THE ROYAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY OF CANADA
LA SOCIÉTÉ ROYALE DE PHILATÉLIE DU CANADA

The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada (RPSC) is the successor to the national society founded in 1887. Membership in the Society is open to anyone interested in stamps. Whether you are a beginner or an advanced collector, The RPSC offers a number of services that will be of interest to you. Here are just a few:

THE CANADIAN PHILATELIST - The international award winning bi-monthly magazine of The RPSC, it provides stamp collectors information and news – for members and from the members. Each year, the author of the best article published in The Canadian Philatelist receives the Geldert medal.

PERSONAL COLLECTION INSURANCE - Group insurance is available for members to obtain coverage for their personal collections. Chapters can arrange third party liability coverage to protect the club and its events. Both policies have substantially lower premiums than non-members would pay for similar packages. Details are available on both types of insurance, upon request, from the National Office.

SALES CIRCUIT - The Sales Circuit is a useful method of disposing of surplus material and acquiring other material for your collection. Details on request.

ANNUAL MEETING - An annual convention held in a different locale each year provides an ideal opportunity to meet friends, exchange ideas, and get advice on your collection or exhibition at which exhibitors can qualify for international shows. You will also get a chance to visit a dealer bourse and attend interesting and informative seminars.

CHAPTERS - The RPSC has a network of local clubs across Canada. Chapter meeting details are published in The Canadian Philatelist. A great way to network with other collectors in your area.

RPSC WEBSITE - The Society has a Web site www.rpsc.org where members can find out about the latest developments, coming events and link up to many other stamp collecting sites. As a member, your e-mail and Website address can be added.

OTHER SOCIETIES - As the national society for stamp collectors, The RPSC works in partnership with many other societies and associations, such as the Canadian Stamp Dealers Association and Canada Post Corporation.

CANADA POST CORPORATION - The Society maintains a Canada Post Liaison Officer to represent the Society, its members and chapters. Members may raise issues of mutual interest with Canada Post Corporation through the National Office.

La Société royale de philatélie du Canada (SRPC) est le digne successeur de l'organisation fondée en 1887. Tout individu intéressé par la collection de timbres-poste peut en devenir membre. Que vous soyez un collectionneur débutant ou chevronné, la SRPC vous offre une gamme de services qui sauront vous intéresser. En voici quelques-uns:

LE PHILATÉLISTE CANADIEN - Cette publication bimestrielle, primée au niveau international, offre aux membres des informations et des nouvelles sur le monde philatélique rédigées par ses membres. Chaque année, la médaille Geldert est décernée à l'auteur du meilleur article publié dans Le philatéliste canadien.

CARNETS DE TIMBRES EN APPROBATION - Ils sont disponibles sur demande. C'est une façon facile de disposer de matériel en surplus ou d'acquérir des nouvelles pièces pour sa collection.

RÉUNION ANNUELLE - Un congrès annuel se tient dans différentes parties du pays. Une exposition de niveau national fait partie intégrante du congrès et permet à l'exposant de se qualifier pour les expositions internationales. De plus vous pouvez y visiter les tables de négociants et assister à des conférences.

ASSURANCE COLLECTION PERSONNELLE - les membres peuvent obtenir une assurance-groupe afin de protéger leurs collections personnelles. Les chapitres peuvent souscrire une assurance responsabilité vis-à-vis des tiers pour protéger le club et les événements qu'il organise. Les primes pour les deux polices sont de beaucoup inférieures à ce qu'un non-membre paierait pour un contrat similaire. Vous pouvez obtenir des renseignements sur ces deux types de police en vous adressant au Bureau national.

CHAPITRES - Des clubs locaux au Canada constituent un réseau où les membres de La SRPC reçoivent un accueil chaleureux. Les renseignements sont publiés dans Le philatéliste canadien.

SITE WEB DE LA SRPC - La SRPC a un site Internet www.rpsc.org où les membres obtiennent les informations à date, les événements philatéliques à venir et peuvent accéder à plusieurs autres sites philatéliques. Vous pouvez, en tant que membre, y ajouter vos adresses courriel et site web.

PARTENARIAT - La Société a des ententes avec plusieurs autres sociétés et associations philatéliques, notamment l'Association canadienne des négociants en timbres-poste et la Société canadienne des postes (SCP).

SOCIÉTÉ CANADIENNE DES POSTES - La SRPC a un agent de liaison pour représenter La Société, ses Chapitres et ses membres. Les membres peuvent soumettre des questions d'intérêt commun aux deux Sociétés. Vous pouvez également obtenir des renseignements auprès du Bureau national.

THE COVER:

Sundry employees of the T. Eaton Company responded to children's letters to Santa for over a half-century beginning in 1913. The driver behind Eaton's Santa Letter-Writing program was the store's Toyland department where children could meet Santa after the Santa Claus Parade in Toronto that originally began at Union Station and wound its way to Eaton's downtown store.

The first Eaton's Toyland Santa letter was a somewhat blandly coloured effort with the hand-written text surrounded by child-like renderings of toy dolls, soldiers, wooden picture blocks, and little animals. Quality of the letters improved substantially over time and eventually became multi-coloured works of art produced by lithography with a separate stone used for each colour.

Des employés de la compagnie T. Eaton ont répondu aux lettres d'enfants au père Noël pendant plus d'un demi-siècle à partir de 1913. L'initiative du programme de lettres au père Noël d'Eaton venait du personnel du rayon du magasin appelé « Royaume des jouets ». C'est là que les enfants pouvaient rencontrer le père Noël après son défilé dans Toronto, qui, à l'origine, se mettait en branle à la station Union pour cheminer jusqu'au magasin Eaton du centre-ville.

La première lettre au père Noël du Royaume des jouets d'Eaton était une ébauche plus ou moins colorée avec un texte manuscrit entouré de représentations enfantines de poupées, de soldats-jouets, de blocs en bois et de petits animaux. La qualité des lettres a augmenté substantiellement avec le temps pour devenir des œuvres d'art multicolores produites par lithographie, une pierre différente étant utilisée pour chaque couleur.

Sur la page couverture, nous voyons la lettre au père Noël d'Eaton de 1922 et son enveloppe.

For many of us old-timers, it is hard to believe that 75 years have passed since the attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. The then-President Franklin Delano Roosevelt called it "... a day which will live in infamy."

Although the US suffered significant losses of war materiel and, more importantly, human lives, in the long run it did not affect the course of the war in the Pacific. If anything, it strengthened America's resolve to see its way to victory in 1945. Among the author's provision of philatelic items to illustrate his article is a Japanese semi-postal stamp issued on the 1st anniversary of what Japan refers to as the Greater East Asian War. The surtax proceeds from the stamp were destined for national defence. One of the stamps on the 10-stamp American miniature sheet depicts the burning USS West Virginia and the USS Tennessee during the surprise Japanese attack.

Although it is likely no longer economical for post offices to print and use postage due stamps, historically these stamps provided a significant source of revenue for postal administrations. Currently, postage due stamps are popular with collectors and are well documented in philatelic literature.

A century ago, the British Post Office did not overlook a half pence postage underpayment and mail carriers were ordered to collect the delinquent amount before delivering the letter. Understandably, the system in place in Great Britain at the time could, and did, lead to abuse and in 1914 the Post Office introduced its first ½d postage due stamps. To learn more about this popular collecting specialty, see the article by Michael Peach beginning on page 340.

For collectors of the stamps of New Zealand, Joseph Monteiro writes about design, image and other details of the country's 3rd and 4th pictorial issues released from 1960 to 1967. The 4th issue was required as the country changed from its sterling currency to the decimal system in 1967.

Monteiro provides details of each individual stamp issued throughout this seven-year period.

In a public competition for stamp designs for the new issues, the New Zealand Post Office received 1,072 entries from which it selected the designs appearing on the new stamps. For details about these eye-appealing issues, refer to the author's article beginning on page 346.

As this is our Christmas issue, we have included several Yule-theme features for your reading and viewing

Pour bien des vieux de la vieille, comme nous, il est difficile de croire que 75 ans se sont écoulés depuis l'attaque de Pearl Harbor, le 7 décembre 1941. Le président Franklin Delano Roosevelt a dit de ce jour « ... il restera dans l'Histoire comme un jour d'infamie » (traduction).

Bien que les États-Unis aient subi des pertes importantes en matériel de guerre et, plus important encore, en vies humaines, en dernier ressort cela n'a pas influencé l'issue de la guerre dans le Pacifique. Chose certaine, la résolution des États-Unis de remporter la victoire en 1945 s'en est trouvée renforcée. Parmi les articles philatéliques que l'auteur a utilisés pour illustrer son propos, nous trouvons un timbre à surtaxe japonais émis au premier anniversaire de ce que le Japon appelle la Guerre de la grande Asie orientale. Les recettes de cette surtaxe étaient destinées à la défense nationale.

Pour leur part les Américains ont émis un feuillet souvenir de dix timbres dont l'un d'entre eux représente l'incendie de l'USS West Virginia et de l'USS Tennessee lors de l'attaque surprise japonaise.

Bien que l'impression et l'usage de timbres-taxe par les bureaux de poste ne se justifie plus économiquement, historiquement, ils ont généré une source importante de revenus pour les administrations postales. Aujourd'hui, les timbres-taxe sont populaires auprès des collectionneurs et bien répertoriés dans les écrits philatéliques.

Il y a un siècle, la British Post Office ne fermait pas les yeux sur un paiement insuffisant d'un demi-penny et les facteurs avaient ordre de percevoir les montants en souffrance avant de livrer une lettre. Évidemment, le système en place en Grande-Bretagne à ce moment-là pouvait donner lieu à des abus, qui ne manquaient pas de se produire, et en 1914, le Bureau de poste a introduit son premier timbres-taxe de ½ p. Pour en apprendre davantage sur cette populaire spécialité de collection, voyez l'article de Michael Peach à la page 340

Pour ceux qui collectionnent les timbres de Nouvelle-Zélande, Joseph Monteiro parle du design, de l'image et d'autres détails des 3e et 4e émissions émises de 1960 à 1967. La 4e émission s'est avérée nécessaire, car, en 1967, le pays est passé du système monétaire sterling au système décimal. L'auteur donne des détails sur chacun des timbres émis au cours de cette période de sept ans.

Lors d'un concours de design ouvert au public, le New Zealand Post Office a reçu 1072 projets parmi lesquels les images retenues figurant sur les nouveaux timbres. Pour en apprendre davantage sur ces timbres attrayants, voyez l'article de l'auteur à la page 346.

pleasure. Due to space limitations a year ago we were unable to show all of Dick Malott's Christmas cards, which he received from notable philatelists over a period of time. We are picturing the remainder of his cards in this issue and hope that you will share Dick's joy when he received these Christmas wishes from fellow philatelists in years gone by.

Canada Post continues to pump out its HOH OHO stationery to help Santa respond to the more than one and a half million letters he receives from youngsters, and the young at heart, each year. Collectors chasing postal stationery will be interested in the article by Nick R. Bocker, on page 352, from which we learn that as a result of technical problems with the Canada Post machine readers, an English version "After Christmas" postcard variety for 2016 was created which has apparently become very scarce in used condition. No French version of this variety exists.

Longtime writer Ron Tabbert has again penned a Yule-theme article for your reading pleasure. We are confident that you will enjoy it.

For a bit of variety, we have also included several feature articles, notably Part 2 of David Piercey's Fort McMurray's write-up and for our French readers, an article by Cimon Morin, together with several others.

I wish one and all a very Merry Christmas and the best of health and happiness for the New Year. ☒

Comme il s'agit de notre numéro de Noël, nous avons inclus plusieurs pièces du temps des fêtes que vous aurez le plaisir d'admirer ou de lire. Il y a un an, en raison de limites d'espace, nous n'avons pas pu vous montrer toutes les cartes de Noël que Dick Malott a reçues de philatélistes de renom sur une certaine période. Nous publions donc celles qui restent dans le présent numéro en espérant que vous ressentirez la joie qu'a éprouvée Dick lorsqu'il a reçu ces vœux de Noël de la part de compagnons philatélistes au fil des ans.

Postes Canada continue à produire ses articles de papeterie HOH OHO pour aider le Père Noël à répondre aux plus d'un demi-million de lettres qu'il reçoit chaque année de jeunes et de jeunes de cœur. Les collectionneurs à la recherche d'entiers postaux trouveront l'article de Nick R. Bocker intéressant, à la page 352. Nous y apprenons qu'en raison de problèmes techniques des lecteurs automatiques de Poste Canada, une version anglaise « Après-Noël » d'une variété de cartes postales a été créée pour 2016. Apparemment, les cartes utilisées sont devenues très rares. Il n'existe pas de version française de cette variété.

Notre rédacteur de longue date, Ron Tabbert, a de nouveau écrit un article sur le thème de Noël pour agrémenter votre lecture. Nous sommes convaincus qu'il vous plaira.

Pour varier un petit peu nous publions aussi des articles de fond; en particulier, la deuxième partie du texte de David Piercey sur Fort McMurray et pour nos lecteurs francophones, un article de Cimon Morin ainsi que plusieurs autres.

Je souhaite à toutes et à tous un très joyeux Noël, la santé et le bonheur pour la nouvelle année. ☒

IN THE MAILBOX DANS LA BOÎTE AUX LETTRES

Dear Editor,

I read the "In My Opinion" guest editorial by Jim Phillips in the July/August 2016 issue of The Canadian Philatelist. As a collector of approximately 75 years, and a member of The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada for 50-plus years, I beg to differ with some of his conclusions.

The problem at this time, with so little mail franked with adhesive stamps, is that there are far too many stamps being issued. Nearly every issue has two stamps that are virtually the same: die cut from booklets and perforated from souvenir sheets.

Take the hockey series, for instance. Fifty stamps (19 die cut and 31 perforated) as of July 2016, to say nothing of the ridiculous sizes of some of them. I know that hockey is Canada's game, but enough, enough, enough. Oh no, the series goes on until 2017.

If we claim Star Trek as Canadian, we may be at war with the USA. Why was no stamp issued for the Pan American Games in Toronto?

I could go on.

Sincerely,

Ronald Olesen

CORRECTION

Page 291 in the Sept./Oct. 2016 issue (Vol. 67, No. 5) reads: "The $2.75 denomination depicts Robinson Crusoe." It should read: "The two and seventy-five cent denominations depict Robinson Crusoe." We apologize for this editing error.

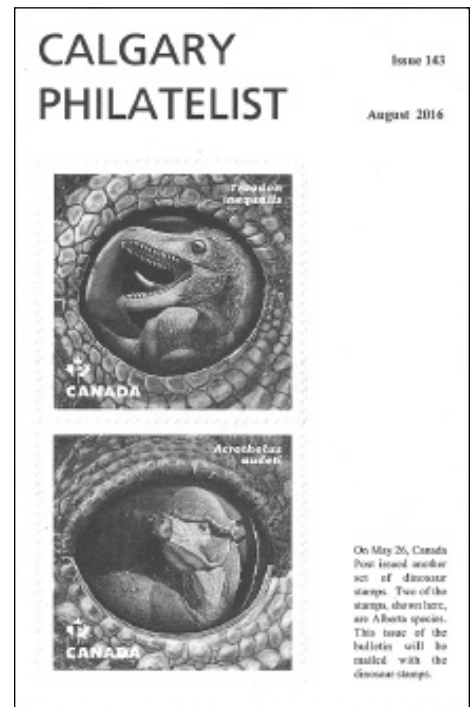

CALGARY PHILATELIST FEATURE

Dale Speirs, Archivist of the Calgary Philatelist, introduces an informative postal history article (Part I) in the August 2016 issue. Dale writes about the whiskey traders active in southern Alberta before the Northwest Mounted Police arrived in the area and closed down the illicit businesses. Part II is scheduled to be published in a future edition.

Members of the Calgary Philatelic Society are also informed that the parking lots of the Kerby Centre, where the club meets, will be monitored around the clock and all illegally parked vehicles will be ticketed or towed.

For Christmas stamp collecting enthusiasts, there is a fascinating letter to the editor, which describes the circuitous route of a letter, which took about one year to reach its intended Christmas Island destination in the Indian Ocean.

The newsletter cover is illustrated with a pair of dinosaur adhesive stamps.

FORT McMURRAY, ALBERTA

(PART I CAN BE FOUND IN THE SEPT/OCT 2016 ISSUE OF THE CANADIAN PHILATELIST)

By David Piercey, FRPSC

The story of commercial oil extraction from the Athabasca tar sands extends back about 100 years from the present day, and various locations in and around Fort McMurray have all played a part in the gradual commercialization of this natural resource. A few small scale production facilities, some with post offices, were established prior to the grand megaprojects in the news today, and all at least produced bitumen (asphalt) which was regularly used, for example, for paving some of Alberta's provincial roads, and also produced small quantities of gasoline or diesel oil. Due to the remoteness of the Fort McMurray area the production of commercial, economically feasible, quantities of petroleum had to wait until the massive refinery construction projects of the 1960s and forward, with the economies of scale such projects derived.

ABASAND

In 1930, Max W Ball, a Denver oil executive, secured a lease from the federal government to develop an oil sands extraction plant in the Horse River valley, on the western outskirts of today's Fort McMurray, and began a 10-year process of experimenting with ways to extract oil from the bituminous sands that he mined in the immediate area. The area for the lease was chosen as, though its deposits were inferior to those in the Fort McKay area, it was otherwise close to the end of steel at Waterways, and on access roads initially built for a salt mine further down the valley, thus reducing any eventual transportation costs for commercial product. In 1936, Abasand Oils, Ltd started pilot refining of oil sands, though the plant did not become commercially ready until about 1940 and after significant refinement of the extraction process and expansion of the facilities. The plant had operated for about five years between 1936 and 1941 until a fire then destroyed the powerhouse, but was subsequently rebuilt and operated by the WWII federal government (as "Assured Oil" from 1943 through to 1945), when yet another fire destroyed the plant, and the government abandoned it.

By 1939 the plant had attracted perhaps as many as 200 residents to the immediate area, necessitating even the construction of a school to accommodate the residents' children, though almost all commercial services were otherwise accessed in Fort McMurray. This small work camp and community, called Abasand, nevertheless opened its post office September 8, 1937, with Paul Schmidt, an engineer (and possibly plant manager), as postmaster. The post office closed barely two years later, on July 7, 1939, making postmarks from this short-lived post office especially difficult to obtain. Indeed, none have yet been reported by specialized Alberta postmark collectors. Accordingly, only a proof strike (from the Proof Books) is illustrated here.

WHEELER

One of the most obscure of all the McMurray area post offices was that of Wheeler, located about 88 kilometers or so down river, and a short distance inland, from Fort McMurray. In the early 1920s a group of former New York City policemen, operating as the Alcan Oil Company, had secured a lease on this property and began exploratory drilling, locating a significant deposit of bituminous oil sands. With little or no money for much further development beyond some cursory attempts at extraction, the lease was sold in 1923 to Robert Fitzsimmons, and the company disbanded.

However, it is believed one of the New Yorkers, Albert Newell Wheeler, remained as a trapper in the area during the remainder of the 1920s, and “conceived the idea of establishing a post office at Wheeler”^[13] for the very few residents in the area. With Wheeler as postmaster, the Wheeler post office opened October 1, 1926 through May 1, 1929, though it was temporarily closed in the summer of 1927

(probably outside the trapping season). According to the 1928/29 Henderson’s Directory of Alberta, “the Wheeler PO serves a scattered community of fur trappers...[and] “there are also some embryo fur farms” As well, a hotel called the Tourist Inn operated in the tiny settlement.^[14] What reason there was otherwise for establishing such a remote office can only be conjectured, though it certainly received some limited use when Fitzsimmons and his International Bitumen Company moved in and began exploratory refinery work on the same lease in the late 1920s, and before he would establish his own post office, called Bitumount, about eight years later on the nearby site of his refinery alongside the Athabasca River.

Shown here are examples of the two different Wheeler strikes, taken from the Pritchard and Andrews Proof Books. The split-ring proof strike is dated May 5, 1926; the full circle proof strike is dated September 5, 1929. No cancels on cover have been reported, attesting to the very limited revenue this post office generated during its operational periods. (Note the full circle strike is dated after the official post office closing suggesting, perhaps, the intention to reopen the office at a later date.)

Oil sands extraction had also been attempted at another site some 90 kilometers further down the Athabasca river which came to be known as Bitumount, named after the International Bitumen Company, founded by Robert Fitzsimmons in 1927. The area, a bit north of Fort McKay, was particularly rich in tar sands which could be surface mined, instead of the tunneling required at Abasand. Extraction began in 1929, and a thick tar was soon marketed in Edmonton as a waterproofing roof sealant, and its bituminous sand was sold, for example, to CN’s Jasper Park Lodge for the paving of the road between the Jasper townsite and the lodge.

The local work camp and refinery, never more than 14 to 40 workmen, eventual came to include a post office which opened December 9, 1937 on the occasion of the arrival of the first scheduled airmail service by Commercial Airways from Fort McMurray.^[15] The post office was in the supply store (possibly in his residence^[16]) operated by Fitzsimmons on site, and he became the camp's first (acting) postmaster.

However, significant financial difficulties had plagued the plant's operation since inception, and workmen walked off the site in 1938, the company being regularly in arrears with its payroll. Fitzsimmons probably then abandoned operations, in fact having left the province in late 1938 to try and secure further backing in the US, and the post office was formally closed on February 20, 1940.

By 1942 the company had been bought by Montreal financier Lloyd Champion, the company being reorganized as The Oil Sands Ltd, and the post office reopened in October 1944 with Champion becoming postmaster. The plant may have operated only intermittently in the period 1942-1948, again with financial difficulties over loan guarantees from the provincial government, and the company was dissolved in 1948, the site then coming under direct provincial government control. By then, a newer and more modern extraction plant had been built by the government adjacent to Fitzsimmons' old site. The original post office, closed sometime before 1948, was then reopened on May 28, 1948 coincident with an influx of "Alberta Government Oil Sands Project" personnel to the new site. It was located in the Office and Laboratory building on the site, with William Herman Arnold, likely one of the employees, becoming the camp's last postmaster, before the post office was finally closed March 15, 1950, about when the government ceased its direct involvement in the refinery.

TAR ISLAND

During the construction of the Great Canadian Oil Sands (GCOS) refinery complex 1965-1967, located about 40 kilometers north of Fort McMurray, a large camp for construction workers was required. The construction company for the refinery, Canadian Bechtel Ltd., accordingly built a work camp which housed about 2500 workers. It operated a post office, called Tar Island, starting April 5, 1965 for the convenience of these workers, and closed it May 31, 1967, upon completion of the refinery complex. The postmaster at the time of closing was Eric Falkenberg,¹¹⁷ likely a Bechtel employee.

That initial plant, named the Suncor plant, the Canadian subsidiary of Sun Oil (now called Sunoco) of Pennsylvania, was the start of today's oil sands refinery mega-projects concentrated in and around the Fort McMurray area.

MILDRED LAKE

The second major oil sands extraction plant was built by Syncrude Canada, a consortium of several oil companies, at Mildred Lake, nearby to the Suncor plant. Construction began in 1973 and the plant opened in 1978. Because of the size of its facilities (now including over a 25 sq km surface mine) a large work camp was built on site, housing a few thousand workmen, and continues to the present day for operational personnel and contract employees. Its post office opened April 1, 1975 during the construction phase, and continued into the plant's operations period until closing on September 30, 1983. Its postmasters were Syncrude Canada employees from its local Office Services department.

Today, the thousands of workers scattered in large work camps throughout the Athabasca oil sands region in all the various projects no longer need to rely on such local postal services. Instead, with access to internet and email services at the camps, and with regular postal mail couriered to and from camps by company trucks, or brought into other sites by company planes to private airstrips, a post office presence is simply not required as it would have been previously.

FORT MCKAY

Named after Dr. William Morison MacKay (note the spelling), an early HBC factor at Fort Chipewyan, and the first medical doctor in northern Alberta, Fort McKay, nestled along the Athabasca river 54 kilometers north of Fort McMurray, was founded as a HBC fur trade post in about 1820, and even briefly superseded Fort McMurray in importance when the HBC briefly abandoned Fort McMurray as a fur trading post in 1898. Known originally to the HBC as the Little Red River post, it has remained an Aboriginal and Métis settlement throughout its existence.

A community today of perhaps 450 residents, and completely surrounded by oil sands projects, it received its post office only in March 1968, shortly after the road to the Suncor plant nearby was extended to Fort McKay and regular mail services could commence. The post office is located in the complex which houses the Band offices and the community's convenience store. Shown here is a portion of a business envelope from the Fort McKay Indian Band, cancelled with its then-current POCON hammer.

EPILOGUE

Fort McMurray, and Anzac, were completely evacuated for one month in May of 2016, due to the devastation caused by the wildfire. For a brief time, Fort McKay, various work camps north of Fort McMurray, and the big oil refineries were also temporarily evacuated. Residents and plant workers did not begin returning until early June, and the main post office in Fort McMurray reopened a few weeks later. All postal services were of course suspended in the interim with much of the incoming mail held in Edmonton, though displaced residents could apply to have their mail forwarded to any temporary address they otherwise had access to. It remains to be seen what kind of postal history can be discovered from this one-month interregnum of postal services. ☒

Christmas Cards of Bygone Years

By Dick Malott, FRPSC

Due to space limitations a year ago we were unable to show all of Dick Malott's Christmas cards, which he received from notable philatelists over a period of time. We are picturing the remainder of his cards in this issue and hope that you will share Dick's joy when he received these Christmas wishes from fellow philatelists the world over. Unfortunately there is not enough space to reproduce the entire cards (some are four sided) for which we apologize.

The Executive Council of the Argentine Federation of Philatelic Entities, led by its president, Enrique O. Buttini, always sent a colourful card depicting Biblical scenes, Christmas stamps and Christmas postal markings (Fig 1). In 1986

I served as The RPSC commissioner and as an aerophilatelic judge at the FIP Exhibition in Buenos Aires.

The late Dott. Enzo Diena, RDP, Italy, was the most highly regarded Italian philatelist for decades. He also held senior positions in FIP. He always sent greetings to those connected with FIP and naturally to those attending FIP ITALIA 85 in Rome (Fig 2). His Christmas card sent in December 1985 depicts two children playing in the snow building an igloo. This special card was issued for the benefit of the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF). The artist was Jan Kudiacek of Czechoslovakia and printed courtesy of Narodni Galerie, Prague.

The late Henri L. Nierinck of Oostende, Belgium, had a marvelous sense of humour. His cheery Christmas card depicting a smiling ginger-coloured kitten playing with two playful mice with mistletoe exemplifies this characteristic (Fig 3). Henri achieved worldwide aerophilatelic recognition and fame for his two scrupulously researched tomes on aircraft-flown salvaged airmail from the whole world. His outstanding work has now been obtained by the American Air Mail Society (AAMS) for future additions of relevant data.

The beauty of Thailand is depicted by the oil painting by Chukrabhand Posayakrit of "Two Dancers" on a card sent at Christmas from dear friends from Thailand, Pet and Ad Indusophon of Bagkok (Fig 4). We first met them at a hotel restaurant in Tel Aviv during ISRAEL '85. We noticed them sitting alone so we introduced ourselves and enjoyed a lovely evening together. The friendship has lasted to this day with Ad. They kindly let us use their abbreviated names because of their long, full names in the Thai language. Sadly, Pet died a few years later. He was a retired Squadron Leader of the Thai Air Force and a member of the Thai parliament. He was so highly regarded that the King of Thailand declared a National Two Days of Mourning. A few years ago, Ad received the high RDP designation.

Jos Wolff, RDP, Honourary President of FIP from Luxemburg sent this Christmas card of himself wishing me a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year with a champagne toast of good cheer (Fig 5). His greetings are always in the four official FIP languages – French, German, English and Spanish, as well as his own language of Luxemburg. Jos, or Joseph, was one of the longest serving, competent presidents of FIP.

Peace and Happiness was the wish from friends from Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia (Fig 6). We met C. Nagarajah "Naggie" at the FIP exhibition in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1987. He and I went to military museums in Copenhagen as well as to the philatelic exhibition. He later married a lady from Vancouver, Katie Pakland. Their Christmas card says it all philatelically world wide.

My Christmas greeting to my philatelic friends has usually been a card from the Royal Canadian Military Institute (RCMI) of Toronto (Fig 7). Although this card has a Christmas scene of Santa Claus and a Christmas tree in a front window of the RCMI, there is nothing in the card philatelically. However, I did use the Canadian Christmas stamps on my envelopes. The RCMI, after three years of construction, was completely rebuilt and reopened in 2014. However, it retained its historic front with its menacing cannon on Toronto's University Avenue. The Christmas meals at the RCMI are fabulous.

To all the readers of The Canadian Philatelist, I wish a very Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. ☒

HALF PENNY POSTAGE DUE STAMPS of Great Britain

By Michael Peach, FRPSC

Prior to the introduction of postage due stamps in 1914, any postage due was collected in cash by the postman, and then put in the kitty at his Post Office. This led, of course, to considerable abuse. Many countries, including Canada, had been using postage due stamps for years. After much discussion, four postage due stamps, all of the same basic design, with values ½d, 1d, 2d and 5d, were introduced on Monday, April 20, 1914. A poster displayed in post offices on April 20 informed the public about the introduction of postage due stamps (labels). It stated: "On and after that date no surcharge should be paid on delivery of any letter, parcel or other postal packet unless it bears a Postage Due label or labels of the face value of the amount demanded." It soon became obvious that the range of the labels was inadequate and by 1922 the values included 1½d, 3d, 4d, and 1s.

How did the system work? Unpaid or underpaid mail was marked with a charge stamp at the outward sorting office warning the delivery office that a charge had to be levied. An inspector or head postman at the delivery office had a supply of postage due labels and affixed the appropriate postage labels and cancelled them. This was then charged to the delivery postman's account who collected the amount due. On returning to the office, the cash was credited to the postman's charge account.

Why did the initial postage due stamps include a ½d value? (A 1½d stamp was added in 1922.) These values were not normally used on postal items with insufficient or no prepaid postage; such items were charged double the deficiency in the pre-decimal era and as there were no inland rates with farthings (¼d), the postage due could only be in whole pennies. From January 1, 1895 return to sender printed matter, including newspaper wrappers, was charged the original postage again and stamped accordingly (fig. 1). The basic printed matter and newspaper rate was ½d. The much-redirected 1896 wrapper was returned to sender wrapper and has a violet hand stamp ½d postage due for return to sender (fig. 1). The notice of arrival of goods, 2 cwt (two hundred weight) just over 100 kg, of carbide at Rayleigh Station, Great Eastern Railway, was mailed to Percy Nunn in nearby Hadleigh at the printed matter rate. It was returned from Hadleigh on July 25, 1918. The green ½d postage due stamp was cancelled at Rayleigh on July 27 (fig. 2). The basic printed matter rate had increased to 1½d on June 1, 1951. The printed matter cover from Harrison & Crossfield, Ltd., originally a large tea trader, was mailed on August 25, 1954 to Ceylon House, London and returned to sender on August 27 as the addressee had gone away (fig. 3). A rubber stamp 1½ return to sender was added as well as a green 1½d postage due stamp. The colour of the 1½d stamp had been changed from chestnut to green on February 11, 1952, and the green ½d to yellow orange on September 18, 1951 and to bright orange on June 8, 1955. On October 1, 1961 the printed matter rate became 2½d/2oz. As there were no 2½d postage due stamps, the cover from the 1961 Canine Insurance Association has a bright orange ½d stamp and an agate 2d stamp (fig. 4).

When several items were being returned to the same sender, the Post Office made up bundles and the stamp on the top cover indicated the total postage due. The September 1935 unsealed cover, originally mailed from Bodmin on September 6, 1935 and returned from Chorley on September 10 was the top cover in a bundle of 26 items to the same sender. Postage due stamps for a total of 13d (1s 1d) were added and cancelled September 10, 1935 (figs. 5 and 6).

With the introduction of the second-class rate on September 16, 1968, there was no longer a unique printed matter rate.

The collection of postage due on insufficiently prepaid incoming foreign mail, or covers from colonies not issuing stamps, such as the Pitcairn Islands and Tristan da Cunha, sometimes required the use of postage due stamps with values in 1/2d. The pre-revolution picture postcard from Moscow to Dublin (fig. 7) was charged 1/2d postage due and an emerald stamp added. Although the 1925 picture postcard from Toulon has a Paquebot cancellation and a George V 1d stamp (fig. 8), it was charged 1 1/2d postage due, the current British overseas postcard rate. The chestnut 1 1/2d postage due stamp was cancelled on September 2 at Hampton Hill. The 1d postal stationery postcard with a Paquebot London, 5 AP 24, has a 1/2d and a 1d stamp to make up the 1 1/2d due rate (fig. 9). This card from Cherbourg was presumably mailed on board a non-British ship.

Two 1/2d stamps could also be used to pay the 1d postage due (fig. 10).

Postage due stamps with decimal currency were issued on February 15, 1971. ☒

Christmas, Crèches, Candles and Celebrations

By Ron Tabbert

Over the River and through the Woods to Grandmother's House We Go is a refrain from a lively holiday song that may bring back great Christmas memories for many. And part of the day would include a tree, gifts, a fireplace, turkey dinner, lights, candles, a sleigh in a winter landscape, and maybe even a visit from Santa. All are traditional elements accruing to the mid-winter celebration over the years. Much possibly created by North American commercial advocacy of the season.

But these elements are there even for those fully committed to the sacred roots and purpose of Christmas as well. The United States seems to have a hyper-sensitive dichotomy between the sacred and the secular and its dampening effect on stamp-issuing policies is evident from the first issues. It took four years from the first 1962 issue (a Christmas wreath, Scott 1205) to 1966 before a specifically sacred image was used. That first of many Madonna or Nativity stamps (Scott 1321) pictured Madonna and Child with Angels by Hans Memling.

Canada's very first Christmas issue – (Sorry, folks, the 1898 Scott No. 85 notwithstanding here.) – though not depicting a specifically religious subject, shows a family of four contemplating a star in the sky on a calm winter night, with the title Star of Bethlehem (Scott 434-5). So from the first, with no apologies the sacred origin of “Christ”mas was assumed to be basic to Canada’s “holyday” issues. And the very next year, the gifts of the wise men were on both stamps, one blue, one green (Scott 443-4). Followed in 1966 by Albrecht Dürer’s famous Praying Hands (Scott 451-2).

Also, Christmas sets have generally been issued in denominations reflecting rates for domestic, United States, foreign and for a while, for pre-coded envelope rates.

One exception is the 1981 set of three commemorating the bicentennial of the first illuminated Christmas tree in Canada (Scott 900-2). All three stamps were in the domestic rate.

The sleigh gliding through the woods and the winter landscape graced several of Canada's holiday issues. The designs of the 1996 set (Scott 1627-9) were based on Canadian art used on UNICEF Christmas cards, and also commemorate the organization's 50th anniversary. Snowflakes were the entire issue of four stamps in 1971 (Scott 554-7). Winter fun was the theme of 2008, with kids skiing, tobogganing and making a snow angel (Scott 2293-5). And a snowman (Scott 2124) joined a reindeer (Scott 2239), a tree (Scott 2344), and holly (Scott 2491) among recent “extra” holiday add-on issues.

Canada Post chose to illustrate greeting cards a couple of other years, as well. And these too have a variety of topics, with the nostalgic and also the religious among them. The 1980 set (Scott 870-2) includes one of Christmas Morning church-goers. The 2006 card reproductions (Scott 2184-6) include one titled Contemplation. 2006 seems to be the year Canada Post Corporation made a conscious decision to issue more holiday stamps with a specifically sacred theme among them. The classic

Madonna and Child by Antoine-Sebastien Falardeau was a separate Christmas issue that year (Scott 2183).

Toys (Scott 839-410) and gifts (Scott 2004-6) made up the issues of 1979 and 2003. Candles, the entire 1972 issue, (Scott 606-9) and another unique approach, plants in 1987 (Scott 1148-51). The poinsettia, holly wreath and mistletoe join the tree to decorate the house for the holidays.

The Christmas issues of several years have been such that they covered the whole gamut of yuletide celebration. The Children's Art of 1970 (Scott 519-30) includes snowmen, sleighs, children skiing; then Christmas trees, and that unique surprise: the toy store (Scott 526). But the kids didn't hesitate to include the sacred elements of the season: a church, a nativity, and the Christ child.

Such is the nature of a few other issues. 1973 covered the festivities from skate to dove ornament and Santa Claus, but included a shepherd and star (Scott 625-8). The paintings reproduced in 1974 (Scott 650-3) included a Nativity.

Jolly Old St. Nick gets his due on Canada Post's holiday issues. In 52 years and over 60 issues, Santa Claus was the subject of six years. The 1985 set showed four Santa Claus parade paintings (Scott 1067-70) followed again by the Toronto Santa Claus parade in 2004 (Scott 2069-71). The three lively, bright designs of 2014 (Scott 2798-2800) gave him quite an aura, everything from an impish twinkle in his eye as he answers letters, to a jovial flight with his magical bag, but finally, the elegant (bishop's) robes of his namesake, St. Nicholas.

The highlight for Santa Claus was a three-year series from 1991-93 (Scott 1339-42, 1452-5, 1499-1502). He was portrayed as he is celebrated in countries around the world: from Sinterklaas in Holland to Jõuluvana in Estonia to Ded Moroz in Russia, among others.

As one would expect, however, more than a third of Canada's Christmas stamps have celebrated the Christ of Christmas. Out of 64 sets or singles, comprising 189 Christmas stamps, in the last 52 years, 48 stamps depicted nativities, crèches or Madonnas. If one adds carolers (Scott 476-7, 1533-6), prayer (451-2, 502-3), angels (1113-16, 1764-7, 1815-17), churches (1004-6), and candles (606-9), 73 stamps, or 38%, were relative to the spiritual focus of the season.

The first set, in 1976, used stained glass windows for their design (Scott 697-9): from St. Michael's in Toronto and St. Jude in London, ON and one by Yvonne Williams.

ald G. White's paintings of the Huron Carol, a native telling of the story. The soapstone works (Scott 488-9) of 1968 could be seen as portrayals of the Holy Family and a Madonna. Two exquisite sets are the paintings and sculpture of 1990 (Scott 1294-7) and 2002 (Scott 1965-7). Canada Post designers provided boldly coloured backgrounds that present these expressive works well.

Another distinctive design was the 2007 use of crèches in the collection of St. Joseph's Oratory in Montreal (Scott 2125-7). And, appropriately, as a commemorative for the 1988 Millennium of Christianity in Ukraine, icons of the Madonna and a Nativity were the designs for the year (Scott 1222-25).

Given the sizable Ukrainian population of Canada, it was a natural.

Should you be looking for an interesting philatelic Christmas gift, to give or receive, Canada's holiday stamps are a gold mine of errors, varieties and printings. Hint to your friends or let Santa know. ☒

Stained glass windows of churches in Vancouver, Calgary and Leith, Ontario were effectively presented on an all-white background in 1997 (Scott 1669-71). A unique medium was Maurice Lord's Nativity sculptures on capital columns of Sainte-Anne-de-Beaupré Basilica in Quebec (Scott 1585-8), used in 1995.

Canada's entire 1978 Christmas set presented three sophisticated classical Madonna paintings (Scott 773-5). The United States Postal Service has used almost every Madonna painting in the National Art Gallery, but it could be an approach Canada Post might consider using more often.

Aboriginal art has been well represented through the years. The three stamps of 1977 (Scott 741-3) used Ron-

NEW ZEALAND PICTORIAL ISSUE

- The Third and Fourth Pictorial Issues (1960-1967)

By Joseph Monteiro

INTRODUCTION

The Third Pictorial Issue of New Zealand appeared in 1960, 25 years after the Second Pictorial Issue and 62 years after the First Pictorial Issue. The Fourth Pictorial Issue was basically a result of the change to decimal currency in 1967. Instead of pence, shillings and pounds, cents and dollars were used. The designs on the stamps remained the same. Post office officials decided to combine the third pictorial and fourth pictorial issues into one. By this time, many countries realized the value of promoting tourism through stamps, but had still not adopted a liberal stamp-issue policy. A classic example was the United Kingdom where the monarch of the commonwealth continued to dominate the definitive series.

This article deals with the Third and the Fourth Pictorial Issues of New Zealand. First, we provide a brief technical background on the issue. Second, we will give a description of each stamp. Third, we will present the method of analysis. Fourth, the stamps in this issue will be presented, according to the analysis, in a table which will be easy to scan and understand.

A public competition was held to obtain designs and 1,072 entries were received from 268 competitors. The values in the new set from 1d to 8d were designs depicting native flora. Due to a change in postal rate, denominations of 2 1/2d, 5d and 7d were added to this set after the initial stamps were issued.

There was insufficient time to have a new set of pictorial stamps in 1967 when the sterling monetary system was replaced with decimal currency and the existing 1960 pictorial designs were retained. Two additional stamps, with new designs, were added to the set in late 1967 (7½ cents) and mid-1968 (28 cents) and two of the original designs were reissued in different colours in 1968 (15c and $2). Both Thomas De la Rue and Harrison and Sons were responsible for printing the 1960 set and retained the contracts for the decimal currency set.

A BRIEF TECHNICAL BACKGROUND (1)

The Third pictorial issue covered a wide range of pictorials from New Zealand's unique flowers, Maori art, industry, and interesting tourist spots. The third pictorial issue consisted of 23 stamps of which two, the 1s9d and the 3s, had different colours. This, of course, does not include the coil stamps. It was also the first time that New Zealand began issuing coil stamps as part of its pictorial series.

The ½d value was designed by Harrison and Sons Ltd, the 1d, 3d and 6d by G. F. Fuller, the 2d, 4d, 5d and 8d by A. G. Mitchell and the 1s and 1s 6d values by J. Berry, 1s 3d by R. E. Barwick, 1s 9d by J. C. Boyd, 2s by D. F. Kee, 2s 6d and 5s by L. C. Mitchell and the 3s, 10s and £1 by A. G. Mitchell and the 2½d, 7d and 9d by the Post Office. Thomas De La Rue printed all values with the exception of the 2½ d, 5d and 7d denominations, which Harrison and Sons printed.

Technical details, provided by New Zealand Post are: Date of Issue: 11 July 1960; Stamp size: Lower values - 20mm x 24mm; 9d, 1s and 1s 9d: 28.5mm x 24.5mm; 1s 3d and 1s 6d: 24.5mm x 28.5mm; 2s 6d, 3s and 10s: 41mm x 24.5mm; 2s, 5s and £1 : 24.5mm x 41mm. Sheet Size: Lower values - 240 stamps per sheet; 9d, 1s, 1s 3d, 1s 6d and 1s 9d: 160 stamps per sheet; 2s, 2s 6d, 3s, 5s, 10s and £1: 120 stamps per sheet. Booklets contain both 1/2d and 1d stamps, and 1d and 3d stamps; Process: Photogravure; Perforation gauge: 1/2d to 8d:14.5 x 14, 9d, 1s; 1s 9d, 2s 6d, 3s and 10s: 14.75 x 14; 1s 3d, 1s 6d, 2s, 5s and £1: 14 x 14.75; Paper type: De La Rue printings: Wiggins Teape 'Esparto', multiple NZ and star watermark; Later printings on chalk-surfaced variety; Harrison printings: Guard Bridge chalk surface paper, multiple NZ and star watermark.

Two of the above values appeared with an amended colour: the 1s 9d (multicolour) issued on November 4, 1963 and the 3s (multicolour) issued on April 1, 1964.

The Fourth pictorial issue replicates the design of 18 stamps of the third issue together with 10 additional values on export promotion and a few more designs of the third pictorial issue in a different colour.

For the decimals, the ½c, 1c, 2c, 2 ½c, 3c, 5c, 7c and 7 ½c stamps were printed by Thomas De La Rue & Co Ltd and the 4c, 6c and remaining values printed by Harrison and Sons Ltd.

Designs were completed by Harrison and Sons - ½ c; Geoff Fuller - 1c, 2 ½ c, 5c; R. M. Conly - 7 ½c; James Berry - 10c, 15c; D. F. Kee - 20c; New Zealand Post Office

- 6c, 8c, 28c; Allan Mitchell - 2c, 3c, 4c, 7c, 30c, $1, $2 and L C Mitchell - 25c, 50c.

Technical details provided by New Zealand Post are as follows: Date of Issue: July 10, 1967; Stamp size: Lower values 21mm x 25 mm; 8c and 10c: 24mm x 40mm; 25c, 30c and $1: 41mm x 25 mm; 20c, 28c, 50c and $2: 25 mm x 41mm. Sheet Size: Lower values 200 stamps per sheet; 7 ½c, 8c, 10c, and 15c are 150 stamps per sheet; other values are 100 stamps per sheet. Booklets contain ½ c, 1c and 3c stamps; Process: Photogravure; Perforation Gauge: ½c, 1c, 2c, 2½c, 3c, 5c and 7c: 13.5 x 14; 4c and 6c: 15 x 14; 7½c: 13; 8c, 10c, 25c, 30c and $1: 14.5 x 14; 15c, 20c, 28c, 50c and $2: 14 x 14.5. Paper Type: Chalk surfaced, multiple NZ and star watermark.

Two of the above values appeared with an amended colour: the Tiki - 15c - Amended colour (green) issued on 19 March 1968 and the Pohutu Geyser - $2.00 - Amended colour (multicolour) issued on 10 December 1968.

A DESCRIPTION OF EACH STAMP

Manuka - ½d/½c: The ½d and ½c stamps depict the Manuka. Manuka leptospermum scoparium also commonly called the tea tree, is a bushy shrub found in most parts of the country. The flowers are mostly white, appear in profusion and often almost hide the small reddish-green leaves.

The woody fruit have five narrow slits through which the seeds escape. The colour of the stamp is predominantly red, with white flowers and green leaves.

Karaka - 1d/1c: The karaka corynocarpus laevigatus is a tall tree of the coastal forest and also occurs in picturesque isolated groves casting a welcome shade on rocky foreshores. The dark green glossy leaves reach a length of over 15 cm. Inconspicuous greenish flowers give rise to full clusters of richly coloured berries that ripen in strong summer sun. The colour of the stamp is dark sepia, with green leaves and orange berries.

Kowhai-ngutu-kaka - 2d/2c: The name kowhai-ngutu-kaka shows that the Maori recognised the close relationship between this plant and the yellow kowhai, at the same time likening its flowers to the beak of a native parrot, the kaka. This plant is a soft, woody shrub rarely exceeding

1.8 metres. The kaka beak cianthus puniceus, as it is commonly known, has curved and pointed red flowers about 10 cm long. The colour of the stamp is predominantly green with red flowers.

Titoki - 2½ d: The 2½ d stamp depicts the titoki. Alectryon excelsus is a handsome tree, sometimes called the New Zealand Ash. It can reach a height of 18 metres. The stamp has a grey background and the colour of the shrub is green with dark red berries.

Kowhai - 3d/2½c: The Kowhai is generally regarded as New Zealand's national flower. The yellow kowhai sophora microphylla is easily grown and is widespread both in its native state and as an ornamental tree in gardens. The background on the stamp is dark blue and the branch has a few leaves in green colour together with yellow flowers.

Puarangi - 4d/3c: The 4d and 3c stamps depict the Hibiscus trionum. It is the botanical name of the plant known to the Maori as puarangi, is the smaller of the two New Zealand hibiscus. It belongs to the northern frost-free part of the country and can now be seen only in remote places and on some off-shore islands. The background on the stamp is light blue and the branch has a few leaves in green colour together with yellow flowers.

Matua Tikumu - 5d/4c: The Matua Tikumu is commonly known as the Mountain Daisy. There are many varieties found in the mountain districts of both North and South Islands. The leaves are covered with a velvety coating of fine hairs and the flower rays are white and daisy-like, being up to 100mm in diameter. The background on the stamp is purple and the shrub has dark green leaves with white flowers.

Pikiarero - 6d/5c: The Pikiarero is found in most lowland forest areas of New Zealand. Spring is heralded by the flowering of the climber now called clematis paniculata, but formerly known as clematis indivisa. The white blooms, more than 50mm across, are borne in masses when the vines reach the full light of the tree tops, or the forest edge. The background on the stamp is green, the leaves are green with shades of white and the flowers are white.

Koromiko - 7d/6c: The 7d and 6c stamps depict the Koromiko or Hebe salicifolia. It is a native shrub of which there are seven main species. The background on the stamp is predominantly pink, the leaves are green and the colour of the flower is red.

Rata - 8d/7c: The 8d and 7c stamps depict the Rata. Rata Metrosideros robusta (northern variety) or Metrosideros umbellata (southern variety), like Manuka, belongs to the myrtle family. The vines affix themselves to tree trunks and rocks by short roots from the stems. The flowers are conspicuous because of the bunched stamens, which in this species are 25 mm long, reddish-orange and tipped with yellow pollen when freshly opened. Flowering amongst the tree tops or in roundish clumps in partly cleared country, the rata provides a splash of colour in winter. The background on the stamp is light grey, the shrub has large red coloured flowers and the leaves are green.

Brown Trout - 7½c: The 7½c stamp depicts the brown trout. The brown trout thrives in New Zealand's inland rivers and streams and provides sport for fishermen from all over the world. This stamp commemorated the 100th anniversary of its introduction to New Zealand waters.

New Zealand Flag - 9d/8c: The 9d and 8c stamps depict New Zealand's national flag, a Blue Ensign bearing the four-star Southern Cross constellation. It was not adopted for general use until the gazetting of the Royal assent to the New Zealand Ensign Act on June 12, 1902. The background on the stamp is light blue and the colour of the flag is dark blue with a few touches of red.

Timber Industry - 1s/10c: The 1s and 10c stamps depict timber. New Zealand was a heavily forested land when the first European settlers arrived. Clearance of the land for pastures, deliberate and accidental burning and the operations of timber mills threatened the timber resources. Fortunately, reforestation projects have given a promising future to the timber industry. Both exotic and native timbers are being milled in large quantities for use within the country and for export. Timber was, in fact, a commodity for overseas trade up until the 1870s, being New Zealand's major export in the 1850s. However, it was not until the State Forest Service was established in 1920 that forestry gradually re-emerged as a major export industry. The design of the stamp was commissioned by the New Zealand Timber Merchant Federation. The background on the stamp is green and the colour of the timber is dark brown and yellow.

Fishing - Trout - 1s 3d: The 1s3d stamp depicts the rainbow trout Salmo gairdnerii. It was originally introduced from the Pacific Coast of America and has thrived so well in rivers and lakes of the central North Island and high-country lakes of the South Island that angling for fish has become an important tourist attraction. The colour of the water is blue and the trout is silver black with shades of red.

Tiki - 1s 6d/15c: The stamps depict the greenstone hei-tiki, one of the commonest forms of neck pendant worn by Maori of high rank when Europeans first came to New Zealand. Greenstone is an extremely hard material. The background of the stamp is dark orange and the gemstone is dark green.

Aerial Top Dressing (Brown; and multicoloured) - 1s 9d: The 1s9d stamp depicts aerial spraying. Spraying from the air is now an established part of New Zealand's agricultural economy. Operating from 12,000 farm airstrips, aircrafts undertake a variety of work which includes topdressing; aerial surveys of noxious weeds; spraying of weeds and crops; airdrops of fencing posts and hay bales for stock; firefighting; laying of chemical fire breaks and poison baits. The colour of the stamp is predominantly light brown and the multicoloured stamp is blue, green and yellow green in colour.

Taniwha - 2s/20c: The 2s and 20c stamps depict Maori Art. Although Maori art when the first Europeans made contact had previously been featured in stamp designs, this South Island rock drawing of a taniwha was the first archaeological subject chosen from Maori prehistory to be depicted on a New Zealand stamp. The drawings are in a limestone cave shelter, which overlooks the south bank of the Opihi River in South Canterbury. The taniwha is a mythical monster of Maori tradition, which was described as a gigantic man-eating reptile lurking in deep pools. The background colour is light yellowish-brown and the design of the art is in black.

Dairy Industry - Butter - 2s 6d/25c: At the time of issue of this stamp New Zealand manufactured around 220,000 tons of butter a year, of which more than three-quarters was exported. It was important then and still is as a major dairy export. The background colour is bright brown and the colour of the butter is yellow.

Fox Glacier - 28c: The 28c stamp depicts Fox Glacier, one of New Zealand's most magnificent scenic attractions known as the "river of ice" in Westland National Park, in the South island. The design of the stamp is a new addition to this series and was issued on July 30, 1968. The colours of the stamp are predominantly light blue with shades of green.

Tongariro National Park & Chateau (sepia; and multicoloured) - 3s: This the first of New Zealand's National Parks originated with a gift of the mountain tops of Tongariro (1968 metres), Ngauruhoe (2290 metres) and Ruapehu (2796 metres) by Te Heu heu Tukino and associated Maori Chiefs in 1887. The background colour is dark sepia with the mountain in white. The multicoloured version of this stamp is blue, yellow and green.

Sutherland Falls - 5s/50c: The Sunderland Falls is located in Fiordland National Park and drops from Lake Quill over a steep-walled mountain parapet of the upper Arthur Valley in three successive leaps - the topmost 248 metres, the middle 229 metres, and the lowest 103 metres. The background colour of the stamp is dark green with the waterfalls in white.

Tasman Glacier - 10s/$1: The 10s and $1 stamps depict Tasman Glacier. It is not only the largest glacier in New Zealand but also one of the largest in the temperate zone, in the South Island's Mount Cook National Park. The background of the stamp is predominantly light blue with the mountain in shades of blue and white.

Pohutu Geyser - £1/$2: The £1 and $2 stamps depict the Pohutu Geyser. The giant Pohutu Geyser at Whakarewarewa, near Rotorua, flings boiling water over 20 metres into the air. It is one of the great attractions of the central North Island's thermal region. The background colour is predominantly pink with the geyser white and the mountain dark pink.

METHOD OF ANALYSIS

Stamps of the same design and value have certain basic features by which we can distinguish them. These basic characteristics, which cannot be altered, are: paper, watermark, perforation, printing process, tagging, fluorescence, etc. If a feature can be altered it is not a true characteristic of the stamp. For example, colour can be altered if the stamp is exposed to sunlight. This does not mean that these alterable characteristics are not useful for the classification of stamps. They are used often, but care should be taken for what may appear to be a different colour or variety may, in fact, not be what it seems to be.

In the 1960 Third Pictorial Issue, there is one basic characteristic for classifying stamps, which is paper type: ordinary paper vs. chalky paper. For a couple of stamps, perforations also need to be looked at.

ANALYSIS

Based on the two basic characteristics, the 1960 Pictorial issue is classified in the following tables.

Besides the varieties of stamps listed above, this article would not be complete without mentioning that a number of printing and perforating errors have also have been discovered. A few examples are: the 2d Kaka Flower stamp - black inscription missing; the 2 1/2d Titoki Flower stamp - double colour; the 3d Kowhai Flower stamp and the 1/2c Manuka Flower stamp - misperforated; the 3c Puarangi Flower stamp - double perforated, etc.

CONCLUSION

The third and fourth pictorial issues are quite colourful and should keep most ordinary philatelists engrossed as they have an eclectic mix of flora and New Zealand activities. The stamps bring together an interesting combination of colours in their designs, which the earlier pictorial issues lacked. For more advanced collectors, the two types of papers used on some stamps, in addition to the coil stamps, should provide enough challenge

Santa Goes High Tech

When It Makes Sense

By Nick R. Bocker

To help speed up Santa's mail to his many young friends around the globe, Canada Post has added unique machine-readable barcodes to the tracking numbers on covers enclosing his letters. But, there are two notable exceptions: the English and French "After Christmas" postcards. Santa's elves send these "After Christmas" postcards to tardy youngsters who did not manage to get their letters written to Santa in time to allow the Jolly Old Elf to reply using one of his usual preprinted letters. We will come back to these two seeming omissions later in this article.

Santa's standard preprinted letters consist of three different English versions enclosed in covers marked EB1, EB2, and EB3 and the corresponding three French versions, FB1, FB2 and FB3. (EB and FB are abbreviations for English Before and French Before, respectively.) In addition, Santa has at his disposal special letters composed by professional individuals for situations where his three standard letter versions are not appropriate. Examples include cases where a child asks Santa that his or her mother or father get well from a serious illness, or that a parent come home for Christmas. These special letters are sent in covers marked ES or FS, the abbreviations for English Special and French Special, respectively.

Of course, there are also the 25-odd foreign language letters that Canada Post produces to allow Santa to answer letters in the language in which he receives them. In addition to the foreign language letters, there are also versions in Braille, which are mailed in large, 9- by 12-inch envelopes.

Canada Post encourages school-age children to write Santa as a classroom project and it has four poster-size letters measuring 17-by 22-inches each, two English and two French that it sends to schools in response to the students' classroom letters. The artwork adorning these "poster-size" letters is identical to that shown on the 8½- by 11-inch individual letters, except for their much larger size measuring 17 X 22 inches. Covers used to mail these classroom letters are imprinted EBC, EAC, FBC and FAC, short for English Before Classroom, English After Classroom, French Before Classroom and French After Classroom. Each of the four covers is imprinted with a unique tracking number along with the corresponding barcode.

Why, then, did Canada Post opt not to print the barcodes on the after Christmas postcards? According to one of Santa's elves in Ottawa, there were three reasons: 1) a barcode would have taken too much space from the overall appearance of the relatively small postcard; 2) the urgency and need to quickly scan a letter, as is done during the bundle distribution process leading up to the Christmas season, no longer applies after the Christmas rush, and 3) because elves do not add personal notes on postcards, the importance of tracking specific elves helping Santa with his replies is greatly reduced.

Machine readable bar code inadvertently printed on the 2016 "After Christmas" postcard.

However, it seems that not even Santa's trusty elves are perfect and a printing error is responsible for having placed a barcode on a small number of English postcards. Some of these barcode-printed postcards were apparently shipped to some of the 3,000 regional coordinators across Canada before the elves in Ottawa became aware of the printing error. And before the Ottawa elf team could recall the barcode-imprinted postcards some had been mailed out to children; all unmailed stocks were returned to Ottawa. This sequence of events would explain why at least one English-version postcard imprinted with a barcode made it into the mail stream. Apparently none of the French-version postcards were overprinted with a barcode.

How many of these English "after" Christmas postcards, mistakenly imprinted with barcodes, did well-meaning elves across the country mail out? How would anyone really know? Will more of these postcards show up? Only time will tell. ☒

Le père Noël devient « high-tech » lorsque cela est judicieux

Par Nick R. Bocker

Afin d'accélérer l'acheminement du courrier du Père Noël vers ses nombreux jeunes amis d'un peu partout sur le globe, Postes Canada a ajouté des codes à barres uniques, lisibles par machine, aux numéros de suivi apposés sur les enveloppes contenant ses lettres. Il existe cependant deux exceptions dignes de mention : les cartes postales en anglais et celles en français « Après-Noël ». Les lutins du père Noël envoient ces cartes postales « Après-Noël » aux jeunes retardataires qui n'ont pas réussi à écrire leur lettre au père Noël à temps pour lui permettre de répondre à l'aide de l'une des lettres réimprimées habituelles. Nous reviendrons sur ces deux omissions apparentes plus loin dans le présent article.

Les lettres préimprimées du Père Noël sont constituées de trois versions anglaises différentes insérées dans des enveloppes qui sont marquées EB1, EB2 et EB3 et des trois versions françaises correspondantes FB1, FB2 et FB3. EB et FB sont les abréviations de English Before et French Before (anglais avant; français avant). En outre, le Père Noël dispose de lettres spéciales, composées par des professionnels, pour les situations où ces trois lettres standard ne sont pas appropriées. Par exemple, certains cas, où un enfant demande au Père Noël que sa mère ou son père se rétablisse d'une maladie grave ou qu'un parent vienne passer Noël à la maison. Ces lettres spéciales sont envoyées dans des enveloppes marquées ES ou FS, l'abréviation de English Special et French Special (anglais spécial et français spécial).

Et bien sûr, il y a aussi les quelques 25 lettres en langues étrangères produites par Postes Canada pour permettre au Père Noël de répondre à une lettre dans la langue dans laquelle il la reçoit. En plus des lettres en langues étrangères, il existe aussi des versions en Braille, postées dans de grandes enveloppes de 23 cm sur 30 cm.

Postes Canada encourage les enfants d'âge scolaire à écrire au Père Noël dans le cadre d'un projet de classe et dispose de quatre lettres format affiche mesurant 43 cm sur 56 cm, deux en anglais et deux en français, expédiées aux écoles en réponse aux lettres parvenant d'une classe d'écoliers. La représentation artistique décorant ces lettres de grand format est identique à celle figurant sur les lettres individuelles de 22x28 cm sauf pour ce qui est de la taille de la feuille. Les enveloppes utilisées pour poster ces lettres destinées aux classes sont marquées EBC, EAC, FBC et FAC, un diminutif qui signifie English Before Classroom, English After Classroom (anglais avant — classe; anglais après — classe), French Before Classroom et French After Classroom (français avant — classe; français après — classe). Chacune des quatre enveloppes possède un numéro de suivi, imprimé accompagné du code à barres correspondant.

Dès lors, pourquoi Postes Canada a-t-elle choisi de ne pas imprimer les codes à barres sur les cartes postales d'Après-Noël? Selon l'un des lutins du Père Noël d'Ottawa, il existe trois raisons : 1) un code à barres aurait pris trop de place sur la carte postale, qui est relativement petite; 2) l'urgence et la nécessité de balayer rapidement la lettre, comme cela se produit au cours du processus de distribution en masse d'avant les fêtes ne s'appliquent plus après la ruée de Noël; 3) parce que les lutins n'ajoutent pas de notes personnelles sur les cartes postales, l'importance de suivre précisément certains lutins qui aident le père Noël dans ses réponses est grandement réduite.

Il semble toutefois que même les bons lutins du Père Noël ne sont pas parfaits et qu'une erreur d'impression soit responsable du placement d'un code à barres sur un petit nombre de cartes postales en anglais. Quelques-unes de ces cartes postales dotées d'un code à barres imprimé ont apparemment été envoyées à certains des 3000 coordonnateurs régionaux du Canada avant que les lutins d'Ottawa ne se rendent compte de l'erreur d'impression. Avant que l'équipe de lutins d'Ottawa ait pu faire un rappel des cartes postales portant un code à barres imprimé, certaines avaient déjà été expédiées à des enfants, mais tout le stock non imprimé a été retourné à Ottawa. Cette séquence d'événements expliquerait pourquoi au moins une carte postale en version anglaise imprimée avec un code à barres s'est retrouvée dans le circuit postal. Apparemment, aucune des lettres en version française n'a reçu un code à barres en surimpression.

Combien de ces cartes postales « d'Après-Noël » imprimées par erreur avec des codes à barres par des lutins bien intentionnés se sont retrouvées dans le courrier du pays? Comment quelqu'un pourrait-il vraiment le savoir? Davantage de ces cartes postales feront-elles surface? Seul le temps le dira. ☒

JACQUES CARTIER

The Man who Claimed Canada for France

By Lane Robson

First Cartier issue
January 1855.

Two of the first nineteen stamps issued by Canada had an image of Jacques Cartier. The images of this famous French explorer confirmed his status as an important Canadian symbol and one of an exclusive group of symbols that included Queen Victoria (seven images), Prince Albert (six images), and the beaver (four images).

rency to the decimal system.³ The second Cartier stamp had a denomination of 17 cents and was perforated, a new convenience for postal workers and customers. This stamp was used for the 17c letter rate for the Cunard line to the United Kingdom, the 17c letter rate for the Allen line to France, and the triple rate for registered letters.²

Mourning cover from Quebec, Lower Canada to Limerick England. Mailed December 19, 1864 and cancelled in Limerick 15 days later on January 3, 1865.

Cover from Quebec, Lower Canada to Cheshire, England via Liverpool.

The Postmaster General requested the Cartier image and the 10d denomination for the first stamp was chosen to serve as the letter rate for every ½ ounce of weight for packets to Europe.¹¹ Single, double, and quadruple stamps were used for the Cunard line rates to the United Kingdom.¹² The stamp was also used for the Allan Line rate to France.¹²

An act by the Canadian Legislature passed on July 1, 1859 changed the denomination for Canadian cur-

Jacques Cartier is often credited with the discovery of Canada but he was certainly not the first European to sail to and land in Canada. French and Basque fishing boats had visited Canada for decades, perhaps even before Columbus “discovered” America.

Cartier certainly understood that he was not the first European to discover Canada.¹⁴¹ His trip was based on accurate navigation data that he obtained from local Breton whalers and fishermen; he knew exactly where he was going. Many prominent islands and landmarks had already been named. Fishing boats were so common in Canada that on his first trip, Cartier records a random meeting with a French fishing vessel off the shores of Newfoundland.^{15,61}

Cartier made three official expeditions to Canada in 1534, 1535-6, and 1541-2. There is speculation that he might have first traveled to Canada a decade earlier in 1524 in a vessel under the command of the Florentine Giovanni da Verrazano. Verrazano explored the coast from the Carolinas north to Cape Breton.¹⁴¹

On April 20, 1534, Jacques Cartier left Saint-Malo with two ships, each with a crew of 61 men. The weather for this trans-Atlantic voyage was favorable and the passage took only 20 days before they made land at Cape Bonavista, Newfoundland.^{15,61}

Imperforate proof pair of 17c Cartier issue of 1859.

Cartier's journal includes many descriptions of the marine and land animals, the plants and trees, the topography of the land, and the aboriginal inhabitants.^[5,6]

On the first voyage he describes an encounter with a polar bear.^[5,6]

"bears come there to eat the birds, and our men found one as big as a cow, white as a swan, which jumped into the water before them."

One of the first encounters with the aboriginals is described.^[5,6]

"Here are men of fine shape and stature, but indomitable and savage. They wear their hair tied on the top of their heads like a bunch of hay, passing through it a small piece of wood, or something similar, in place of a nail (pin), and they also attach there some bird's feathers. They wear skins, men and women, the latter being completely covered and girded at the waist (which the men are not); they paint themselves with certain red colors."

The aboriginals were keen to trade with Cartier's men.^[5,6]

"They gave us all they had, retaining nothing; so that they were obliged to go away perfectly naked. They made signs to us they would return the next day, bringing other skins."

Post card shows Cartier placing a cross on Gaspé Peninsula. Posted in France with 10-centime definitive issue.

Cartier erected a cross in a prominent location on Gaspé Peninsula. The cross was inscribed with the words Vive le Roy de France, and with this act he claimed the lands for King Francois I of France. Donnacona, the Iroquois chief of the local aboriginals, was not pleased with the cross, presumably because the chief understood the significance of this act and disagreed with the claim to ownership.^[5,6] The journal mentions that two sons of Donnacona were taken back to France on the return voyage.^[5,6]

The second expedition left Saint-Malo on May 19, 1535 with three ships and 112 men. The ships, the Grande Hermine (Big Stoa), the Petite Hermine (Little Stoa), and the Emerillon (Merlin), were separated from each other but managed to rendezvous on July 26.^[5,6]

1908 Tercentenary Issue - Cartier arrives in Quebec

Cartier reached Hochelaga (Montreal) during this second trip.^[5,6]

The 20 cent brown Tercentenary stamp has an image of the arrival of Cartier's ships.

"On our arrival at Hochelaga more than a thousand savages gathered before us, men, women, and children; they received us as well as a parent does a child, showing great joy."

Cartier counted fifty longhouses surrounded by a palisade and defended by a redoubt of roughly piled stones. Cartier wintered in the area and they were unprepared for the harsh climate. The crew suffered due to a mysterious disease, which was likely scurvy.^[5,6]

"we were sorely visited with the epidemic, unknown and mysterious to us;"

"out of one hundred and ten souls that we had been, not ten were free from it; and one could not assist another. Our condition was pitiable,"

"during this time we lost by death twenty-five souls,"

Cartier learned of a herbal cure for the disease from the Iroquois.^[5,6]

"by the grace of God we had knowledge of a tree by which we were cured after using it;"

"our captain made a drink of it . . . all the sickness with which they were affected left them after drinking two or three times, and they became well."

On this return journey, Cartier took Donnacona and nine other aboriginals back to France. Donnacona converted to Christianity and was rewarded with a pension for life.

The final voyage left on May 23, 1541 with five ships and was intended as a colonizing mission. On this expedition Cartier established a fortified settlement he named Charlesbourg-Royal.^[5,6] Cartier's colony was the first documented European attempt to settle in Canada. The colony was abandoned in 1543. Archaeological investigations in 2006 identified modern day Cap-Rouge (Quebec City) as the precise location of the settlement.

Cartier was born in Saint-Malo in 1491 to a wealthy family. Cartier chose the sea as his profession and he was a seasoned navigator and explorer before he was commissioned by the King of France. Cartier was 43 years old when he sailed in 1534. He died in 1557 at the age of 66 years.^[4]

No official portrait of Jacques Cartier is known. The famous image on the first two Canadian Cartier stamps is based on a 19th century portrait by Francois Riis.^[4] The artist drew the portrait “from memory” based on a sketch at the Bibliothèque Impériale in Paris. The Paris sketch was never found in that century or since and might not have existed.^[4] Based on the Riis portrait, the Legislative Assembly of Quebec commissioned Théophile Hamel to paint a portrait of Jacques Cartier, and this portrait, completed in 1844, served as the model for the stamp designs.^[4]

The 1 cent green Tercentenary Issue of 1908 featured the Hamel image of Cartier alongside Samuel de Champlain.

On July 1, 1935, the government issued a 3c blue stamp to commemorate the Quadricentenary of Cartier’s arrival in Quebec. The famous image shows Cartier excitedly pointing to land in Canada. The design had been previously used by the British American Bank Note Co. for bank notes and other certificates of value.^[2]

French Cartier issue of 1934 to commemorate the first voyage.

On April 20, 1984, to commemorate the 450th anniversary of Cartier’s first voyage, Canada Post issued a 32c stamp with a modernized Hamel image of Cartier. The French government issued a 2.00 franc stamp with the identical image.

A French stamp issue with an image similar to the Hamel portrait was released in 1934. St. Pierre et Miquelon, French islands off the coast of Newfoundland, released five stamps that commemorated Cartier’s voyages to Canada.

On March 25, 1992, Canada Post issued a 48c stamp to celebrate the 350th anniversary of Cartier’s settlement at Charlesbourg-Royal.

There are a variety of Canadian Cinderella stamps with the image of Cartier.

CAPEX 1978 First Day Cover - Cartier issue to commemorate centennial of Canada’s entry into the Universal Postal Union.

For CAPEX 1978, Canada Post issued a 14c blue stamp with the image of an imperforate pair of the 1855 10d Cartier.

Jacques Cartier holds a prominent place in the hearts of adventurous Canadians. He explored Canada for his King and his country. Cartier's voyages prepared the way for future exploration and the eventual establishment of permanent colonies in New France. ☒

LES DÉBUTS DE LA POSTE À GRENVILLE AU QUÉBEC

par Cimon Morin, FRPSC

La construction d'un canal à Grenville, pour éviter les rapides de Carillon et du Long-Sault, sur la rivière Outaouais, a donné naissance au village de Grenville. Les premiers habitants de cette localité étaient surtout d'origine écossaise, la majeure partie du canton de Grenville ayant été concédée à Archibald McMillan qui y attira ses compatriotes.

Le bureau de poste ouvre le 15 juin 1819 lorsque la route postale entre Montréal, St-Eustache, St. Andrews, Grenville et Hull est ouverte par Philemon Wright de Hullii. Le bureau est situé à 240 milles de Québec. Au début il y avait livraison du courrier une fois par semaine. Cette livraison passera à deux fois par semaine au début des années 1830, à trois fois semaine à partir de 1836 et six fois par semaine au début des années 1840. [voir Annexe 1 – Routes postales : Montréal – Bytown].

Dès 1819 un contrat de malle additionnel est ajouté de Grenville à Hawkesbury, H.-C, une distance d'environ deux milles et demie, à raison d'une malle par semaine. Au printemps de 1829, le transport se fera par bateau à 13 £ par année. [iii]

ARCHIBALD MCMILLAN

Archibald McMillan, homme d'affaires, agent de développement foncier, colon, officier de milice, fonctionnaire et juge de paix, né le 23 février 1762 à la ferme Murlaggan, district de Lochaber, Écosse, fils d'Alexander McMillan, tacksman, et de Margaret Cameron: le 7 décembre 1793, il épousa à Fort William, Écosse, Isabella Gray, et ils eurent 13 enfants dont deux au moins moururent en bas âge. Il a émigré au Bas-Canada en 1802.

Il s'installa dans le canton de Grenville en 1810. En 1812 il s'illustra dans la guerre de 1812 et fut promu au rang de major. Il mourut du choléra le 19 juin 1832 à Montréal.

able de la poste au Canada. Le bureau est probablement situé dans son commerce. En 1824 Joseph Bouchette, l'arpenteur général du Bas-Canada, dénombre environ 39 maisons dans cette communauté.^[v]

« En 1826–1827, Ruggles Wright, le maitre de poste de Hull, et Thomas Mears tentèrent de faire perdre à McMillan sa place de maitre de poste du canton de Grenville en lui imputant la médiocrité du service postal entre cet endroit et Hull. McMillan blâma le bureau de poste de Hull et le transport du courrier, qui se faisait par l'unique bateau à vapeur de la rivière, l'Union, dont Mears était l'un des propriétaires. En fait, Mears avait probablement eu vent des négociations secrètes que menaient McMillan et John Torrance, de Montréal, en vue de lancer un autre vapeur sur l'Outaouais et d'arracher le contrat des postes aux propriétaires de l'Union. McMillan conserva finalement sa place, mais il abandonna l'idée d'avoir un bateau à vapeur.»^[vi]

Archibald McMillan dut toutefois démissionner de ses fonctions lors de son renvoi par T.A. Stayner probablement en avril 1829. McMillan retourne à Montréal. Dans une lettre subséquente à ce renvoi Stayner écrit au ministre des Postes le 4 août 1829 qu'il a suspendu A. McMillan pour négligence et qu'il a nommé Edwin Pridham comme remplaçant à ce poste.^[vii]

EDWIN PRIDHAM

Edwin Pridham^{viii} est né à Londres le 17 décembre 1795. Il arrive au Québec en 1815 et épouse Eliza McKerchen (1803-1864) le 26 janvier 1820. « Il s'établit à Grenville en 1823 dans l'une des maisons de M. McMillan, puis, l'année suivante, il se construisait une maison dans le village. Il ouvrit, en 1828, un magasin de détail dans le village de Grenville et fit un commerce fructueux tout en s'occupant très activement de la chose publique. Il occupa successivement les charges de maître de poste, en 1829, de capitaine de milice, en 1831; fut promu major, lieutenant-colonel et juge de paix en 1853. Il fut maire de la municipalité du canton et augmentation de Grenville de 1855 à 1866. Il mourut le 13 février 1885, laissant onze enfants, dont huit fils et trois filles ».^[ix]

Pridham devient assistant maître de poste en 1827 sous l'administration d'Archibald McMillan. Le 12 avril 1829, il est nommé maître de poste de Grenville suite au déménagement du major McMillan à Montréal. Le salaire de Pridham pour l'année 1839-1840 s'établit à 24£ 18s. Il reçoit et envoie près de 500 lettres par année en franchise postale ainsi que 364 journaux au

let's talk EXHIBITING

David Piercey, FRPSC

THE NEW MANUAL OF PHILATELIC JUDGING AND EXHIBITING

Big changes are now afoot in the world of judging and exhibiting in North America which show the positive growth in this aspect of our hobby.

August 2016 saw the board of the American Philatelic Society (APS) adopt a new, seventh, edition of the Manual of Philatelic Judging, now more inclusively called the Manual of Philatelic Judging and Exhibiting (MPJE7), after about two years of revision and editing of the old Manual.

I was fortunate to participate throughout the new Manual's genesis, providing input and reaction as an ex officio member of the committee overseeing this work, and was also able, as a RPSC board member, to later propose that we in the RPSC adopt the new Manual as our standard too in Canadian exhibiting. Our board has, at Royal 2016 Royale in Kitchener-Waterloo this past August, also unanimously decided to similarly adopt the new Manual for our Canadian exhibiting and judging practices.

Intended then for implementation as of January 1, 2017 in both countries, the new Manual makes some significant improvements to our practices. On the judging side, exhibits will soon be judged on a formal point system in each of the seven areas of Treatment, Importance, Philatelic/Subject Knowledge, Personal Study and Research, Rarity, Condition, and Presentation, and a total point score will be determined from the sum of the points in each area. Having served on the jury at APS StampShow 2016 in Portland OR where we practiced with using the point system within our deliberations, I can attest the point system should also increase transparency and accountability from both the exhibiting and judging perspectives.

Formerly, the point system had only provided weighting factors in the determination of the awarded medal level, now the same weighting factors will become point scores in the new system, and awarded points will be provided to exhibitors on the Exhibitor Feedback Form (what the Americans call the "Universal Exhibit Evaluation Form"). This should more readily assist exhibitors with a determination of their exhibits' relative strengths or weaknesses in each area. The illustration accompanying this column shows the revised RPSC Exhibitor Feedback Form which we will begin using at all our national shows, starting in 2017, and shows how the scoring will be determined.

On the administrative side, we will also implement, beginning January 2017, an 8-medal award standard, adding Large Gold, Large Vermeil and Large Silver to the existing five medals

(of Gold, Vermeil, Silver, Silver-Bronze, and Bronze) which aligns us more closely to the standard that already exists in much the rest of the philatelic world. The eight medal levels are determined by the points each exhibit receives, and will be awarded in these ranges: Large Gold 90-100 points; Gold 85-89; Large Vermeil 80-84; Vermeil 75-79; Large Silver 70-74; Silver 65-69; Silver-Bronze 60-64; Bronze 55-59; and otherwise a Certificate for any exhibit that earns fewer than 55 points.

On the exhibiting side, the new Manual continues to refine exhibit classes. Classes and Divisions for multi-frame exhibits collapse instead into one all-encompassing General Class, and which will also include Picture Post Cards, plus a new category called "Experimental Exhibits" (a bit like the old "Special Studies" and which allows for blending of a larger variety of elements from other types of exhibits), and an additional thematic category called "Topical Exhibits" for those who collect solely by stamp images. Otherwise, General Class continues with all the usual and expected sorts of exhibit types, and Single-Frame and Youth continue as separate Classes. All exhibits in the General Class will now be eligible for consideration for Grand and Reserve Grand awards, another significant change from previous practices.

The new Manual, to its credit, now includes a large section on guidelines for exhibitors, entitling a full chapter (Chapter 3) as "Principles and Evaluation Criteria for Philatelic Exhibiting" as well as including an extensive set of appendices on "Responsibilities of the Exhibitor" and "Definitions and Guidelines for Exhibit Development". Indeed, though as exhibitors we may be predisposed to think these are explicit rules for exhibiting our material, the Manual has gone to great pains to indicate these sections should be thought of more as guidelines and informed suggestions from experienced exhibitors rather than as explicit rules for exhibit preparation.

My general impression is that the new Manual is more democratic and egalitarian, and will allow greater scope for exhibitors to prepare what still remain essentially philatelic exhibits. The new title for the Manual reflects that it is as much intended for exhibitors as for judges, and should make the judging process and exhibit expectations even more clear to all levels of exhibitors.

How this will all shake down can only be determined as we move through implementation and become comfortable with the guidelines. It is up to us as exhibitors experimenting with different ways to showcase our material that we develop our guidelines and expectations and move to a common understanding of best practices in exhibit preparation. And it is up to us who also may be judges that we similarly learn to apply these practices to form an understanding of what makes a good exhibit, to determine award levels, and to provide fair and constructive feedback to all exhibitors.

The Manual is readily available on the APS website (as a pdf file), <http://www.stamps.org/userfiles/file/judges/JudgingManual2016.pdf>, and is well worth a careful inspection. As well, thanks to the initiative of some of our RPSC judges, we have already begun to introduce the new Manual in further detail through presentations at a recent PSSC (Toronto) meeting, at Royal 2016 Royale (Kitchener-Waterloo), and at Novapex (Halifax) and CANPEX (London) this year. ☒

Cover featuring a FDR cachet sent from Victory, Vermont, USA on September 2, 1945, the day Japan formally surrendered.

Commander in Chief hat, countermanded the order and ordered all ships to return to Pearl Harbor, fearing that if the two maritime forces met at sea and engaged each other, there might be a question of who fired first. He further ordered Vice Admiral William Halsey, Commander Carrier Division 2, to use his carriers to transport fighter planes to Wake and Midway Islands, further depleting Pearl Harbor's defences.

While all this was going on, Admiral Chuichi Nagumo was getting his "ducks in a row," so to speak. On November 26, 1941 he had them all lined up and gave the order for his attack force – six aircraft carriers; nine destroyers; two battleships; two heavy cruisers; one light cruiser; five fleet submarines; five midget submarines; and 408 aircraft to depart Etorofu Island in the northwest Pacific and begin a 4830 kilometer circuitous journey across the Pacific Ocean on a northerly route, rarely used by merchant ships, hoping desperately not to be spotted.

Ten days later, the raiders made it to their planned destination, about 445 kilometers north of Oahu. Their objectives were to neutralize the US Pacific Fleet and, therefore, protect Japan's advance into Malaya and the Dutch East Indies where it sought non-ubiquitous resources such as oil and rubber; buy time to increase its naval strength before US shipbuilding, authorized by the Vinson-Walsh Act in 1940, went into full production; and deliver a severe blow to American morale.

At 6:00 a.m. on Sunday, December 7, 1941 the Japanese, using the codename "Operation Z", launched their attack in two waves, approximately forty five minutes apart. They had chosen this timing because they believed the Americans would be relaxed and less alert wearing their cloak of isolationism. In total, 183 Japanese attack and defensive combat and air patrol aircraft took to the air as part of the first wave of the attack. One hour and fifteen minutes later they launched the second wave – an additional 167 planes.

The first wave reached the south side of Oahu at 0755 hours. Seconds later, just before the first bombs dropped, Commander Mitsuo Fuchida, in charge of the attack, sent a coded message to Admiral Nagumo: "TORA! TORA! TORA!" This told him that they had caught the Americans by surprise. Five minutes later, Admiral Kimmel ordered a message: "AIR RAID ON PEARL HARBOR X THIS IS NOT A DRILL." sent out to the fleet.

In addition to the air assault, the Japanese launched five, two-man midget submarines. They were to sneak into the harbor and aid in the attack. All five subs were sunk, nine crewmen died and the tenth became the first US prisoner of World War II.

The Japanese first wave targets were the aircraft carriers and battleships. As previously mentioned, the carriers were out to sea. History tells us that the American Fleet source of strength in the Pacific reposed in their nine battleships. Seven of them were moored along the six pairs of interrupted quays located along Ford Island's eastern side that fateful day. We now know it as "Battleship Row."

Quay F-2, the southernmost, which usually hosted an aircraft carrier, was empty. Northeastward, Battle Force flagship California was next, moored at F-3. Then came two pairs, moored side by side: Maryland with Oklahoma and Tennessee with West Virginia outboard. Astern of Tennessee lay Arizona, which had the repair ship Vestal alongside. Last in line was Nevada, by herself at quay F-8. The Fleet flagship, Pennsylvania, was dry docked at the nearby Navy Yard. The ninth, Colorado, was undergoing overhaul on the west coast.

The BB44 USS California was struck by two torpedoes and a heavy armour-piercing bomb. Watertight integrity had been impaired by preparation for a material inspection and the ship suffered extensive flooding when hit. Ruptured pipes ended any efforts to keep her afloat and the California sank in the mud three days later. When the action ended, 100 of her crew had lost their lives.

The BB37 USS Oklahoma was hit by three torpedoes and as she began to capsize, two more torpedoes struck home. Within minutes after the attack, she listed so severely that she rolled over almost upside down, a total loss. A total of 429 of her crew died in the attack.

The BB46 USS Maryland was struck by two armour-piercing bombs at 0800 hours losing only two enlisted men and two officers. The Japanese claimed her as sunk; however, 23 days later the damaged ship entered the Navy Yard in Washington State for repairs.

The BB48 USS West Virginia suffered some of the worst damage in the attack. She was hit by at least five torpedoes and two bombs. She took a serious list and threatened to capsize; however, she was saved by the quick action of her damage control officer who expeditiously ordered counter-flooding so she would sink on an even keel. She was later raised from the mud and following temporary repairs, sailed from Pearl Harbor on May 7, 1943, bound for Washington State and a complete rebuilding and modernization.

The BB 43 USS Tennessee was hit by two armour-piercing bombs and was damaged by oil fires. Moored starboard side to berth F-6 next to USS West Virginia and forward of USS Arizona, she was protected and trapped at her berth for ten days before being freed. Four days later she set sail for the West Coast with minor damage and was repaired by the end of February, 1942.

The BB39 USS Arizona was attacked ten times by torpedo bombers. The final torpedo hit at 0806 hours penetrating the armoured deck and hitting the ammunition magazines. In just a matter of seconds, the forward magazines detonated in a massive explosion that killed 1,177 of the 1,512 crewmen and officers on board at the time and sunk the ship. The Arizona could not be fully salvaged and the wreck still lies at the bottom of Pearl Harbor. On May 30, 1962 the USS Arizona Memorial which straddles the ship's hull was dedicated to those who died during the attack and was designated a National Historic Landmark on May 5, 1989.

The BB36 USS Nevada was in the process of Morning Colours – the ceremonial hoisting of the National Ensign – when planes appeared on the horizon and the attack started. The Nevada was not moored off Ford Island alongside another ship and therefore was able to get underway 30 minutes after being hit by one torpedo. The ship gunners were able to down four Nakajima B5N torpedo bombers as they headed toward the harbour entrance. This made the Nevada a prime target for the Aichi D3A dive bombers hoping to sink her and block the channel. Nevada took a pounding. She was struck by five armour-piercing bombs before she beached at Hospital Point. In spite of what was happening, she shot down three more bombers. Sixty members of her crew were killed that morning. She was subsequently salvaged, modernized at Puget Sound Navy Yard and returned to service in October, 1942, serving with distinction to the end of the war.

An essential component of the Japanese surprise attack was attacking the US aircraft on Oahu. In destroying a large portion of the US airplanes they could fly unhindered in the space above Pearl Harbor and more importantly, a counter attack against the Japanese would be unlikely.

On the fateful day, there was 347 US aircraft based in Hawaii at Hickham Air Base; Wheeler Air Base; Bellows Air Field; and Haleiwa Air Field. About 20 US aircraft were able to get off the ground – Curtiss P-40s; P-36 Hawks and Seversky P-35s. Most of them were shot down.

The damage done by the Japanese took only 90 minutes. The United States lost 2008 Navy personnel; 109 Marines; 218 Army/Air personnel; and 68 civilians. A total of 1178 American personnel were wounded; 18 ships were sunk or beached; nine damaged; and 188 aircraft were destroyed – three of them civilian. 159 aircraft were damaged.

In comparison, the Japanese suffered few losses: 29 aircraft, five midget subs and 64 servicemen. One sailor was captured. It is not known how many were wounded.

The following day, the US declared war against Japan. President Roosevelt called "... December 7, a date which will live in infamy." To encapsulate Japanese Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto's comment portrayed at the very end of the movie Tora! Tora! Tora!: The sleeping giant was awake.

December 7, 2016 will herald in National Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day, part of 11 days of 75th commemoration events, receptions, memorials, keynote speakers, film screenings, concerts, live performances and other important moments through December 1 to 11 at Pearl Harbor. Lest We Forget. ☒

Il n'y aura pas d'augmentation pour l'adhésion des jeunes ni pour l'adhésion familiale. La dernière augmentation a eu lieu en 2009 — il y a huit ans. Des améliorations importantes ont été apportées au Philatéliste canadien et au site Web de la société. Cette augmentation assurera un avenir viable à la société. Le soutien continu du gouvernement du Canada par l'entremise du Fonds du Canada pour les périodiques et de la Vincent Graves Greene Philatelic Research Foundation (Fondation Vincent Graves Greene pour la recherche en philatélie) ont aidé La SRPC à apporter des améliorations constantes aux services aux membres et aux sections de clubs.

REASON AND INSPIRATION

In much of the world, the idea of a British Christmas is the epitome of the seasonal celebration. This year's set celebrates some of the key traditions of a UK Christmas - decorating the Christmas tree, making a snowman, hanging out a stocking, eating a Christmas pudding and lighting a Christmas lantern. It also includes a robin redbreast, which is synonymous with our Christmas and has a strong association with sending and receiving cards and messages, its appearance on cards having been inspired by the red coats worn by postmen in Victorian times.

Royal Mail has issued Christmas stamps since 1966 and is therefore celebrating 50 years of Special Stamps this year.

As is usual, separate stamps of the Madonna and Child at the 1st and 2nd Class rates will also be available from Post Offices.

These stamps are also available in miniature sheet format with and without a bar code, on a 1st day cover franked with either the individual stamps or with the miniature sheet.

FRANCE CERES THIN LINE AT BOTTOM

The 2009 Maury Cérés & Dallay catalogue continues to list a "thin line below bottom frame line" variety on the 5-centime head-of-Ceres. The used price is 120 euros mint hinged (MH) and 10 euros used for the non-variety stamp and 215 euros MH and 110 euros used for one with the thin line at the bottom. Let's look at this variety relative to two other denominations in the same series. The three-stamp image shows the denominations of interest, 1 centime, 2 centimes and 5 centimes.

The 2009 Maury has a 'new listing' icon next to an entry for the 2-centime denomination with a similar thin line at the bottom. Maury prices the basic 2-centime denomination at 70 euros MH and 20 euros used; the variety is 190 euros MH and 210 euros used. (Yes, Maury claims the used value with the flaw is more expensive than the MH stamp with the flaw.) But, Maury has no listing for the 1-centime denomination with this variety.

An ordinary 1-centime is priced at 20 euros MH and 30 euros used. As both the 2 and 5 centime stamps have a multiplier of just over ten for used copies of the 'thin line at bottom' variety, it seems fair to estimate a similar multiplier for the 1 centime in used condition. If so, it is well worth paying some attention to copies of this stamp. Note that the multiplier for a MH copy is three for the 2 centime and just under two for the 5 centime, implying there is not a lot of added value for the MH version. ☒

As usual, colour images are available to those who e-mail me with requests (napoleon3rd@sbcglobal.net).

Donations to the RPSC Philatelic Research Foundation

The two objectives of the Foundation are to promote youth philately, and to encourage philatelic research by sponsoring its publication and distribution. These objectives are achieved through donations of cash, or of philatelic material from collectors and philatelists. Donations of collections receive a charitable receipt for income tax purposes equal to the appraised fair market value.

Potential donors should contact the Foundation President, Peter Butler, FRPSC, directly (1-416-921-2073), or via the National Office(1-888-285-4143), or in writing at 10 Summerhill Ave., Toronto, ON M4T 1A8, to discuss the type of material intended for donation and the process for receiving a charitable donation receipt.

Dons à la RPSC Philatelic Research Foundation

Les deux objectifs de la fondation sont de promouvoir la philatélie jeunesse et d'encourager la recherche philatélique en commanditant la publication et la distribution. Ces objectifs sont atteints au moyen de dons d'argent ou de matériel philatélique de la part de collectionneurs et de philatélistes. Les dons de collections philatéliques donnent lieu à un reçu pour don de bienfaisance aux fins d'impôt égal à la valeur de remplacement selon la juste valeur marchande d'expertise.

Les personnes qui souhaitent faire un don peuvent s'adresser au président de la fondation, Peter Butler, directement au -416-921-2073 ou au Bureau national au -888-285-4143, ou par écrit au 10 Summerhill Ave., Toronto, ON, M4T 1A8, afin de discuter des articles à donner et du processus d'émission d'un reçu pour don de charité.

nouvelles SRPC

“Please accept my resignation as editor of The Canadian Philatelist effective December 31st, 2016. Because we discussed my intention to retire some days ago, my decision will not come as an unexpected surprise.

“I believe I have held the editorship of our journal for a longer period than any of my predecessors (true - 15 years, 90 issues) and it is time I passed on this responsibility to someone dedicated to the continued success of our beloved journal. I have thoroughly enjoyed my years at the helm of The Canadian Philatelist, a respected philatelic publication, and I will be happy to work with my successor during the transition period.”

“I would like to thank all the individuals who so ably assisted me during the past 15-plus years, as well as the dedicated writers without whom The Canadian Philatelist would not exist.”

The excerpts above are taken from the resignation letter of editor Tony Shaman of The Canadian Philatelist, dated August 9th, 2016.

Our journal has been so much a part of what we are as a society of philatelists and stamp collectors in the 21st century that some degree of change is bound to appear in future issues. That is not a negative thought, but it does mean that we won't see and hear Tony in the writing as we are used to. He will be greatly missed in that role, but we do expect that he will continue to be a presence in 'our beloved journal', as he phrased it above.

At our 2016 convention awards banquet I presented three special President's Awards to highly distinguished leaders and shapers of The

I would like to thank all the individuals who so ably assisted me during the past 15-plus years, as well as the dedicated writers without whom The Canadian Philatelist would not exist.

« Veuillez accepter ma démission à titre de rédacteur en chef du Philatériste canadien entrant en vigueur le 31 décembre 2016. Comme nous avons déjà parlé de mon intention de démissionner il y a quelques jours, ce ne sera pas une surprise.

Je crois avoir occupé le poste de rédacteur en chef de notre revue plus longtemps que tous mes prédécesseurs (exactement — 15 ans, 90 numéros) et le temps est venu de confier cette responsabilité à une autre personne ayant à cœur le succès permanent de notre chère revue. J'ai vraiment aimé mes années à la barre du Philatériste canadien, une publication philatélique respectée, et je serai heureux de travailler avec mon successeur durant la période de transition.

J'aimerais remercier toutes les personnes qui m'ont si habilement secondé au cours de ces 15 dernières années et plus, ainsi que les auteurs dévoués sans qui Le philatériste canadien n'existerait pas. »

Les extraits ci-dessus sont tirés de la lettre de démission du rédacteur en chef du Philatériste canadien, Tony Shaman, en date du 9 août 2016.

Comme notre revue est partie intégrante de ce que nous sommes en tant que société de philatélistes et de collectionneurs de timbres au 21e siècle, elle est appelée à connaître certains changements dans les numéros à venir. Cette pensée n'est pas négative; elle signifie simplement que nous ne verrons ni n'entendrons plus Tony entre les lignes, comme nous y étions habitués. Il nous manquera beaucoup dans son ancien rôle, mais nous présumons qu'il continuera d'être présent dans notre « chère revue », comme il le dit plus haut.

Au banquet de remise des prix de notre congrès de 2016, j'ai présenté trois Prix du président à de très distingués leaders et maîtres d'œuvre de La SRPC, telle

J'aimerais remercier toutes les personnes qui m'ont si habilement secondé au cours de ces 15 dernières années et plus, ainsi que les auteurs dévoués sans qui Le philatériste canadien n'existerait pas.

RPSC as we know it. Tony is one of those three. In the citation I wrote as follows:

Tony is that rare person who not only willingly collaborates for the good of the cause, but prefers to work that way. Whether it's an imminent deadline, a technical point on the hyphen or the comma, or an obstreperous would-be writer, Tony remains composed and good-humoured. Sometimes his editor's role must seem thankless, but let that no longer be true.

Thank you, Tony, on behalf of all members and believers in the value of Canada's National Stamp Club. Oh, and very best wishes to Rose and you in your second retirement.

As I write this piece, a hiring process is being worked out by the Executive Committee. We expect to be able to make an announcement about a new editor in the next issue of this journal.

In closing, I would like to thank and congratulate Leigh Hogg and the K-W Royal 2016 Royale Convention Committee. The summer-time date, a first time occurrence necessitated by the May NYC mega-show, was not without a drawback or two, but those dealers and many collectors who were able to pull themselves away from the beach for a few days in August had a wonderful time, from all signs at the show.

The Executive Committee and the Board wish the very best of the festive season to all of our members and affiliates. ☒ que nous la connaissons. Tony est l'un d'entre eux. Dans la citation, j'ai écrit ce qui suit :

Tony est l'une de ces rares personnes qui, non seulement collabore volontiers au bien de la cause, mais préfère travailler ainsi. Qu'il ait à s'occuper d'une échéance imminente, d'un point technique sur le trait d'union ou la virgule ou d'un auteur en devenir récalitrant, Tony garde son sang-froid et sa bonne humeur. Son rôle de rédacteur en chef peut parfois sembler ingrat, mais puisse-t-il ne plus jamais en être ainsi.

Merci, Tony, au nom de tous les membres et de tous ceux qui croient à la valeur du Club national de philatélie du Canada. Oh, et meilleurs vœux à Rose et à toi-même pour votre deuxième retraite.

Au moment où j'écris cet article, le comité de direction a enclenché un processus d'embauche. Nous espérons être en mesure de faire l'annonce d'un nouveau rédacteur en chef dans le prochain numéro de notre revue.

Pour terminer, j'aimerais remercier et féliciter Leigh Hogg et le comité du congrès Royal*2016*Royale de Kitchener-Waterloo. La date estivale, une première, imposée par l'exposition de grande envergure de New York, en mai, n'a pas été sans un ou deux inconvénients, mais les marchands et les nombreux collectionneurs qui ont réussi à quitter la plage pendant quelques jours en août ont passé un très beau moment, d'après ce que nous avons constaté à l'exposition.

Le comité de direction et le conseil d'administration offrent leurs meilleurs vœux du temps des fêtes à tous nos membres et associés. ☒

KNUD MOHR, RDP, FRPSL (1935-2016)

PRESIDENT, FÉDÉRATION INTERNATIONALE DE PHILATÉLIE (1998-2002)

by Lars Peter Svendsen, FRPSL and Charles J. G. Verge, FRPSC, FRPSL

Knud Mohr, a former President of the Fédération Internationale de Philatélie (FIP) and Large Gold medal and Grand Prix-winning exhibitor, passed away July 20, 2016 after a long illness. Mr. Mohr was born in Denmark on April 2, 1935. Queen Margrethe II honoured his contributions to philately by making him a Knight of the Dannebrog (Ridder af Dannebrog) in 1985. He signed the Roll of Distinguished Philatelists (RDP) in 1993.

Mr. Mohr was introduced to organized philately by his father, Harald Mohr, in 1969 and joined the Copenhagen Philatelist Club that year. The club needed an enterprising and skilled accountant when it moved into its new headquarters in Copenhagen and he immediately became a member of the Board. In 1976, he became president of the club – a presidency which he maintained for 24 years until 2000. He was chairman of the Danish Philatelic Federation from 1983 to 1992.

Mr. Mohr's involvement in international philately started in 1976 with the HAFNIA 76 stamp exhibition and continued for years to come, including HAFNIA 87 and HAFNIA 2001. He joined the board of FIP in 1990 and became President in 1998. He was appointed Honorary President of FIP in 2002.

From April 6-8, 2001, in the 75th year of the FIP, Mr. Mohr was among the special guests at ROYALE 2001 ROYAL, the 73rd convention and stamp exhibition of The RPSC, in Dorval, Québec. He participated in the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the independence of the post office in Canada as well as the 150th anniversary of stamps in Canada. He took part in the launching of the stamp featuring Canada's first stamp, the Three Penny Beaver, during the official opening of the convention. Later in the day he had a private meeting with the President and CEO of Canada Post, the Hon. André Ouellet PC, QC, and attended a special reception in Ottawa on Friday evening April 6. He also gave a seminar during his stay on the future of exhibiting at the international level.

From 2004 to 2013, Mr. Mohr was editor of the Fakes, Forgeries & Experts Journal, a journal of great importance for combatting counterfeiting in philately. ☒

Listed and fully priced are stamp booklets, official stamps, postage dues, watermark varieties, plate flaws, major errors, perforation varieties, and major stamp shades. Significant price increases are noted for print errors and varieties. List prices for mint and used stamps have been revised to reflect current market conditions. Perhaps not surprisingly, stamps with inverted watermarks have also seen substantial price increases.

For postal historians, easy-to-read tables permit collectors to determine the value of stamps on cover up to 1945. Several pages of introductory material, information for catalogue users, an explanatory guide to entries, an International Philatelic Glossary and a features listing complement the stamp listings.

Newly included in this latest edition is a comprehensive listing of the stamps of German New Guinea together with German stamps used in this former colony between 1888 and 1897.

In addition to the stamps of the Commonwealth of Australia, as outlined in the first paragraph above, this latest edition also lists the former colonies of New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria, Western Australia and the issues of the British Commonwealth Occupation Force (Japan).

A Glossary providing English translations of commonly used philatelic terms for four languages, French, German, Spanish and Italian, broadens the appeal of this publication to a significantly wider philatelic audience.

This single country catalogues will appeal to thematic and topical collectors in addition to the collectors of the stamps of Australia, its states and dependencies.

PHILATELIC VIEWS OF THE PEACE TOWER

By Gary Dickinson, published by the British North America Philatelic Society, 2016. Spiral bound, 72 pages, 8½ by 11 inches. ISBN 978-1-927119-67-9 (colour) $46.00 Canadian funds; Credit card orders (Visa, MasterCard) will be billed for exact amount of shipping plus $2 per order. For payment by cheque or money order, please contact Sparks Auctions. Applicable tax will be charged on orders for delivery in Canada. BNAPS members receive a 40% discount. Available from Sparks Auctions 1550 Carling Avenue, Suite 202, Ottawa, ON K1Z 8S8 Canada. Phone:(613) 567-3336. Email: BNAPS@sparks-auctions.com. Internet orders can also be placed at: <http://sparks-auctions.com/bnapsbooks/>

Canada's Peace Tower is an icon that most Canadians instantly recognize as the soaring structure anchoring the Centre Block housing Canada's Parliament complex. It is home to a carillon, an observation deck and the four-sided clock.

The Peace Tower's first appearance on a Canadian stamp was in 1927 when the 3-cent denomination (Scott No. 143) was issued to commemorate the 60th anniversary of Confederation. Gary Dickinson's latest book reviews and describes the philatelic appearance of the Peace Tower on adhesive stamps, first flight cachets, stamp booklets covers and cancellations, especially on first day covers.

Dickinson's handbook is divided into six chapters with the first one providing an historical overview of the Peace Tower and its predecessor, the Victoria Tower, which was destroyed in a devastating fire that extended to the Centre Block, and consequently had to be leveled and completely rebuilt. Only the adjacent Library was spared. Photos showing various views of the Victoria Tower and the original Parliament Buildings and the current edifices housing the seat of the Canadian Parliament are pictured, courtesy of National Archives Canada. Enlarged photos of each Canadian stamp picturing the Peace Tower together with additional philatelic items such as covers and a postcard are also shown.

Chapter 2 features Peace Tower postcards, first flight covers, related cancels and booklets. A caption and full description accompanies each image. For instance, we learn that the stamps featured on the mini-pane of four stamps, (Scott 2525) is based on the 1977 stamp (Scott 704) issued to mark the Queen's Silver Jubilee.

Chapter 3 is devoted to first day covers depicting various Peace Tower scenes on issued stamps.

Chapter 4 continues the Peace Tower theme with cacheted covers franked with stamps featuring various personalities and scenes other than the Peace Tower although they all have Peace Tower cachets. No fewer than 58 cacheted covers are pictured. Two of these bear US postage stamps issued to commemorate Expo 67 in Montreal.

The penultimate chapter is reserved for Canada's leading private manufacturer of first day covers: Rosecraft. Joseph C. Rosenbaum created Rosecraft in 1957, whose creations surpassed in quality and quantity the cacheted covers of the previous manufacturer, JCR. We learn that the last JCR cachets with a Peace Tower image appeared in 1957, but a new era began with Rosecraft in 1962 when the most popular and most collected cachets of Canadian first day cover collecting began. The Rosecraft era lasted until 1974.

Chapter 6 summarizes the contents of the first five with its wrap-up comments.

A brief preface, table of contents, a list of ten references and two appendices complement the six chapters. Appendix A is a census of Rosecraft general-purpose cachets; appendix B is an index of first day cachet makers.

This excellently produced and colourful publication will appeal to a broad selection of philatelists, particularly those with a bent toward cacheted and first day-of-issue covers.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF CANADIAN ARMED FORCES AND CIVILIAN AIR LETTERS 1942-1996

By Earle L. Covert, published by the British North America Philatelic Society, 2016. Spiral bound, 104 double pages, 8½ by 11 inches. ISBN 978-1-927119-68-2 (colour) $110.00 Canadian funds; Credit card orders (Visa, MasterCard) will be billed for exact amount of shipping plus $2 per order. For payment by cheque or money order, please contact Sparks Auctions. Applicable tax will be charged on orders for delivery in Canada. BNAPS members receive a 40% discount. Available from Sparks Auctions 1550 Carling Avenue, Suite 202, Ottawa, ON K1Z 8S8 Canada. Phone:(613) 567-3336. Email: <BNAPS@sparks-auctions.com>. Internet orders can also be placed at:<http://sparks-auctions.com/bnapsbooks/>

Military and air mail are both popular fields for postal historians and Earle Covert's exhibit of Canadian Armed Forces and Civilian Air Letters 1942-1996 will undoubtedly help these enthusiasts improve their exhibits should they ever decide to enter competitive exhibiting. Covert is currently a co-publisher of the original and long-running Jim Webb catalogue listing postal stationery, now in its 7th edition with the 8th in preparation.

The exhibit, the 90th in the British North America Philatelic Society exhibits series, is divided into two main sections: Armed Forces Air Letter Sheets and Canada Air letters (Aerogrammes) with the latter comprising about two-thirds of the exhibits pages. Due to the sizeable dimensions of the exhibited items, they are mounted on 11 by 17-inch pages. It is the first time that BNAPS has published an exhibits book on double-sized pages in landscape format.

Complementing the exhibits pages are one and one-half pages of introductory information about the author and background information about air letter material along with a table of contents.

The earliest air letter in the exhibit is dated November 1, 1943 and franked with the 10-cent Peace Tower issue. It was printed by Le Comptoir National and became available for use on June 15, 1943. This air letter could only be used to send messages "To" an addressee; the "From" letter sheet was proposed soon thereafter and eventually the Canada Post Office combined the two types into one.

Included in the exhibit is an example of the CFQ 11 air letter sheets Christmas Issue 1944 overprinted in red. It was designed to replace the cable messages to which members of the Canadian Forces had previously been entitled. "Postage Free" is shown in red.

Another World War II Armed Forces air letter, post-marked February 21, 1944, in Alberta, was returned to sender bearing the dreaded wartime-era "Reported Missing" handstamp.

Also included in Part 1 of the exhibit is an early Armed Forces Air Letter, which the exhibitor describes as a "Box Around Address Panel." It is addressed to the Royal Air Force station in Abu Sueir, Egypt. Another example was mailed to London, England, c/o Canada House.

The various types of known Armed Forces Air Letters are illustrated and expertly described throughout the first part of the exhibit. They are differentiated by placement of letters in the boxed address panel, size of letter sheet, examples of unboxed address panels, the various lettering styles, size, placement and the layout of the imprinted information. One major variety of letter sheets omits the reference to "Armed" and simply describes them as Forces Letter. Examples of bilingual letter sheets are amply illustrated.

Part 2 of the book includes Air Letters used by civilians with many variations. Also shown are the civilian version prestamped forerunners. Compared to the earlier Armed Forces Letter Sheets, the second section of this well illustrated publication is most pleasing to the eye with its vividly coloured material. Shown on what ostensibly is the exhibits title page is an aerogramme printed by Ashton-Potter picturing Quebec's floral emblem, the white garden lily.

We learn that some of the exhibited items are one of a kind and not available for purchase. For that reason, it is not likely that a remarkable array of air letters such as depicted in this book can be viewed elsewhere in one place. For that reason alone this comprehensive publication is worth the purchase price.

New for the 10th edition of this popular catalogue are the up-to-date listings for the Commonwealth of Australia to April 2016, Australian Antarctic Territory to September 2015, Christmas Island to April 2016, Cocos (Keeling) Islands to August 2015 and Norfolk Island to February 2016.

Of interest to collectors will be several newly listed varieties including the "Extended wing" flaw on the 1929 3d. airmail stamp of Australia and the 1942 1½d. definitive issue with the inverted watermark. Also newly listed are several early Australian booklets, fully illustrated, and the specimen overprints on the stamps of German New Guinea.

Stamp listings to 1970 were extracted from the Commonwealth and British Empire Stamps 1840-1970 to be released in 2017; subsequent issues were revised and updated specifically for this latest edition. Of particular interest to collectors will be the more than six page alphabetical Index to Australian Stamp Design for stamps issued from 1942 onwards.
