON in early 1998.

The current sheet was used in Brantford and London (Middlesex, S.C.) in October, 1998 and in (at least) St. Thomas, Woodstock, North Toronto, London (L.P.S.), Kitchener-Waterloo and Hanover, in Ontario and Buffalo, NY, so far this year. The exhibits included in these shows ranged from six, 12 and 16 page exhibits to multi-frame six and 16 page exhibits, including: novice, youth, traditional, thematic, postal history, postal stationery, revenue, display and special studies classes.

For the future, the developers feel that the sheet needs wider distribution and publicity to expand its area of use. If more clubs and potential exhibitors become familiar with the sheet perhaps more clubs will try judged shows. Clubs in upper and central New York state have expressed a strong interest in using this sheet. For more information contact: Ken Magee, R.R.5, G.M.B. 903, Clinton, ON, (519) 482-7754, kmagee@tcc.on.ca.

Note: The development of and the reasons for this sheet are described in the article Standardized Point Sheet for Judging Local Shows in the most recent issue (Vol. 13, No. 2, dated April, 1999, pages 13-16), of The Philatelic Exhibitor.

Extended Criteria List

TITLE PAGE (10 per cent):

The title page is a guide which should educate the viewers, including the judges, giving them a very clear idea of what they will see in the exhibit, especially those who may not be familiar with the material. The title page should focus on the exhibit and the material it contains, not on the subject’s historical background. However, in a Postal History exhibit, some historical information is usually needed on the title page.

Title: The title should be brief, yet clear and inclusive. It should appear only on this page. The title should be sufficiently larger than the text as to be obvious, but not so large or bold as to be overpowering. Also included here could be a second-plan-page for thematics. The use of a separate plan page is encouraged for a highly developed thematic exhibit.

Introduction: This should expand on the title and define the scope, or limits, of the exhibits. A one or two sentence summary should suffice, here.

Plan/Outline/Statement of Organization: One of these is needed to give the sequence and arrangement of the exhibit. It should indicate how the exhibitor will accomplish the stated purpose. This part should briefly list and/or explain the contents of the exhibit like a table of contents does in a book. It should tell "where to find what" – preferably identifying exhibit sections by frames, or by page numbers in a short exhibit.
DEVELOPMENT (15 per cent):
The exhibit should have a clear beginning (the title page), a central theme (the bulk of the material) and a logical ending – without saying “The End”. The conclusion should refer back to your title page, “tying” the exhibit together.

The development should follow the plan-outline/statement of organization. The exhibit should show continuity.

Coverage: The material selected should illustrate the chosen subject or theme. The exhibit should show balance between sections. The exhibit should show cohesion-coverage should seem complete, within the stated limits. Unrelated material should not be included. (All aspects identified in the introduction and/or plan, etc., should be present and shown in proportion to their significance.)

KNOWLEDGE & RESEARCH (25 per cent):
The degree of knowledge is expressed by the choice of a wide range of philatelic and/or thematic material. The write-up should be clear and concise, and correctly describe the material being shown.

Personal Study (Research): The write-up should go beyond information which is available in standard catalogues (or reference works for theatics). Key/special items should be appropriately discussed. In a Postal History exhibit identification of markings by discreet reference to a standard text can be helpful.

PHILATELIC MATERIAL (30 per cent):
Selection: Material in the exhibit should be identified correctly and be appropriate to the topic. The presence of unusual or interesting items should be given consideration.) Thematic exhibits will be improved by a variety of philatelic items (spread across the exhibits) besides regular stamps, souvenir sheets and uses on commercial covers. These might include such items as coils, booklets, different types of stamps, varieties, meters, special cancellations, postal stationery, (A) maximum card, etc., if they relate to the chosen theme.

(Judges dislike mixed Mint and Used items together in the same series – show them separately.)

Collecting Challenge: Consideration is given to the degree of difficulty normally expected in assembling the material shown.

Condition: This is based on an assessment of the quality of the material shown relative to the condition in which such material is readily available.

PRESENTATIONS (20 per cent):
In local level shows Presentation is a major factor in determining awards. As the exhibit moves up in levels, through Regional and National, then to International, Presentation becomes of decreasing importance (from 20 per cent down to five per cent); while Rarity, Scarcity and the overall Philatelic Importance of the exhibit become increasingly important. At the local level, Rarity, Scarcity and Philatelic Importance are not parts of the judging criteria.

Visual Appeal: The exhibit should be easy to understand and be attractive to viewers. Philatelic material should dominate the pages throughout. There should be some variety in page arrangements, especially between consecutive pages. Page stock should be uniform, preferably of a white or light colour.

Write-up: The text should be easy to read and follow. It should be consistent in size and style. The text should not overwhelm the philatelic material.

Mounting: Mounts and framing of material should be neat and inconspicuous. If a colour photocopy or computer scan of one complete side of a cover is used it should not be life size – 70 per cent is suggested. Any highlighting of “key” items should be done subtly.

Layout: Pages should be neat, with tasteful balance of material. Pages should neither be too empty nor too crowded.

Judges will be made aware of exhibits by novice and/or youth exhibitors. ☑

* General Remarks:

For the judging panel:
In 1962 I acquired a small number of Cape Canaveral, First Day of Issue covers of the Project Mercury, Friendship 7 flight. Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., aged 41, became the first U.S. Astronaut to orbit the Earth solo on February 20th, 1962. His first historic flight took about five hours to make a triple spin around the earth.

A number of Mint copies of U.S. #1193 were tucked away.

Senator John Glenn, now 77, roared back into space at 2:19 p.m. on Thursday, October 29th, 1998 to begin a nine day space flight on the Shuttle Discovery. On this flight he had six crew mates on the team and returned to space as the first orbiting geriatric test subject.

“What would have been a routine science flight, (America’s 123rd human space flight), attracting little notice outside space circles was transformed into a media spectacle by Glenn’s participation. Discovery’s thunderous liftoff and nerve-wracking 8-1/2 minute climb to orbit capped a long campaign by John Glenn to snag a space-shuttle seat,” quoted one daily newspaper.

The four-term Senator began pestering NASA for a ride more than two years ago. He was struck by the similarities between aging and the effects of weightlessness – flimsy bones, flabby muscles, fitful sleep – and offered himself as a test subject.

On Discovery’s return, John Glenn was scheduled to remain in Houston for three weeks to undergo medical tests.

I sent a covering letter, with our congratulations, to John Glenn, asking if he would kindly autograph three covers for my wife and I. We also included a return envelope, dressed up with more than sufficient mint U.S. space stamps attached so not to incur postage due!

Thursday, January 7th, 1999 was a cold, snowy day. Our door-bell rang and the mail-lady handed me a nine by 12 inch manila envelope with a prominent United States Senate logo on the upper left corner. On opening it, I found four covers; one was my return envelope, still unused, as well as the three 1962 Mercury FDCs to which I had added another Mercury stamp and a pair of Canadian RCNVR Corvette stamps, issued in early November.

We were delighted to see that each of the Mercury Covers bore John Glenn’s signature but the bonus was the one he personalized with the additional salutation “To Peggy and Kenneth” above his name. A nice personal touch by a ‘Classy’ gentleman.

Incidentally, the manila outer cover from the Senate cost $1.14 from Washington, DC, but under the U.S. Postal Service label was a facsimile of John Glenn – providing a nice tie-in to the autographed covers we received.

The number of new stamps that are being issued by Canada Post are mind boggling. One special collecting field is the many different coil stamps with most of them issued in very large quantities and for a long period of time.

A few specialists who collect coils have been wondering if anyone has classified these different coils, similar to the Centennial stamps. For example a yellow gum type of coil has been reported recently and a number of paper varieties for the 45-cent coils. Certainly an interesting study field. There is also the tendency to collect them in strips of four rather than in pairs only. (Editor's note: The yellow gum may be a fake.)

A special envelope and cancel was prepared by the Siemens stamp club to celebrate the existence of 75 years of the Siemensstadt, that was founded in 1899. Siemens company employed more than 60,000 and was located in three areas around Berlin and the cover shows the part of the company that was built around 1926. Transportation between the various places was done at that time by Postrider and for this special occasion these few, limited covers were also carried by a postal- rider from Spandau to Siemensstadt. The stamp used shows the first radio produced that had the nickname of D-Train. Werner Siemens transformed communication in Berlin. He built the first dynamo in 1867, the first electric run elevator, the streetcar and street lamps to electrify all of Berlin.

Many stamps can be found on various types of paper. Catalogues list the major paper varieties. It is important to identify papers. Thick or thin paper can make a major difference in a stamp. Take for example a 12-1/2 cents, Canada (no. 18). The thick paper variety rates about twice that of the regular paper.

The thin paper of the seven cent brown Admiral (no. 114) rates about double that of the regular paper. Or the first issue of Baden on thin paper, the first printings, rate about three times that of the second issue. To measure paper thickness one must take care not to be confused by the gum for mint stamps or by the printing dye that can be fairly thick.

A Micrometer is needed as well as to compare one stamp with another. By bending the stamp slightly when holding it may determine if the paper is thin or thick without an actual measurement. Thick papers are often similar to thin pieces of cardboard.

Clark Named to Writers Hall of Fame

Douglas N. Clark of Georgia was elected to the Writers Hall of Fame. The announcement was made by Writers Unit president Alan Warren at the Writers Breakfast held on Sunday, February 28 at the Orange County Convention Center during the Americas 99 show in Orlando.

Clark's writing and editing skills have been most evident in the areas of regional postal history and transit post offices. For 10 years he has edited the Transit Postmark Collector for the Mobile Post Office Society. He has authored several monographs on street car mail services and edited Stars in Those Cars – reminiscences of RPO clerks.

Clark has served organized philately in a number of areas and has exhibited postal history and literature both nationally and internationally. He is an accredited APS judge.
How to Identify Wet and Dry Printing

The Editor asked me to respond to this question asked by C.W. Turner in the May/June issue. Prior to December 26, 1922, it was the practice to dampen paper when printing by the engraved (intaglio) process. On that date a new practice was introduced in which printing was done on dry, pre-gummed paper. By January 1926, all printing was done by the dry method. The only Canadian issues spanning the changeover were the Admirals and the 1922 special delivery.

Paper has a grain and, after dampening, it shrinks more across the grain than with the grain. The above stamps were usually printed with the design running vertically with the grain so wet printed stamps became narrower than dry printed stamps, which do not shrink. Their heights remained nearly the same. An exception was the “squat” printing on some booklets which resulted from the paper being fed with the grain horizontal, so wet printed stamps shrank in height, not width.

The difference in the special delivery stamps is easily measured, with the dry being 42-1/2 mm wide and the wet 41 mm. The difference in the Admirals is less obvious. Dry printed Admirals are about 18 mm wide and wet printed are about 1/2 mm narrower – roughly the width of the frame line. Some can be identified without measuring because Scott #104, 106, 111, 113 and 116 are all wet printing, and #109, 115 and 118 are all dry. Of the others, a check of the catalogue will show a few that can be identified by the die or by retouches (also by shades, but they’re hard to pin down).

The rest are best identified by comparison to a known stamp. If you use a #109, 115 or 118, mint with original gum this is a reliable standard for a dry print. Used are less reliable since both printings may have shrunken. Lay the stamp you want to identify on the bottom half of this known dry print. Use a magnifying glass to line up the vertical frame on one side, then check the other side with the glass. If the other frame lines up, it’s a dry print. If the top stamp is narrower, it’s a wet print. You could use a known wet print as the standard, but wet prints vary a little and make identification less certain.

There are secondary characteristics of wet and dry printing, but none that are as dependable by themselves. Dry printed stamps sometimes appear embossed on the gum side, especially at the back of CANADA POSTAGE. Marler says the gum is slightly mottled and lighter on dry printings. If you have a sheet edge, the gum stops just short of the edge on wet printings. Boggs says wet printings are sharper and have more intense colours.

However, the main identifier is width, and once you have a number of Mint and Used, wet and dry, identified you have a good basis for checking others.

How would you like it if every day a band of monkeys raided your garden and stole your vegetables? Well, such occurrences used to be common in Gibraltar.

Gibraltar is a promontory at the southern tip of the Spanish province of Andalusia, terminating in a great rock formation with limestone cliffs that rise more than 430 metres above sea level. The straits separating the Spanish peninsula from Africa are only 23 kilometres wide at Gibraltar, and control of Gibraltar has meant control of the gateway between the Mediterranean Sea and the Atlantic Ocean. Gibraltar is a British Crown Colony and has long been an important naval base.

In classical antiquity, Gibraltar was known as one of the Pillars of Hercules, the other pillar rising across the straits in Africa. The name Gibraltar is a corruption of Djeb el Tariq, "the hill of Tariq," after the Muslim leader who crossed from North Africa in A.D. 711 and began the conquest of Spain. Gibraltar remained in Muslim hands until its conquest by Spain in the 15th century. In 1704 the British captured the Rock during the war of the Spanish Succession, and British possession was confirmed in 1713 by the Treaty of Utrecht.

Its value as a naval base was unquestioned during the 19th century, and early in this century a great enclosed harbour was built. It was later enlarged and dockyards and machine shops were added.

During WWII the Rock was also used as an air base and because of that it was heavily bombed, thus causing the evacuation of most of the civilian population who are chiefly of Spanish and Italian origin.

In 1964 the colony achieved a large measure of internal self-government under an administration headed by a governor appointed by the British crown.

For some years now Spain has been reclaiming "the Rock," without success. But there is a legend that says the British will never lose control of Gibraltar as long as the Barbary apes live there.

So the British keep and protect the apes. While they are called apes, they are actually tailless monkeys...the only wild monkeys in Europe.

And seeing that they are now fed twice a day, they don't have to go raiding vegetable gardens anymore! They're so friendly today that they might even sit on your shoulder, but watch out... given half a chance they'll pick your pocket!
THE ROYAL PHILATELIC COLLECTION

In 1996 I took a school stamp club to Toronto to visit CAPEX, the International stamp show that was being held in Canada for only the third time. At CAPEX there was an exhibit sent by the Queen from the Royal Collection. Several of the children were fascinated to see the exhibit was written up by hand in pencil and asked me if it was the Queen’s handwriting.

I, of course, didn’t know; so I told them that I thought that it was more likely King George V’s work as he was the person who built up this remarkable collection, although it has been maintained since by professional philatelists employed for the purpose.

Due to the children’s interest I decided to write to the Queen to ask about the collection. I was pleased to receive back a lovely handwritten letter from Charles Goodwyn, keeper of the Royal Philatelic Collection. He enclosed a typed history of the Collection.

I had always believed that King George V had started this “Royal Collection”, since he was the most prominent philatelist in British history and served as Vice President and later Patron of the Royal Philatelic Society – London, from 1893 until his death in 1936.

Mr. Goodwyn’s history reveals that the Royal Collection began on April 8, 1856 when the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII and his brother Prince Alfred visited the printing works of Messrs DeLa Rue & Co. The first items placed in the collection are two sheets endorsed, “this small sheet of 6d postage labels is a sixth part of the sheet which was printed in the presence of His Royal Highness The Prince of Wales and His Royal Highness Prince Alfred, 8th April 1856 – Joseph Coggs, Officer of Inland Revenue”.

Apparently, Prince Alfred was the serious collector and shortly before he died he sold his collection to his older brother who subsequently gave it to his son, who would later become King George V.

King George was an enthusiastic and astute collector. He recognized rarity and made every effort to obtain the rarest stamps at the earliest possible opportunity. For example, by 1904 he had acquired both the 1d and the 2d Mauritius “POST OFFICE” stamps of 1847 – the first stamps issued by a colonial post office and probably the most prized stamps that any collector of British colonies stamps could wish to acquire. The 1d was purchased from the Earl of Kintore’s collection and the matchless example of the 2d blue was acquired at auction in 1904 for a recorded price of £1,450. His instructions to his agent were “if the stamp is mine you may telegraph Sandrigham to say so, but on no account mention the price.”

To this purchase relates the story that a courtier asked the Prince of Wales if he had heard that some fool had paid £1,450 for a postage stamp. “Yes”, was the reply “I was that fool.”

I don’t think that he was such a fool when I look in my Scott catalogue and see that stamp valued at $1,100,000 US. Every stamp in the Royal Collection is not of such high value, but many of the rarities of the philatelic world have been preserved; thanks to the foresight of “that fool.”

One of the more recent acquisitions of the Royal Collection, during the reign of Queen Elizabeth II, has been a collection of the pioneer Air Mail flights of Canada. I feel that we are fortunate that the Queen chooses to continue the traditions of her grandfather and is preserving some of the greatest treasures of philately for us and future generations of stamp collectors to see, as my school stamp club did at CAPEX.

Exchanges Wanted / Demandes d’échange

Since The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada is the national society of philatelists in Canada, many requests for exchange partners are referred to us. As a service to our members, we are pleased to present these names, so that those who wish to do so can make overseas contacts. Please note that we have no way of checking the credentials of the individuals who write to us asking that their names be published; therefore, we urge that caution be taken when answering these requests.

La Société royale de philatélie du Canada ne s’occupe pas normalement des échanges entre philatélistes, mais comme elle est la société philatélique nationale du Canada, on lui transmet du nombreuses demandes de philatélistes désireux de trouver des correspondants pour échanger des timbres. Ainsi a t elle décidé, pour rendre service a ses membres, de publier les noms intéressés d’outremer, afin que ceux qui désirent établir des rapports avec eux puissent la faire. Je vous signale toutefois que nous ne savons rien des personnes qui nous demandent de publier leur nom, c’est pourquoi je vous conseille d’être prudent en répondant à ces demandes d’échange.

Canadian 'Manuscript' Town Postmarks
by David Handelman and Jacques Poitras, Postal History Society of Canada, Ottawa, 1999.

This neat, small (24 pages and covers) booklet confirms that good things come in small packages. It is long overdue in the field of hand-written postal markings of Canada. As most of all of us who have written previously on postmarks of this country have not had nor had ever seen enough examples of definite hand-written postmarks to consider them as a legitimate field of postal history. All that is now at an end. This little booklet contains an enormous amount of information. Most importantly, it describes what a manuscript postmark is not and shows a number of examples on covers of what they are. It lists the known dates for these markings by jurisdiction -- all 500 of them.

The listings are by province or earlier areas, starting with 1) Quebec, Lower Canada or Canada East, 2) Ontario, Upper Canada or Canada West, 3) New Brunswick, 4) Nova Scotia, 5) Manitoba, 6) Prince Edward Island, 7) British Columbia and 8) Other, including Red River Settlement, Northwest Territory, Yukon Territory, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Of the two authors, I suspect it was Handelman who analyzed the frequency of use of each area postmarks and their bimodal distribution. No one who collects Canadian postal history, or even has one or two covers with manuscript postmarks can do without this booklet. It is a wonderfully useful and informative document.

This may be very well and good, you say, but I don't lay out good money for esoteric publications that I might not use regularly, because I can't afford it! But consider this one costs the mailing fee plus the enormous sum of $4 if you belong to the Postal History Society of Canada and a dollar more if you don't.

Handelman is a member of the Royal Society of Canada hence his academic credentials (he is a mathematician) are impeccable but he apparently has been bitten by and succumbed to the virulent "bugs" of this era. He has become fascinated by the wonderful things computers can do for us -- thank heavens. He explains how the book was produced -- not really printed -- and this detail is very interesting, so read it as a bonus when you get this little gem. Act quickly, though, only 100 were printed in the first instance. (J.J. Macdonald)

Philatelic Fantasies of British North America (1869-1910)

The author, David Sessions is no stranger to philatelic scholarship having written many articles and monographs on a variety of subjects. In between his writings David is the current editor of Maple Leaves, the house journal of the Canadian Philatelic Society of Great Britain. David has always been interested in the more esoteric side of BNA philately, being a collector and writer on BNA forgeries.

In his new publication David has taken us on a tour into fantasy land where he introduces us to a number of snake oil salesmen, con-artists and silver tongued rogues who, to feed the demand of a growing and unsophisticated philatelic community starved of new ideas, decided to produce their own stamps. These gentlemen operated in the later part of the 19th century, mostly out of the Montreal, Albany and Boston area. The chief and leading perpetrator of the many creations that were produced and passed off as genuine was a gentleman by the name of Samuel Alan Taylor of Montreal and Boston.

This publication draws together the meagre information found in a variety of philatelic journals and expands data into one easily accessible book.

The book is divided into four sections: Bogus Locals of the 1880s; College Stamps; The Perpetrators; and Miscellaneous.

The first section introduces us to those loveable con-artists Taylor, Graig, McLachlan, and Nutter, who in the 1880s launched such fantasies as Baldwin's Railroad Postage, Bancroft's City Express, Le Beau City Post, Bell's Dispatch, GrandTrunk Railway, Kerr's City Post, McLachlan's Label, Whiteley's Express and Winslow & Co.

Section Two deals with the bogus College stamps where David discusses four different tables of Canadian interest -- the British American College, the BS & Co. College, Montreal and Musgrove's National Business College.

The third section is a biographical sketch of some of the major players Messrs. Graig, Melvin, McLachlan, Nutter and Taylor. The Miscellaneous section takes us on a cross country tour from Labrador to Alaska where such items as Corbeil's Private Post of Montreal who offered to deliver letters within the City for one cent. He was quickly shut down by the post office. Then there is the Labrador Labels circa 1900. From Labrador we are quickly transported to the west coast where the mystery and usage of McCreeley's Express Stamp is brought under the spotlight. Then it is back to Prince Edward Island to examine another of Taylor's productions who in collaboration with Charley Lyford produced (illegally) P.E.I.'s first decimal stamp (1866), where it was publicized as in the European press. Finally it is off to the Prairies for a discussion on that Canadian enigma the Reil Essay of which very little is known and much ink has been spent on speculation.

The format of the book illustrates all the various issues and varieties and catalogues them with an approximate valuation. The book is well set out and is easy to read. Most readers once they start will not want to put it down. One has only to look at the bibliography to appreciate the amount of research and scholarship that has gone into the writing of this monograph. This is a book that all serious collectors of BNA philately should have on their bookshelves. Sooner or later you are going to be offered or see one of these labels. (David H. Whiteley)

Editor’s note: A companion book “Phantom Philately” written by Frederick John Melville and published by Janet Vanden Berg in 1950, discusses similar stamps from around the world. This paperback book is hard to find, but may be available from philatelic research libraries. The foreward, by Lowell Ragatz, states “(Melville’s) collections were seldom of much cash value for he was not a rich man, but they afforded him with infinite pleasure and gave him that wide knowledge of the subject which constantly amazed even his closest associates.”

The subtitle of the book is “A Descriptive List of Stamps that are not what they seem.” It is sometimes important to know the difference between a real stamp, a fake and a “fantasy”.

CHINA 1999 – BEIJING, 21-30 AUGUST 1999

It was long, but the journey was worth it. Canada entered seven philatelic exhibits – receiving two Gold medals, two large Vermeil, and three Vermeil. There were three literature exhibits which received a large Vermeil medal, a large Silver, and a Silver Bronze.

Fred Fawn of Toronto was the big winner in the philatelic section with a Gold for his excellent Large Queens exhibit and a large Vermeil with Felicitations of the Jury for his 1898 Map stamps. Ken Magee of Clinton, ON also received a Gold medal for his exhibit of Ireland, 1840 to 1922, while Dick Malott of Nepean, ON received a large Vermeil for his Canadian crash covers. Sam Phiu, Joey Yuan and Owen White all of Toronto, achieved Vermeil level for – The Postal History of Chefoo, China, the 1936 Berlin Olympic Games, and German Field Post in China, respectively. Cimon Miron received a large Vermeil for the third volume of his Canadian Philatelic Bibliography, the Darnell Catalogue received a large Silver, while Gray Scrimgeour's History of the Toronto Stamp Collectors’ Club achieved a Silver Bronze.

The show opened with ceremonies hosted by the Minister of Posts, and an opening banquet in the Great Hall of the People for all show staff and visiting dignitaries. About 1,800 people were served. Receptions were hosted by organizers of INDONESIA 2000, OLYMPHILEX 2000, the USPO Bourse at Anaheim, California in 2000, PHILANIPPON 2001, and HONG KONG 2001. The special prizes and Gold medals were awarded at a theater ceremony with many different cultural activities of China displayed.

Hotel accommodations and meals for the 71 National Commissioners and 54 Jurors in the Great Wall Sheraton Hotel were excellent and bus transportation was available from there to the Convention Centre about two miles away.

Canada had two jurors – Harry Sutherland in the Traditional and Postal History fields, and Michael Madesker in the Youth section, while Bill Robinson was an apprentice juror in Postal History, and served as Canadian Commissioner.

Twenty-eight per cent of the exhibits were being shown internationally for the first time. Twenty-three large Gold medals, 69 Gold medals and 55 large Vermeil medals were awarded. There were 3,200 frames of philatelic entries and 300 literature entries.

Changes to the city of Beijing have been phenomenal over the past 10 to 15 years. Many more private cars are evident, and high rise buildings are being constructed by the dozen. An expressway has been completed to the airport, and another to the Great Wall at Badaling, and there are problems with smog from all the cars.

CHINA '99 was a fine way for the first world philatelic exhibition held in China to enter the ranks of host countries. (Bill Robinson) ♦
